NATIONAL POLL ON ECONOMY IS LAUNCHED HERE

Quiz All Candidates for Congress.

Every candidate in the United States who seeks a seat in congress at the November election will be polled concerning his stand on federal expenditures. This decision was announced yesterday by state chairmen of the National Organization to Reduce Public Expenditures, meeting in executive session at the La Salle hotel.

No one will be exempt from the poll, the chairmen decided. Questionnaires are being prepared which are designed to bring definite "yeas" or "nos" to questions on governmental economy and the elimination of bureaucracy in federal affairs. The questions which will be asked will include the following:

1. Are you in favor of cutting federal expenditures by at least $750,000,000 and will you work to that end if elected to congress?

Consolidation of Bureaus.

2. Are you in favor of reducing expenditures by consolidation of bureaus and reduction of personnel, cutting salaries of government employés, and eliminating the less essential governmental activities and appropriations therefor?

3. The difficulty with the last congress seems to have been that, while every congressman expressed himself in favor of economy, they disagreed as to what economies should be made with the result that little was accomplished. Are you willing to make a reduction of federal expenditures by not less than $750,000,000 a major feature of your platform so that the objective may not be defeated solely by differences of opinion as to ways and means?

Against "Straddlers."

No "straddlers" will be given the approval of the organization, it was asserted. If a congressman seeking reelection or a candidate for election seeks to dodge a straightforward expression of opinion on matters of national economy, he will be condemned as ruthlessly as the man who comes out against a reduced budget, the chairmen agreed.

Ten state chairmen attended the meeting. They represented California, New York, Indiana, Iowa, Michigan, South Dakota, Nebraska, Ohio, Illinois and Missouri. The session was presided over by George W. Rossetter, president of the Chicago Association of Commerce and chairman of the national organization. The meeting was called to outline a program of action. Other similar meetings are to be held.

War on Wasted Funds.

The organization was created June 2 by representatives of 39 states, who declared war on the wastage of funds by spendthrift officialdom and the resulting increase of taxes. Since then the organization has enlisted the entire 48 states in its program and nearly 800 leading business and agricultural groups have joined the movement, according to Mr. Rossetter.

The agreement to question every candidate for congress concerning national economy was regarded as the most important step taken yesterday. But much progress was made by the chairmen in forming a country-wide organization which will extend its influence into every part of the nation.

The original plan had been to form units of the national organization in every congressional district, but it was found that in some states there are only one or two congressional districts. Plans were therefore made for a representative unit in every county of every state to bring pressure upon every political representative who may have a vote on public expenditures.

Urge Coöperation.

The chairman worked out a practical form of organization to start functioning as soon as possible. The aim of the national organization, Mr. Rossetter explained, will be to coöperate with all other organizations having similar aims.

Within a few weeks, the chairmen stated, a great army opposed to high taxes will start moving against the hordes of public pay rollers and the army of lobbyists promoting costly governmental activities.

"THE VOICE IS JACOB'S VOICE, BUT THE HANDS ARE THE HANDS OF ESAU"

ORANGEMEN MOB BRITISH CHURCH; SMASH WINDOWS

LIVERPOOL, England, July 15.—[Friday.]—(AP)—A crowd of Orangemen, singing hymns, attacked the cathedral here and shattered four stained glass windows with stones in rioting last night.

The attack on the cathedral followed one of a series of clashes between Orangemen and Catholic rivals, which blocked traffic on main thoroughfares. The rioting began Wednesday night and, despite urgent appeals by the leaders on both sides, was renewed yesterday.

Armored Cars Halt Battle.

BELFAST, July 14.—(AP)—Police in armored cars broke up a two hour riot between Orangemen and Free Staters today in the neutral territory between the falls and Shankill districts of Belfast. Numerous heads were cracked. The district has been the scene of many similar clashes.

STRATEGY BOARD OF DRYS FAIL TO BACK HOOVER

Washington, D. C., July 15 (Friday). —(AP)—The policy committee of the national prohibition board of strategy failed early today to agree upon a united dry declaration supporting Herbert Hoover for President. At the end of a long secret session the committee of seven abandoned for the time being discussion of an outright indorsement of Hoover. They were to meet again before the time for submitting a report to the general board.

Duncan Sisters' Creditors Get Bad Bankruptcy News

Hollywood, Cal., July 14.—[Special.] —Creditors for more than $405,000 in debts incurred by the Duncan sisters, Vivian and Rosetta, got bad news from Federal Bankruptcy Trustee O. T. Gilbank today. He reported having gathered from the actresses' financial wreckage only $200 cash and two $1,000 bonds for which he was offered $40 each. He reported prospects of raising more rested on the unknown possibilities of cashing equities in properties in New York state. So far no creditor has received a cent.

This One Is News: Woman Bites a U. S. Marshal

Deputy U. S. Marshal H. E. Goodwin breathed a sigh of relief last night when he delivered a prisoner charged with violating the prohibition law to the women's quarters at the detective bureau. His first act after the cell door clanged was to have his knuckles bandaged where his charge, Mrs. Mary Fisher of Glenview, had bitten him as he was taking her to the bureau. He charges her with selling him two pints of whisky.

Victims Whip Speed Trap at Its Own Game

James P. Haynes, executive vice president of the Chicago Association of Commerce, who was arrested on a charge of speeding Saturday in the village of Wooddale, 22 miles west on Irving Park boulevard, went back there last evening prepared to prove his charge that he had been the victim of a speed trap.

With Mr. Haynes was his personal attorney, Cornelius Lynde; Joseph H. Braun, chief counsel for the Chicago Motor club, and several of Mr. Braun's assistants. They drove past the eight houses, three farms, three gas stations, and the Milwaukee railroad station, which comprise the settlement of Wooddale (population 230), and came to the home of Police Magistrate W. C. Nielsen.

Magistrate Seeks Delay.

Magistrate Nielsen was sitting on his front porch. With him were J. L. Carroll, the one man police force of the hamlet, as well as most of the male population. Magistrate Nielsen said that, since the village seemed to be on trial on the charge of conducting a speed trap, he would like to transfer the case to the nearest justice of the peace, at Bensonville.

Mr. Braun replied that he was content to have Magistrate Nielsen try the case. He added that he was present to learn if extortion was being practised on motorists driving through the village and, if so, to report the facts to the proper authorities for prosecution. Magistrate Nielsen suggested a continuance to July 21.

Neutral Judge Appears.

The magistrate's reply was to enter the continuance and declare court adjourned. At that moment a stout man clad in linen knickers and a shirt open at the throat, appeared in the crowd. Magistrate Nielsen recognized him as George A. Sim, justice of the peace of Bloomingdale township, in Du Page county, and asked him to hear the case. He agreed.

The trial was held under the elms on the lawn, with the crowd grouped around the single table at which Justice Sim sat. Attorney Lynde objected to the complaint on which Mr. Haynes was arrested, stating that it did not set forth the type of area through which he was driving, and therefore gave no basis for determining whether his speed was reasonable and proper.

Policeman Carroll asserted that a speed of more than 25 miles an hour within a corporate area was prima facie evidence of a violation of the state motor vehicle act.

"When I get out of here and drive out of your village," replied Justice Sim, "I'll drive 45 miles an hour. The speed itself is no offense. It is when lives and property are endangered that the statute is violated."

He granted a motion to dismiss the complaint against Mr. Haynes, as well as those against three other motorists represented by the Chicago Motor club attorneys.

Motorcycle Lacks License.

After the hearing Carroll said he had been working for the village of Wooddale for a month. He gets a straight salary and does not share in the fines collected. There was no state vehicle tag on Carroll's motorcycle.

Mayor William A. McKee of Park Ridge announced yesterday that except in aggravated cases, out of town motorists who violate traffic rules in Park Ridge will not be arrested for the first offense.

Then he found the 75 gallon tank feeding the fountain was frozen solid, too. A thermostat had broken and the refrigeration system had kept right on freezing things all night long.

HOUSE, SENATE WAR OVER R. F. C. LOAN PUBLICITY

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., July 14.—[Special.]—A new controversy between President Hoover's Republican forces in congress and Democratic house members under Speaker Garner today brought the new two billion 322 million dollar relief bill to another halt.

JAMES COUZENS.

Conferees seeking to reconcile the divergent features of the senate and house bills came to an impasse over the provision concerning publicity of loans made by the Reconstruction Finance corporation.

Both houses backed up their representatives and the inability to agree means a further conference tomorrow with final congressional approval of the relief bill postponed until late tomorrow at the earliest.

Urged On by Garner.

The senate bill provides for publicity only for loans made under the new emergency relief act. House Democrats under the urging of Speaker Garner, however, and over vigorous Republican protest, voted into its bill publicity, not only for loans under the new act, but for all loans hereafter made under the original Reconstruction Finance corporation act.

Charges of playing politics have accompanied the fight over the publicity provision. The Democrats it is said, profess fear lest loans be made to Republican campaign contributors. The recent loan to Charles G. Dawes' Central Republic Bank and Trust company, made only a few days after Gen. Dawes' retirement from the presidency of the finance corporation, has figured prominently in the Democratic arguments in favor of full publicity for all loans.

Calls Hoover's Methods Backstairs.

In refusing to accede to the house Democrats' demands for publicity the senate became the scene of a brisk debate, Senator Tom Connally [Dem., Tex.], who nominated Speaker Garner for the vice presidency at the recent Chicago convention, criticized what he called President Hoover's backstairs methods of attempting to dictate to congress.

The irrepressible Louisiana senator, Huey Long, then took the floor to attack first the speaker and then the President for letting a quarrel over one item hold up the relief bill.

"It ain't right," shouted the self-styled kingfish. "It ain't fair to the American people for the bullheadedness of any one man, I don't care who he is, to endanger this necessary relief legislation."

House Refuses to Yield.

Senate conferees previously had offered to retire from the original senate position; they agreed to have publicity for all loans except loans to banks. The house conferees refused to yield.

On other features of the bill the conferees were reported to be in agreement. House conferees were described as ready to accept the senate amendment permitting federal reserve banks to loan to individuals, and the senate provision prohibiting loans such as that recently made to Charles G. Dawes' Central Republic Bank and Trust Company of Chicago. For their part, senate conferees had agreed to accept a house provision authorizing, but not appropriating, for 7 million dollars' worth of construction work at various military air fields.

But on the publicity clause the conferees could not get together. By a vote of 172 to 150 the house Democrats upheld their conference representatives. The parliamentary shrewdness of Speaker Garner prevented any modification of the motion to reject the senate's views.

Send Bill Back to Senate.

The house votes sent the relief bill back to the senate, where the action to be taken will lie between a capitulation to the house demand or a vote to send the relief bill back to the conference committee with instructions as to the course to be taken.

In any case, final agreement on the bill cannot come until tomorrow at the earliest and hopes that congress might be able to adjourn by tomorrow night were greatly weakened. Leaders in both houses, however, still believed

President Says We're Not Involved in Debt Entente

In a note to Senator Borah, chairman of the senate foreign relations committee, President Hoover yesterday afternoon said:

"I have your inquiry this morning, through Secretary Stimson, as to the effect on the United States of recent agreements in Europe. Our people, are, of course, gratified at the settlement of the strictly European problem of reparations or any of the other political or economic questions that have impeded European recovery. Such action, together with the real progress in disarmament, will contribute greatly to world stability.

PRESIDENT HOOVER.

"I wish to make it absolutely clear, however, that the United States has not been consulted regarding any of the agreements reported by the press to have been concluded recently at Lausanne and that, of course, it is not a party to nor in anyway committed to any such agreements.

"While I do not assume it to be the purpose of any of these agreements to effect combined action of our debtors, if it shall be so interpreted, ther I do not propose that the American people shall be pressed into any line of action or that our policies shall be in any way influenced by such a combination, either open or implied."

Scorcher Due Today; Heat May Reach 98°

It was hot in Chicago yesterday, with a maximum of 90 degrees. It was hotter still in the midwestern cities whose temperatures were not tempered by lake breezes, readings from 96 to 100 being the rule rather than the reception. At 3 a. m. today the temperature was 84.

Today, according to the official forecast, will be warmer than yesterday. It may go to 98, said Forecaster C. A. Donnel. Fair skies are on the schedule. It is expected that tomorrow likewise will be fair, but with some lowering of temperature.

Most of U. S. Swelters.

Virtually the entire United States east of the Rockies was overspread by the heat wave yesterday. The highest mark recorded was at Shreveport, La., 102. At Kankakee, Ill., the high was 101. Concordia, Kas.; Dodge City, Kas.; Omaha, Sioux City, and St. Louis all sweltered in temperatures that touched the 100 mark.

Chicagoans, in contrast to most midwesterners, enjoyed cool temperatures Wednesday evening and early yesterday because of a breeze off the lake. From 10 p. m. Wednesday until 8 a. m. yesterday the readings were between 71 and 75. There was a fairly steady rise then until 3:50 p. m., when the high point of 90 was reached. There was a slight falling off in the succeeding hours.

Chicago Beaches Crowded.

Chicago beaches again were crowded, as on the previous day. Lincoln park had 95,000 bathers and the south parks an estimated 100,000. As a concession to the unusual heat Police Commissioner Allman ordered that all members of the police force be allowed to perform their duties without coats.

Because Tribune Want Ads pay out better than any others, apartment owners and agents used more Tribune apartment-to-rent advertising during the first six months of 1932 than they used in all other Chicago newspapers combined.

BRITAIN SPLITS WITH FRANCE ON AIM OF TREATY

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, July 14.—A sharp division between the British and French interpretations of their new "confidence" accord appeared today less than twenty-four hours after the agreement was announced. The French insist it means a revival of the pre-war "entente cordiale," creating a Franco-British war debts bloc with which the former allies intend to face the United States. The British made extreme haste this afternoon to say that it does not.

RAMSAY MacDONALD.

Two statements were issued, one at No. 10 Downing street, Prime Minister MacDonald's official residence, and the other at the treasury office. The first rejects the claim of Premier Herriot of France that the accord binds Great Britain and France to face the United States together in a campaign for revision or even cancellation. It even denies that any allusion to Europe's war debts to America is contained in the declaration.

Tries to Explain "Blunder."

The second statement attempts to explain another "blunder" in which Chancellor of the Exchequer Neville Chamberlain appeared to link American disarmament delegates with the Lausanne agreement on reparations and the "gentlemen's agreement" which pledges the former allies not to ratify the Lausanne pact unless the United States revises Europe's debt. According to the communique he meant to do nothing of the kind.

Reports from Brussels and Rome today said that the Belgian and Italian governments were prepared to participate in the new "confidence" accord.

Great Britain's dispute with the French interpretation of the infant agreement arises in the first paragraph of the document. It states that the contracting powers "intend to exchange views with one another with complete candor concerning and to keep each other mutually informed of any questions coming to their notice similar in origin to that now so happily settled at Lausanne which may affect the European régime."

MacDonald in Denial.

Prime Minister MacDonald denied that this touches any but inter-European debts, at least so far as Britain is concerned.

His statement follows:

"In connection with reports which have been put into circulation as to the interpretation of the Anglo-French declaration, to which other governments have been invited to adhere, there is no truth in any statement that it is applicable to the question of British debts due the United States of America.

"The use of the words 'European régime' in the accord expressly excludes from its purview any question affecting non-European countries."

The tangle into which the negotiators of the Lausanne agreement and the Franco-British declaration, which was also hatched there, got themselves is emphasized in today's second disclaimer. It was issued in behalf of Chancellor of the Exchequer Chamberlain.

Refers to Previous Words.

A supplementary statement said MacDonald had explained the entire incident in a speech in the house of commons on Tuesday when he said:

"In view of the grievous results likely to follow upon any representations made either here or in America that at Lausanne Europe has combined to present something in the nature of an ultimatum to the United States, I want to make it absolutely clear that all that was done at Lausanne was to straighten out the internal difficulties of Europe which in all conscience are many, and to agree to proposals which the nations represented there believe are both essential and possible."

The statement refers to assertions made by the chancellor in the "heat of debate" with Winston Churchill in the house of commons on Monday. It follows:

"A misunderstanding has arisen regarding Mr. Chamberlain's reference to conversations with representatives of the United States.

"He did not suggest, and of course had no intention of suggesting, that representatives of the United States approved either tacitly or explicitly what was done at Lausanne.

"The proceedings there were throughout on the basis that the right course was to seek a European solution of reparations without involving the United States in the discussion."

Publish "Gentlemen's Agreement."

PARIS, July 14.—(AP)—The foreign office today made public the much discussed "gentlemen's agreement," in which the European creditor powers declared their leniancy toward Germany on the score of reparations would not be effective until they obtained "satisfactory settlement" of their own debts to the United States.

[The text of the "gentlemen's agreement" was published exclusively in The Chicago Tribune last Sunday.]

Meanwhile there was no indication that the government had receded from Premier Herriot's interpretation of the new Franco-British accord, which he has asserted means that Britain cannot conclude a debt settlement with America without first talking things over with France.

Secret Clause Denied.

An official authorized to speak for the premier denied reports published abroad that the accord contained a secret fifth clause directly dealing with war debts.

After publication of the "gentlemen's agreement" the premier turned from financial probleme connected with the Lausanne conference to the question of disarmament. He studied the text of a resolution which the general committee of the disarmament conference has been preparing. He was assisted by Joseph Paul-Boncour, minister of war; Gen. Gamelin, chief of the general staff, and Gen. Maxime Weygand. The premier will leave for Geneva Sunday.

The text of the "gentlemen's agreement" follows:

"The Lausanne agreement will take final effect only after ratification by the creditor powers as provided in the treaty. This ratification will not be effected until a satisfactory settlement has been reached between them and their own creditors.

"The creditor powers will have an opportunity to explain the situation to their respective parliaments, but no reference of that must be made in the agreement with Germany.

"Consequently if satisfactory settlements are reached concerning the debts, the creditor government will ratify the Lausanne treaty and the agreement with Germany then will have its full effect.

"But if such settlements are not obtained the agreement with Germany will not be ratified and a new situation will arise and the interested governments will confer on what is to be done. In such an event the legal position will be that which existed before the Hoover moratorium.

"The German government will be notified of this agreement."

NORBECK'S BILL ON FARM RELIEF DIES IN SENATE

Washington, D. C., July 14.—(AP)—Death was dealt the Norbeck farm relief bill today by the senate, which only yesterday had passed the measure and dispatched it to the house for final action.

The measure was reconsidered and voted down, 30 to 25, on motion of Senator Bingham [Reb., Conn.] to permit several opponents of the plan who were absent yesterday to vote.

Under it wheat, cotton and hog growers would receive for their production going into domestic consumption, sums equal to the tariff of amounts set by the bill, in addition to their sales price. The bounties would be taken from processors of the products.

SLEMP CALLS ON HOOVER TO TAKE STAND ON RUM

Washington, D. C., July 14.—(AP)—Leaving the White House this afternoon, C. Bascom Slemp—former secretary to President Coolidge—said he had advised President Hoover to take an "unequivocal stand" on prohibition in his forthcoming speech accepting renomination.

Slemp said he suggested that the President declare approval of an amendment to replace the eighteenth.

Although Slemp declined to give Mr. Hoover's reaction, he said he believed Mr. Hoover would follow this line.

ITALY LINES UP WITH EUROPE'S NEW 'ENTENTE'

But It Is "Up in Air" Over Accord's Meaning.

BY DAVID DARRAH.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

ROME, July 14.—Premier Mussolini's government today assured the British foreign office that it "would adhere willingly" to the Franco - British consultative entente, as announced yesterday by Sir John Simon, British foreign secretary. Confusion, however, existed here over the exact nature and bearing of the agreement.

Press commentators are frankly disconcerted, particularly so because the cabinet today heard Foreign Minister Dino Grandi's report on the Lausanne reparations agreement, approved the delegation's work, but refrained from mentioning the Paris-London agreement in its communique.

The government's attitude as officially made public in a statement to the press, however, is that Sir John's announcement is the logical outcome of the new "spirit of Lausanne," and is likely to be a useful proposal for continuing a regulation of European affairs.

Born in London, Belief.

At the same time, the impression here is that the accord is not one between France and Britain, but that it was a proposal made simultaneously to Paris and Rome by London, and merely accepted first by the French.

A view is expressed in some quarters that it is an accord which has become somewhat discordant already, inasmuch as the British have hastened to explain that it is not a general European combination to win debt cancellation as indicated in Premier Herriot's announcement at Paris.

That situation apparently leaves the Italian government in doubt as to just what the British and French have up their sleeves. These divergences, it is held here, may nullify the whole effect of the accord as occurred in Aristide Brand's pan-European scheme and the Anglo-French naval compromise.

Agree with Duce's Ideas.

Some intimate that Mussolini's government will naturally accept with favor the British proposals, since they correspond precisely to the ideas which have inspired the Italian foreign policy all along, and coincide with Mussolini's own views, expressed last January in his Milan newspaper when he called for a united front on common European interests.

Some uneasiness, however, is apparently felt here lest American opinion will be aroused by any general European combination for wiping the slate clean of debts.

Germany Is Perplexed.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, July 14.—The German government is perplexed and perturbed by the conflicting reports from Paris and London over the new Franco-British accord. An invitation to participate in the confidence pact has been received, the foreign office announced today.

"Germany's attitude cannot be defined until the divergence of interpretations is cleared up," a communique said.

President Paul von Hindenburg today heard Chancellor Franz von Papen's report on the reparations conference at Lausanne at his country estate at Neudeck. The president thanked the delegation for its work.

The nationalist press sees the new "entente cordiale" as seeking to further isolate Germany. The Lokal Anzeiger warns:

"The accord will saddle Germany with the entire weight of the opposition to the United States, despite English assurances."

U. S. FIGHTS TO KEEP SLOWLY DYING DISARM CONFERENCE ALIVE

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

GENEVA, Switzerland, July 14.—The American delegation to the disarmament conference today was forced to ask for a postponement of the public session of the general commission, in the hope of blocking a resolution by Sir John Simon, British foreign secretary, sending the conference into a long vacation.

With the French determinedly opposed to any mention of the Hoover plan to reduce armed effectives in the resolution, and with the British playing the revived Anglo-French entente cordiale to the fullest, Ambassador Hugh S. Gibson today asked Arthur Henderson, president of the conference, to defer the day when the first phase of the conference is to wind up with almost no achievements.

Mr. Gibson already had succeeded in winning a postponement from Saturday to Tuesday and now no date whatever is set. The French and British are certain that the commission will meet next Wednesday despite the American opposition and that the Simon resolution will be passed. Sir John today gave a version of the new Franco-British "confidence" treaty such as to indicate that either he or Premier Edouard Herriot of France misread it. He said formally that it is not aimed at America either regarding war debts or disarmament.

Spain Celebrates First Birthday of Republic

MADRID, July 14. — (AP) — Spain today celebrated with stirring ceremonies the first anniversary of republican parliamentary rule.

HOOVER ORDERS INAUGURATION OF FIVE DAY WEEK

Washington, D. C., July 14.—[Special.]—Carrying out the provisions of the recently adopted economy bill, President Hoover tonight instructed heads of all federal departments to install, "wherever feasible," the five day week, which the government employés themselves have dubbed the "bobtail five day week," since under it pay cuts parallel time off.

Under the new program the average government worker, accustomed normally to every Sunday and every Saturday afternoon off, will now receive an additional obligatory Saturday morning off. In return for this full day (two Saturday mornings) of new holiday every two weeks he will have pay for one and one-fourth days deducted from his semi-monthly pay check.

The President in tonight's executive order specified the five day week for all per diem employés, but gave each department head the right to choose between it and the "forced furlough" with his salaried employés. But he strongly recommended the five day week where possible.

The majority of local federal employés, through massmeetings and resolutions the last fortnight, have advocated the furlough plan.

Bar Relief to Families WhichAreAble to FeedDog

McGregor, Ia., July 14.—[Special.]—The board of supervisors of Clayton county, in the pursuit of ways and means to curtail expenses, has agreed that no one who can afford to feed a dog can be classed as a pauper. They have decreed that only families minus a dog need apply for poor relief.

NORRIS SAYS HOOVER WANTS TO HALT QUIZ OF POWER INDUSTRY

Washington, D. C., July 14.—(AP)—Senator Norris [Rad. Rep., Neb.] today charged President Hoover with a desire to halt the federal trade commission's investigation of the power industry. He made before the senate a lengthy address on the power question, reaching a climax with the assertion that the investigation, though far from complete, already had discovered $520,000,000 of "financial water and air on which the poor people must pay for all time" in the capitalization of electric utilities.

"And yet," shouted Norris, "if President Hoover had his way all this would stop, all this work in behalf of the public."

Norris linked Joseph R. Nutt, treasurer of the Republican national committee, to power company operations, saying he was a member of a syndicate which bought companies in Utah, Idaho, Wyoming, and Colorado in 1912.

Nutt has now as "his principal job the reelection of Herbert Hoover as President," the senator said.

Hoover Signs 390 Million War Department Bill

Washington, D. C., July 14.—(AP)—President Hoover late today signed the 390 million dollar war department appropriation bill, the last of the big money measures to be enacted for running the government. The measure was finally enacted by congress after the house abandoned its demand that 2,000 officers be dismissed for economy.

DEBT STATUS IS MADE CLEARER IN WASHINGTON

Gentlemen's Agreements Not in Force Here.

Washington, D. C., July 14.—[Special.]—President Hoover today indirectly warned European nations that any concerted move on their part to force this country to reduce the war debts owed by the allies was doomed to failure. While not closing the door to individual reductions to nations who show their incapacity to pay obligations, the President stated emphatically that the American people should not be coerced into any particular line of action through so-called gentlemen's agreements or other combinations of nations.

President Hoover's pronouncement was included in a letter sent to Senator William E. Borah [radical Rep., Idaho], chairman of the senate foreign relations committee. Its publicity marked the first official cognizance taken by the White House of the gentlemen's agreement under which the nations signatory to the German reparations settlement agreed also not to make the settlement final until the United States had agreed to reduce war debt payments owed by the allies.

Capital Aroused.

The letter was delivered as dispatches from abroad told of two new additions to the new Franco-British accord whereby each signatory nation agrees to consult the other in all matters of mutual interest. This accord, separate from the gentlemen's agreement, aroused deep interest in the capital due to indications that it means that Europe has decided to put up a united front to this country on the war debts reductions or repudiation issue.

In the Borah letter President Hoover took occasion to deny that the United States had been consulted regarding any of the agreements reported by the press to have been concluded recently at Lausanne.

Johnson Was Incredulous.

This denial was probably evoked by intimations such as Senator Hiram Johnson of California put out in the senate chamber last Tuesday. In the face of a denial by Secretary Stimson, Senator Johnson said, referring to a reported comment by Neville Chamberlain, British chancellor of the exchequer, that the European agreement had been reached on the basis of conversations with the United States:

"I suppose I must accept what the secretary of state says, but I can't forego a bit of comment when this spokesmen of the British government says something wholly at variance with what the secretary of state has said.

"It is incredible, of course, that representatives of the United States should hold conversations that have been hidden from the American people."

It was learned today that American diplomats at Geneva have advised the state department that they did not discuss the war debt situation or the Lausanne reparations agreement with any of the diplomats represented at the Lausanne parley prior to the approval of the gentlemen's agreement.

Secret Agreement Resented.

Prior to the dispatch of the Hoover letter, Senator Borah conferred with Secretary Stimson and other officials of the state department. Later Secretary Stimson spent several moments with President Hoover. Mr. Borah said later that he saw no objections to the Franco-British accord under which they agree to confer on mutual problems. He expressed the opinion that united action by Europe could have only adverse effect on the American debt policy while it might expedite steps towards further armaments reductions.

The opinion prevailed today throughout official and diplomatic circles that all possibility of this country's agreeing to any additional reductions in the war debt payments owed us by our late allies has been indefinitely postponed by [illegible] the secret agreements in connection with the reparations agreement. Officials today expressed the opinion that it will be a long time before congress will consent to any reopening of the debts.

The Hoover administration, if not held back by congress, undoubtedly would arrange to set up the old war debt funding commissions and consider such individual applications as were made by the nations for reductions based on their present capacity to pay. Congress, however, is absolutely opposed to repudiation or even reductions of the debts.

190 JOBLESS MEN RAISE FOOD IN SUBURB GARDEN

Project Backed by Civic Organizations.

Maywood's unemployed are cultivating a 60 acre garden at North avenue and the River road and, according to backers of the project, will have in a short time sufficient vegetable food to care for their needs through the summer. It is planned also to can a large surplus and put it away for the winter.

The idea of the community garden originated with Dr. Walter C. Lovejoy. He outlined his plan to the Maywood relief commission, the Maywood Chamber of Commerce, and the Lions and Rotary clubs. He obtained their cooperation.

Next the forest preserve board granted the use of the land. Horses for the plowing and other heavy work were loaned by dairy companies. Seeds were furnished by the relief commission. A call for unemployed men to volunteer for the work of cultivation was issued.

190 Men Work in Garden

The response was good. A total of 190 announced their willingness to work and produce food for themselves and their families. They were organized and directed by Z. E. Smith, president of the Maywood Nursery company, and Robert Sculley, foreman of the farm.

With the heavy planting done it was found that the 190 could be divided into six shifts. This was done and now, daily, about thirty men report at a central place in Maywood for transportation to the garden.

Trucks take them to their work. Regular hours are observed, the day beginning at 8 a. m. and ending at 5 p. m., with an hour for lunch. The meal is served by the woman's committee of the Maywood relief commission, headed by Mrs. Clyde Cleaver.

Take Vegetables Home.

Leaving for home in the afternoon the workers are allowed to take sufficient vegetables for their family needs. So far radishes, beets, onions, and beans are matured sufficiently for use. Bread is distributed with the vegetables by the relief workers.

No individual plots are cultivated, the backers feeling that better results would be accomplished if the workers, often inexperienced, labor under efficient direction.

Growing with promise of abundant harvest are twenty-five acres of sweet corn, 20,000 tomato plants, and 18,000 cabbage plants. When these are ready they will be canned and preserved for the winter.

Dr. Lovejoy and his associates said that the project was already a success; that the workers were glad to have an opportunity to earn the food by their own work. Posted around the community farm are signs with the Biblical text: "If ye be willing and obedient, ye shall eat of this land."

GUNNER RIDDLES PLANE INSTEAD OF TARGET BELOW

(Copyright: 1932: By the New York Times.)

BALBOA, C. Z., July 14.—The anti-aircraft gunnery practice at Fort Amador, protecting the Pacific entrance to the Panama canal, became too realistic for Lieut. Samuel Stephenson today when bullets began crashing through the fuselage of his plane as he towed a target at which four gunners were firing.

Stephenson flew out of range as quickly as possible and returned to Albrook field and landed safely to examine the hits on his plane, with which he had been towing a target made of a funnel of canvas on a 4,400 foot line.

ARCHAEOLOGIST GETS DIVORCE

MR. AND MRS. CHARLES BREASTED. [TRIBUNE Photo.]

CHAS. BREASTED GIVEN DIVORCE; TELLS DESERTION

Wife Returned to English Home.

Charles Breasted, flying archeologist and secretary of the Oriental institute at the University of Chicago, was granted an uncontested divorce yesterday from Mrs. Violet Timms Breasted, the young Englishwoman whom he married on Feb. 16, 1931.

Breasted, who is a son of Prof. James H. Breasted, noted Egyptologist, filed his bill a few minutes before the case was heard by Circuit Judge Daniel P. Trude. He testified that his wife deserted him on July 1, 1931, less than five months after their marriage.

Wife Returns to England.

She returned to her home in Harrow, Middlesex, England, and has remained there since, he testified. His brother, James H. Breasted Jr., and Earl Shilton, a real estate man, corroborated his testimony.

Breasted, who is 34 years old, lives at 5649 Dorchester avenue. His wife was nine years younger. They were married in the Riverside church in New York by Dr. Harry Emerson Fosdick, a friend of the family. Dr. Breasted was best man for his son.

Returns from Near East.

A few weeks ago the younger Breasted returned from the near east, where he had made a 3,000 mile air journey to visit a dozen archeological expeditions which the Oriental institute has working in biblical lands. He took several thousand feet of motion pictures of their work which he brought back to Chicago.

In 1927 there was an announcement of the engagement of Mr. Breasted to Miss Betty Ball, the daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Otho Fisher Ball of Chicago. The wedding was scheduled informally to have taken place in June of that year in the American cathedral in Paris. Mr. Breasted returned to the United States alone shortly before that time.

HOODLUMS OPEN FIRE ON CARNIVAL PEOPLE, WOUNDING 10 OF THEM

Mechanicsville, Md., July 14.—(AP)—As employes of a carnival were breaking camp here early today preparatory to moving to a new location, a band of men described by police as "drunken hoodlums" fired shotguns at them from ambush wounding ten.

The shooting was the climax of ill feeling that started when residents of Mechanicsville accused members of the carnival troupe of "gipping" them.

Three of the ten wounded were so badly hurt they were taken to Washington for treatment. The others received medical attention here.

Today's shooting followed an outburst Saturday when William Stanley, 21, operator of the bucket game, was shot and wounded in the abdomen after an argument with men who charged him with operating a "crooked" game.

One of the most seriously injured today was Mrs. Anna Blizzard, 22, of Eskdale, W. Va., who was holding an infant in her arms when the discharge from a shotgun struck her. The infant was uninjured.

CERMAK MAY LEAVE HOSPITAL FOR HOME TODAY

Mayor Anton J. Cermak, who has been ill for the last ten days in St. Anthony's hospital, will leave there for his home, probably today or tomorrow, it was announced last night by his personal physician and son-in-law, Dr. Frank J. Jirka.

"The mayor's condition has improved to the point where he can safely go home," Dr. Jirka said, "but Dr. Frederick Tice and I have counseled further rest."

The mayor may go to his summer home at Antioch for further rest, or make an European trip to advertise the "Century of Progress."

POLL INDICATES DEFEAT OF LOOP PARKING MOVE

26 Aldermen Opposed to Lifting of Ban.

BY HAL FOUST.

A poll on the floor of the city council yesterday foreshadowed the defeat of a proposal to lift the parking ban in the loop for five months starting Aug. 1. Of thirty-nine aldermen who indicated how they plan to vote on the proposition, twenty-six said they were opposed to the traffic experiment.

Twenty-six opposing votes are enough to kill the proposed suspension of the parking prohibition. Other aldermen, who declined to announce their stand, are known to be against permitting downtown parking.

The poll was taken after the defeat of a motion by Ald. Massen [48th], chairman of the traffic committee, for immediate consideration of the committee's recommendation that the council pass ordinances permitting one hour parking. This deferred action by the council on the ordinance until next Wednesday.

Results of Parking Poll.

The responses to THE TRIBUNE poll are as follows, the affirmative votes favoring an experiment with one hour parking, and the "no" votes opposing the five months' test:

YES.		NO.
Govier [9th]	Kells [28th]	Cronson [4th]	Toman [23d]
Wilson [31th]	Terrell [29th]	Healy [6th]	Clark [30th]
O'Grady [14th]	Keane [34th]	Hodes [7th]	Konkowski [31st]
Corr [17th]	Crowe [42d]	Sutton [8th]	Rostenkowski [33d]
Bowler [25th]	Waller [43d]	Rowan [10th]	Porten [35th]
Nelson [46th]		Hartnett [12th]	Robinson [36th]
		Kovarik [13th]	Mills [37th]
		Moran [16th]	Landmesser [38th]
		Norris [18th]	Orlikoski [39th]
		Northrup [19th]	Mareland [41st]
		Lagodny [21st]	Loescher [44th]
		Hoellen [47th]	Williston [49th]

Ald. Massen was among those who declined to express themselves in the poll. On Wednesday, as chairman, his added affirmative vote broke a 7 to 7 tie in the traffic committee and determined the committee's recommendation that the council should authorize the parking experiment. Others who declined to reveal their positions were Aldermen Anderson [2d], Schreiber [5th], Pacelli [20th], Arvey [24th], and Feigenbutz [45th]. Five aldermen were absent from the floor during the poll: Doyle [13th], Leahy [27th], Smith [32nd], Ross [40th], and Quinn [50th].

Merchants Seek Lifting of Ban.

Downtown merchants are seeking a temporary suspension of the parking prohibition, contending that the ban discourages motorists from visiting the loop to shop. On the other side, traffic engineers testified at committee hearings that the cleared streets were of benefit to the downtown district, expediting travel by street car, bus, and private car.

Another element in the controversy that may determine the fate of the ordinance before the council next week is the fact that, of the fifty aldermen in the council, forty-nine represent wards outside the loop where community business men are contributors to campaign funds.

BANDITS ROB PACKING COMPANY.

Three armed bandits yesterday took $2,500 from the offices of Maier & Co., meat packers, at 2872 Lincoln avenue, after threatening George Maier, head of the company, and two employes.

OPERATION IS SUCCESS; TINY IS NOW HOME AND CAN SHOW SCAR

The Wolcott Blairs of 2700 Lake View avenue, who are now traveling in Europe, lost a brown Pekingese dog named Tiny last January.

Yesterday Emil Sherman, formerly a butler in the Blair home, saw a dog which he believed was Tiny at Chicago avenue and Dearborn street. It was held on a leash by Mrs. Elizabeth Reinholdt of 851 North Dearborn street. At the door of her home Sherman addressed Mrs. Reinholdt.

"I am sure, madam," he said, "that Mrs. Blair would like to have her dog back. That is little Tiny."

"This dog's name is Tony, not Tiny," said Mrs. Reinholdt, "and I bought him in St. Louis."

Ex-Butler Sherman appealed to Lieut. Richard Braithwaite of the Chicago avenue police station and a squad was sent for Tiny and his leash holder. The dog answered to the name of Tiny and was identified by Sherman and Miss Eugenie Montbrend, a dressmaker who had seen the dog in the Blair home. But Mrs. Reinholdt refused to give him up. Then Dwight C. Swanson, secretary to Mr. Blair, was summoned.

"Look at the dog's tummy," he said, "and if there is a scar from a surgical operation there, it is Tiny."

The scar was there. Mrs. Reinholdt accepted $25 for her claims and Tiny may now boast to the other dogs his operation was a success.

BENDIX DIVORCE SUIT DELAYED BY A LEGAL TANGLE

Mrs. Vincent Bendix's expected suit for divorce from the millionaire manufacturer was not filed yesterday and the date of filing was still undecided last night.

As explained by an attorney who requested that his name not be used, the suit has been drawn and a satisfactory financial settlement arranged, but no decision has been reached as to an attorney to represent Mrs. Bendix.

It was explained that a lawyer who represented her for several months in the preliminary negotiations withdrew temporarily and allowed another firm to continue the work. With a formal announcement that the suit will be filed, the first lawyer, it was said, has decided to take up the case again. The suit will not be filed therefore until this matter is decided.

Mr. Bendix was reported en route to Chicago last night from Detroit and South Bend. Mrs. Bendix was at her apartment at 209 Lake Shore drive. She and her husband have maintained separate establishments for the last eighteen months. Mr. Bendix lives in the old Potter Palmer residence.

ORGANIZE U. OF C. GROUP TO HELP ILLINOIS MINERS

Several professors and about 150 students of the University of Chicago last night organized a "Middle West Committee for Investigating Miners' Relief in Illinois," which plans a junket into southern Illinois coal fields to "focus publicity" on conditions there.

The chairman of the meeting held in Mandel hall was Prof. Robert Morss Lovett of the English department. Other instructors on the committee include Profs. Frederick L. Schuman of the political science department and Louis Gottschalk of the history department.

The meeting heard from Zip Kochinski, union organizer and one of those indicted in southern Illinois on charges of criminal syndicalism last year, who told of conditions among the coal workers.

CURTIS REVOKES ORDER TO CLEAR CAPITOL OF VETS

Marines Called and Then Sent Back.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., July 14.—[Special.]—A truce was arranged tonight between authorities in charge of the capitol grounds and the three hundred veterans of the bonus army who have been shuffling in a straggling footsore picket line in front of the senate and house since last night.

PELHAM D. GLASSFORD. [Harris & Ewing Photo.]

Following a consultation between Vice President Curtis, Senator Hiram Bingham [Rep., Conn.] and Chief of Police Glassford, the Vice President modified his earlier order that the veterans must be cleared from the capitol grounds. He said he would permit them to continue their march on the opposite side of the east plaza of the capitol.

Marines Called Out.

The veterans moved without protest and took up their plodding at a pace little better than a crawl. They marched in single file in two lines, a flag bearer carrying the colors at the head of each line.

Prior to the arrangement of the truce trouble became imminent for a time and two companies of marines were mustered to the capitol as a safeguard in event serious rioting developed during the continuous demonstrations.

Hardly had the marines arrived, however, before the authorities who summoned them decided they had acted too quickly. The marine commander marched his men to the crypt under the Capitol dome and awaited instructions. When none came he shouted out attention and marched his forces back to the navy yard.

Extend Limit on Veterans' Stay.

Late this afternoon the house voted to extend until July 25 the time when veterans may borrow transportation funds from the veterans' administration under the Howell bill.

The senate has yet to approve the amendment to the act which expired at midnight tonight. The measure, which sets up a $100,000 fund to pay the costs of sending the bonus marchers home, provides that the money be deducted from adjusted service certificates in case the veterans neglect to repay the government.

HURLEY ASSAILS DEMOCRATS ON ECONOMY PLEDGE

Opens Midwest Campaign at Ohio Convention.

BY PARKE BROWN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Columbus, O., July 14.—[Special.]—Opening the Hoover campaign in the middle west here tonight, Secretary of War Patrick J. Hurley turned his heavy guns not on Albany, as had been predicted, but upon Washington. His address was made to the Ohio Republican state convention, which opened here today.

WALTER F. BROWN. [Harris & Ewing Photo.]

The Republican strategists had announced that, following an opening salvo by Ogden Mills at Boston, "Pat" Hurley would appear before the Ohio state Republican convention here and smash to smithereens Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt's speech accepting the Democratic nomination for the presidency. The double attack, it was admitted, was necessary to offset the sudden advance of Gov. Roosevelt on Chicago which, it was suspected, might have gained some ground in public opinion.

A Good Judge of Targets.

But the secretary of war, pronounced a good judge of targets, turned his range finders on the Democratic congressional record during recent weeks, selected as his secondary target the Democratic national platform, and devoted only minor attention to Gov. Roosevelt's speech at Chicago.

"If this be economy," he said in effect, but in much more statesmanlike language, "what would constitute extravagance?"

The secretary's method of assault apparently met with the approval of his hearers, who included some persons of note, such as Walter F. Brown, national committeeman from this state, postmaster general in the Hoover cabinet, one of the politico generals of the administration, etcetera, etcetera; Senator Simeon D. Fess, lately chairman of the national committee, and a number of gentlemen considered as constituting the oldest of the old guard of the Buckeye state.

Minds Occupied Elsewhere.

The elder statesmen, apparently, were not concerned with the tenor of Secretary Hurley's remarks. They knew, it was suggested, that it had been mimeographed in Washington, possibly subject to some approval, before he left there by airplane, and they knew his rapid fire delivery would put it over.

Therefore they were inclined, it was said, to start their applause almost too early. But this was explained by the fact that their minds were occupied elsewhere. Their job here, it was said, was to see that the Republican platform on prohibition—the "straddle plank"—did not suffer from hasty consideration by the radical element that exists even in the always regular Buckeye state. And they are said to have taken care of that little matter in such a manner that when the state plank on the wet and dry question is adopted tomorrow it will be a sort of encore for the action of the Chicago convention.

With that somewhat troublesome question disposed of, at least until tomorrow when final action is to be taken, the crowd tonight was free to devote its attention to the imported stellar attraction, tall, well tailored, handsome, and energetic speaking. The thousand and more delegates gathered in the Columbus auditorium particularly seemed to sympathize with his dislike for Democrats in general.

Appear Slightly Disappointed.

But his auditors seemed slightly disappointed when his criticism of Gov. Roosevelt and the latter's Chicago speech centered chiefly around the declaration that the speech "consisted principally of generalizations." Beyond that he aimed only at the New Yorker's pledge of "a new deal for the American people."

"Just what is this new deal?" he asked. "The governor does not enlighten us. When he speaks of returning America to its own people is he condemning the attempts of his late chieftain whom he idolizes, President Wilson, to give America to the league of nations? Is he condemning the Wilson administration for having given the allied nations nearly all the money the taxpayers owned and asking in return not even a definite promise to pay?

"Is he going to lift that burden that his chieftain placed on American taxpayers? Is he going to join the Republicans in their demand for repayment? Maybe the governor believes that by ceasing to advocate the entry of the United States into the league of nations the Democrats are giving America back to the people. That may be his new deal of which he speaks so vaguely."

There was some more along this same line of thought, including reference to Theodore Roosevelt's demand for a "square deal," but it failed to receive the response given to the speaker's assault on Democracy as a whole.

In opening his attack on the Democratic record in the present congress Secretary Hurley branded as "the baldest kind of hypocrisy" the Democratic platform demand for economy in government.

"Unless," he added, "that plank can be taken as a direct rebuke to the Democratic house of representatives.

"Let us see how the Democratic house of representatives acts in face of the demand by the Democratic convention for economy in government.

Democrats Pass Veteran Bill.

"On May 2 the Democratic house of representatives passed the veterans' bureau allowances against the President's advice for what would have amounted to 450 million dollars during the first ten years.

"On May 6 the Democratic house of representatives voted to expand government bureaucracy in the operation of Muscle Shoals at a cost of 100 million dollars.

"On June 7 the Democratic house of representatives passed a gigantic pork barrel bill sponsored by Speaker Garner calling for nonproductive works at a cost of one billion, three hundred million dollars.

"On June 15, the Democratic house of representatives passed an act calling for the immediate payment of veterans' bonus at a cost of two billion dollars. At this very hour the Democratic house of representatives still has under consideration Democratic measures calling for expenditures out of the federal treasury of items opposed by the President that, if enacted, would cost the government more than 500 million dollars during the next fiscal year.

Praises Hoover's Acts.

"If the senate and the President would have concurred with the Democratic house of representatives and had permitted these bills to become law, the Democrats would have appropriated four billion, 350 million dollars above the present budget. In other words, instead of decreasing the present budget by 25 per cent as demanded by the economy plank in the Democratic platform, they have passed bills that would have doubled the cost of government."

In a somewhat similar vein, Secretary Hurley attacked the eighth plank of the Democratic platform calling for reduction in the cost of national defense, "that the people in time of peace may not be burdened by the expenditure fast approaching a billion dollars annually." He said that his official duties made him familiar with the figures in this instance and that "the accurately budgeted figures for the fiscal year 1933 show the combined cost of army and navy to be but 600 million dollars.

Final Fling at Democrats.

"That" he said, "is a mere 40 per cent less than the misleading figures given in the Democratic platform. Just 40 per cent wrong—that's about as close to the truth as you would expect Democrats to get."

As a final fling at the Democratic platform, reverting to his earlier assertion that it constituted an indorsement of Hoover policies, the secretary had this to say:

"If the recommendations the President has made to congress and his economic plan were taken from the Democratic platform, it would have little of anything left save an appeal to class prejudices and individual cupidity and the same delightful idiosyncracies about the tariff that are frequently expressed by men who oppose the tariff for campaign purposes but always vote for it in congress."

With everybody conceding that Mr. Brown possesses qualities of generalship far beyond those required for his regular job of postmaster general, the official forecast as to the humidity of the Republican state convention is that it will be just as wet and just as dry as the national convention of last month—and no wetter and no dryer.

Postmaster General Brown, backed by what some people refer to as the old guard, is in command here not only in his own right as the state's representative on the Republican national committee, but also by designation—at least implied and understood, as the commanding general of the Hoover forces, his assignment being to see that the Buckeye state stays right in line with the federal procession.

It is said by those considered the best informed that he and his associates have done their work so well that when the state plank on prohibition is adopted tomorrow it will consist of an indorsement of the "straddle" device worked out at Chicago, where Mr. Brown also was at least a generalissimo, in all its points, including the federal right of control and the releasing of party candidates from any obligations to follow the new party tenet in this school of thought.

The committee on resolutions, under the leadership of James E. Kinnison of Canton, chairman of the Stark county organization, who is said to have submitted a draft of the platform acceptable to both national and state leaders, will be working late tonight over some of the planks in the final draft, but the committee is said to be well under control on the liquor question and no substantial change in the wording of that specific proposal is foreseen.

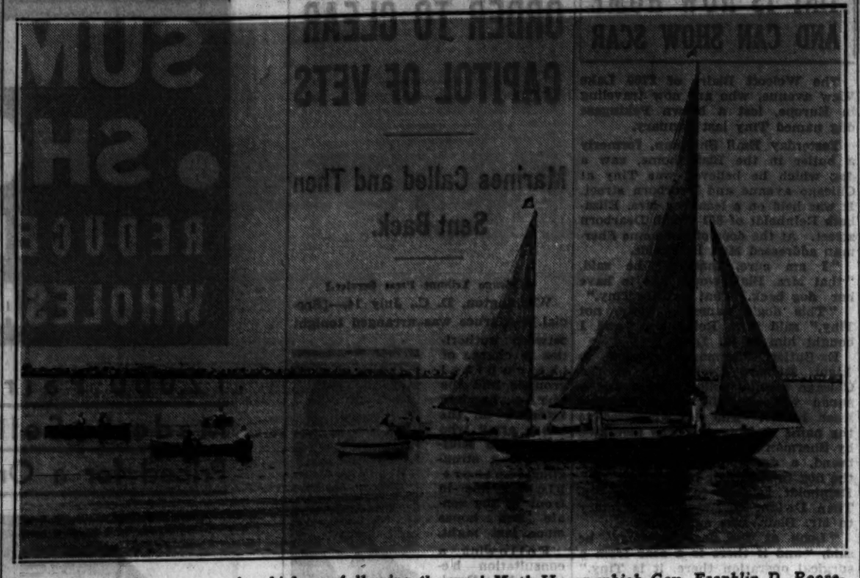
FLEET FOLLOWS DEMOCRATIC NOMINEE



Some of the power craft which are following the yawl Myth II., on which Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt and two of his sons are enjoying their summer vacation. The Myth II. reached Sippican Harbor, Mass., last night, and there the governor announced that he had asked Lieut. Gov. Lehman to take over his inspection trips in New York. [Associated Press Photo.]

BELIEVE ROOSEVELT WILL PICK LEHMAN TO HEAD STATE TICKET

Aboard yacht Marcon, Sippican harbor, Mass., July 14.—[Special.]—Slipping into this blue watered cove tonight at the wheel of the Myth II., Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt announced that he was asking Lieut. Gov. Herbert H. Lehman to take over his usual New York State inspection trips.

By itself the statement was not startling, but from a political viewpoint it was believed to be the precursor of an open declaration that Roosevelt would like to have the lieutenent governor head the state ticket in the fall.

The governor made known his plans only a short time after the O'Connell brothers of Albany, Democratic chieftains who have an alliance with John F. Curry, Tammany's boss and others, had opened a drive for the selection of Mayor John Boyd Thatcher of their city. The governor was believed to be ready to go to the front for Lieut. Gov. Lehman when he felt the psychological time had come.

Gov. Roosevelt and Lieut. Gov. Lehman were thrown into close political association, strangely enough, by former Gov. Smith. It was Mr. Smith's influence which placed him on the ticket with Gov. Roosevelt in 1928.

WALKER'S FRIEND GETS ANOTHER POLITICAL PLUM

New York, July 14.—[Special.]—Very quietly, without any vulgar noise, Mayor "Jimmy" Walker has tossed another fat political plum into the outstretched hands of his personal friend, private physician and European jaunting companion, Dr. William Schroeder Jr., $22,500 a year chairman of the sanitation commission.

So quietly and modestly did the mayor perform this particular piece of benevolence—reshuffling the sanitation commission deck so that Schroeder could have a new, full six year term as sanitation commissioner and as chairman as well—that few persons in the city government were aware of it until today. Persons of some importance in the department of sanitation were amazed when they heard about the mayor's latest display of generosity toward his friend.

Forced to Do Some Shifting.

They learned on investigation that the mayor, without any tiresome publicity, had moved the term of office of Chairman Schroeder into the expiring term of office of former Commissioner Charles S. Hand, resigned; had appointed Schroeder to a new term of six years, beginning July 1, 1932, the term to which the successor of Hand had necessarily to be appointed, and had switched the term of Leonard C. L. Smith, another one of the commissioners, into the term vacated by Schroeder.

When the sanitation commission was organized two years ago the law fixed the terms of the commissioners as two, four, and six years respectively. Charles S. Hand, who quit the department on March 11, 1932, after the mayor had failed to back him up in certain stands he had taken against Schroeder's administration of the office of chairman and after publicly charging "insistent and persistent illegal acts" on Schroeder's part, had the two year term. Schroeder had the six year term and Smith the four year period. Hand, of course, was out and Schroeder's term would have expired on June 30, 1935.

He Will Draw $135,000 in All.

One point which naturally interested the politicians was that Mayor Walker was not likely to be holding down the mayor's job on June 30, 1935, and that it was necessary, therefore, if he desired to be especially kind to his old pal, the doctor, to do something pretty quickly—something that would stick later on. Therefore, on or about June 30, or the date when Charley Hand's term ran out, the mayor, without public proclamation, ordered Dr. Schroeder's term switched around and presented to him a fine, new, six year term at a total of $22,500 a year, or a grand salary total, if Schroeder serves out the full term, of $135,000. Even if Walker walks the plank Schroeder can't be touched except on charges and in the manner provided for by law.

COUNCIL VOTES FOR LEGAL BEER AND CHEAPER ICE

Demands Repeal in Call for Special Session.

ALD. CRONSON.

The beer they hope to get by memorializing Gov. Emmerson to include prohibition repeal in the call for the proposed special session of the legislature to act upon unemployment relief. The attack upon present ice prices was made in a resolution by Ald. B. A. Cronson [4th], which the council adopted, instructing the health committee to investigate the price of ice in Chicago, which is still 60 cents per 100 pounds, the rate of boom days.

There was only one dissenting vote, that of Ald. Wiley W. Mills [37th], to the beer and light wines resolution introduced by Ald. Thomas J. O'Grady [14th]. After pointing out the benefits which would accrue from the repeal of prohibition, both in the collection of revenue and in the opening of employment to between 500,000 and 1,000,000 men, the resolution stated:

"Resolved, that the council go on record as officially requesting Gov. Emmerson to include in any call for a special session for unemployment relief repeal of our prohibition laws, so that if congress does legalize light wines and beer the state of Illinois will be able to derive some benefit financially from such legislation and not be in the position of outlawing within this state something that is legalized by the congress of the United States."

Price of Ice Assailed.

In his resolution Ald. Cronson pointed out that whereas foodstuffs have declined in price from 15 to 60 per cent, ice still costs 60 cents per 100 pounds. Pointing out the necessity of ice to health, especially of babies, and the fact that the present high price is depriving many persons of the use of it, the resolution instructed the health committee to take steps to have ice companies cut their prices to "a reasonable figure."

Ald. Cronson won a victory when the council instructed Corporation Counsel Sexton to proceed with condemnation of approaches for the 47th street subway under the Illinois Central railroad tracks. The south park board, which is obligated by the lake front ordinance to construct the subway, requested a postponement of its obligation, and the suggestion was made that the city drop its condemnation suits, for which a bond issue has already been approved.

Tax Levy Is Approved.

The council passed the 1932 tax levy ordinance for the corporate fund and other city activities, the municipal tuberculosis sanitarium, and library board, but refused to take action on the school board's $75,000,000 tax levy. The tax levies passed are:

Corporate fund	$44,016,000
Sanitarium	2,000,000
Library	1,900,000
Judgment fund	1,100,000
Bond and interest fund	$1,620,062
Firemen's pensions	2,300,000
Police pensions	2,371,550
Municipal employés' pensions	1,689,323

By a 33 to 9 vote the council tabled the motion of Ald. Oscar F. Nelson [46th] to pass the school tax levy also.

"We have no right to hold up this levy," declared Ald. Nelson. "Its passage is a ministerial duty in which the council has no discretion. By holding up the passage we may prevent sale of 1932 tax warrants by the school board.

"Why doesn't the school board retrench as the city has done?" replied Ald. James B. Bowler [25th]. "If we passed the school levy we wouldn't be playing fair with city employés. Many of them are certified from the same civil service lists as are school employés who perform like duties. The city workers have taken a 7% day pay cut, the school employés none at all."

Seek Quieter Milk Wagons.

A resolution by Ald. John Toman [22d], instructing the health committee to endeavor to have the dairy companies of the city replace their noisy delivery wagons with quieter motor trucks, as a means of abating noise, was adopted. Another resolution by Ald. Toman pointed out that there were 2,028 drownings in Chicago from 1917 to 1931, and asked an inquiry into life saving and accident prevention methods. It was referred to the committee on recreation.

Also referred to that committee was the resolution of Ald. John Coughlin [1st] proposing a series of athletic contests, the proceeds to be used for unemployment relief.

Advocate a Superhighway.

The council referred to its traffic committee a resolution introduced by Ald. John A. Massen [48th] advocating the construction of a superhighway in the right of way of the old Illinois and Michigan canal, and the extension of sand fill and outer drives from Foster avenue north to the city limits and from 67th street south and east to the Indiana state line.

The action of the committee on committees in assigning Ald. Henry Sonnenschein [22d] to the committee posts held by the late Ald. Joseph Cepak, whom he succeeded, was approved. The posts are chairmanship of the track elevation committee and membership in the committees on finance, gas, oil and electricity, railway terminals, building and zoning, and police and municipal institutions.

GETS DIVORCE

MRS. MIRIAM C. FISHER.

Judge Joseph Sabath yesterday awarded a divorce to Mrs. Miriam Chickering Fisher from Dr. George Carl Fisher, former member of the faculty of the Northwestern University Medical school. The decree was in the nature of a compromise arranged by Judge Sabath. Dr. Fisher sued for divorce, charging adultery, and testified to seeing his wife in the arms of a family friend. Mrs. Fisher, who is 22 years younger than her husband, filed a cross-bill charging cruelty. Under the terms of the decree, Mrs. Fisher will receive $200, the furniture in the former home of the couple, and her maiden name, Miriam Chickering. She is a niece of Clifford Chickering of Pasadena, Cal.

SMITH DEFEATS EMMERSON FOR COMMITTEEMAN

Ex-Governor Wins Over Present Governor.

A former governor was pitted against the present governor yesterday in a party battle that ended in the election as Republican national committeeman of Frank L. Smith, who was twice refused a seat in the United States senate, then defeated when he sought vindication and again defeated two years ago when he ran for congressman at large.

Gov. Louis L. Emmerson was an unsuccessful contender for the committeemanship, which carries with it the job of managing President Hoover's campaign in Illinois this fall. Former Gov. Len Small, who won the Republican nomination for governor last spring and who will be a candidate in the November election, was present and led the forces which won victory for his old ally, Smith, who went down to defeat with him in the primary of four years ago.

Smith Wins by 14 to 11 Vote.

The national committeeman was elected by the Republican state central committee, due to a deadlock of the delegates to the Republican national convention, who ordinarily select the national committeeman. Fourteen of the 25 committeemen [one is elected from each congressional district] voted for Smith, while 11 voted for Emmerson.

Roy O. West, former national committeeman aligned with the Deneen faction, who was a contender for the post when the convention delegates had jurisdiction, was not placed in nomination yesterday and the Deneen members of the committee threw their votes to Emmerson.

Votes of Committeemen.

FOR SMITH.		FOR EMMERSON.
B. J. Zintak	6th	W. L. Dawson	1st
J. F. Tyrell	6th	C. A. Nance	2d
Edward Goetz	7th	E. B. Elder	3d
J. L. Johnson	11th	Joseph Zientek	5th
John G. Serio	12th	E. Pizatowski	8th
F. J. Stransky, [chairman]	13th	E. L. Richter	9th
C. W. Sandstrom	14th	H. M. Bartlett	10th
J. Westerlund	15th	Andrew Russell	20th
W. R. Allen	16th	R. R. Thomas	22d
Gus J. Johnson	17th	P. B. McCull'gh	23d
R. R. B'kwalter	18th	J. M. Searing	25th
C. H. Fletcher	19th
G. W. Schwaner	21st
O. F. Tuttle	24th
Total	14	Total	11

Each state central committeeman cast the number of Republican votes recorded in his congressional district in the last primary, the result being 849,816 for Smith and 550,530 for Emmerson.

Small and Smith both made speeches after the voting urging unanimous support for the entire Republican ticket and pleading party harmony. A committee was appointed to draw up resolutions of indorsement of the administrations of Hoover and Emmerson.

JAILED FOR 10 YEAR BREACH OF PROMISE DEBT, ASKS RELEASE

New York, July 14.—[Special.]—A 72 year old Texan, who was jailed last March when he came to New York on a business trip, because he had failed to pay a $7,139 judgment filed against him in a breach of promise suit ten years before, petitioned the Supreme court to release him today. He declared that his imprisonment was of no benefit to any one and that he was unable to pay the judgment in any case. In addition he claimed imprisonment was aggravating several physical infirmities. He was Samuel Aron of Fort Worth. Supreme Court Justice Edward S. Dore ordered the sheriff and the plaintiff in the suit to show cause why execution of the judgment should not be set aside and Aron released.

MRS. PATCHEN'S PLEA TO CANCEL DIVORCE DENIED

A divorce obtained July 1 by Gordon Patchen, district manager for the Standard Oil company, from his wife, Barbara, 558 Provident street, Winnetka, was revealed yesterday when attorneys representing Mrs. Patchen filed a petition to set aside the decree before Superior Judge Denis E. Sullivan. Patchen had been given the divorce decree on grounds of desertion by Judge Rudolph F. Desort. Mrs. Patchen's attorneys asserted the proceedings were irregular and should be held void.

Judge Sullivan refused to hear the petition after Attorney Lloyd Faxon, counsel for Patchen, said Judge Desort had heard all the evidence during a hotly contested hearing in February, 1931, but had reserved judgment until recently.

Mrs. Patchen originally filed suit for separate maintenance and her husband answered with a cross bill for divorce, charging misconduct with Miles D. Packard of Detroit, whom his wife had charged with forgery. Packard was called as a witness from jail, and testified against Mrs. Patchen.

Suit Attacks Naming of Receivers by Auditor

That State Auditor Oscar Nelson in appointing receivers for closed banks has been acting under an unconstitutional statute was charged yesterday in Superior court. The bill, filed against the auditor and the defunct Phillip State Bank and Trust company, asks that Nelson and Charles H. Albers, the receiver he appointed, be restrained and that another receiver be appointed by the court. The bill says the depositors are entitled to the appointment of a "disinterested person as receiver."

Rainbow Division Vets of Illinois Hold Rally

The fourteenth anniversary of the victorious attack by American troops in the Champagne region during the late war was observed last night at a reunion in the Hotel Sherman of the Illinois chapter of the Rainbow Division Veterans' association. The Rainbow, or 42d, division played an important part in that assault. The reunion is held yearly to coincide with the national Rainbow division convention which this year is being held in Los Angeles.

TALES OF VACANT ROOMS A MYTH, DECLARES BOGAN

BY OSCAR HEWITT.

Tales about hundreds of vacant rooms in the public school buildings are "a myth," Superintendent of Schools William J. Bogan and Don C. Rogers, director of research and building survey, told the Sargent committee on public expenditures yesterday. "They are not true," both officials insisted.

WM. J. BOGAN. [Mabel Sykes Photo.]

Appearing before Ernest R. Graham, representing the committee, at a session in his office, Director Rogers said there are only 186 vacant rooms. However, according to the Strayer school survey report, there are 200 vacant rooms and over 300 by the count of Business Manager Howard P. Savage. Mr. Graham himself has information that there are "several hundred" rooms vacant.

"But we have the facts," insisted Supt. Bogan. Mr. Rogers explained that the higher count of the Strayer report is perhaps due to a difference in date of inquiry. John O. Rees of the Sargent committee suggested that the variance might be accounted for by difference in a definition of what is a vacant room.

Only 2.5 Per Cent Vacant.

At Mr. Rogers' estimate of $55,000 as the value of a schoolroom, the school board has $10,230,000 worth of vacant rooms, assuming there are 186. If, however, there are 300 rooms which could be made available the investment is $16,500,000.

Director Rogers explained there was some justification for 186 vacant rooms. This number, he said, is only 2.5 per cent of the 7,458 schoolrooms of the city. Few factories or other buildings, he asserted, have a less amount of vacant space.

These admitted 186 vacant rooms would accommodate 7,998 pupils. The Strayer report shows there is a seat shortage of 39,000 in the system. The task of adjusting the pupils to the vacant rooms, according to the Strayer report, belongs to the superintendent's office.

Locates the Schools.

Still more responsibility was placed in the lap of the superintendent at yesterday's session by Trustee Joseph P. Savage. He told Mr. Graham that the superintendent, not the trustees, is responsible for locating the schools and prescribing their size and character, and that he even selected the sites for the schools. The Sargent committee has collected information that there is much unneeded space in certain schools with a consequent large waste to the taxpayers, but Trustee Savage appeared not to know of this information.

Mr. Savage left with the trustees the responsibility for the award of contracts for new buildings and the price paid. No explanation has been made by the trustees of the charges of $1,515,391 in "excess profits" on three junior high schools.

Investigated by Experts.

All of these charges were made by responsible individuals. Gov. Emmerson's tax conference last July hired experts to investigate the Parker junior high school and Mayor Cermak made charges of "excess profits" on the Kelvyn Park and Wright Junior High schools last May. The contract price and "excess profit" on each was alleged to be:

	Contract Cost.	"Excess Profit."
Junior High school—
Parker	$3,295,801	$ 500,000
Kelvyn Park	809,772	463,704
Wright	3,645,341	611,507

The meeting in Mr. Graham's office was called to ascertain whether the trustees of the schools will reduce their appropriations and tax levies of $14,972,535 for 52 school projects. Only $1,567,281 of this amount had been expended to July 1, although there is $10,099,773 in contracts outstanding against these projects.

The bankers and the citizens' committee have told the trustees they cannot borrow the money to proceed with these projects. Yet the trustees have planned to spend $10,099,773 for new schools while it has vacant rooms worth $10,230,000 on its hands, according to the estimates of the superintendent's office.

Asks for Economy.

The Sargent committee has promised to do what it can to get money with which to reopen the schools in September and pay the back salaries to teachers and other employés, if the board will trim its tax levies $15,000,000 at least.

Mr. Graham pleaded with the trustees yesterday for economy. He said:

"Taxes have so increased that it is impossible to pay them, although I believe that nearly all of the 250 members of this committee have paid their taxes.

"The whole country has run wild on spending. If it continues it means the ruin of the nation. If you cut the taxes, then it will be up to our committee to work with the bankers. That is not a simple job.

Tax Levy Can't Be Met.

"Your tax levy cannot be met. The banks cannot and will not loan money on your tax levies."

Mr. Rees indorsed Mr. Graham's stand.

A subcommittee was appointed to determine, if possible, what schools under construction shall be deferred or eliminated. The subcommittee met yesterday afternoon without decision, and will resume its deliberations this morning.

One Loath to Leave

So far as Andrew Ruffin, colored, is concerned, the county jail is an ideal residence. It was with some difficulty that Judge Joseph Sabath persuaded him to accept his release from the alimony club yesterday. Judge Sabath followed his annual practice of releasing as many members of the club as possible before departing on his vacation. He allowed Ruffin and seven others 30 days to meet their alimony arrears, and plans to release six other alimony prisoners today.

"I didn't know there was a heat wave until they brought me down town," Ruffin told Judge Sabath. "It's nice and cool out there, and I get plenty to eat. I'd just as soon stay."

"It may get cooler," Judge Sabath told him, and released him.

Mrs. Josephine Cannone objected to the release of Peter Cannone, 809 Garibaldi place. Her husband's relatives had threatened her, she charged. Cannone was released, however, when Judge Sabath pointed out that he had been guilty of no threats.

TAX OFFICIALS WANT 'COUNSEL,' NOT PRESS AGENT

George F. Nixon and Fred W. Brummel, members of the new board of tax appeals, complained yesterday of the rough reception which the county board finance committee gave Wednesday to their initial request for employment of help and remodeling of their offices.

What they deemed the unkindest cut of all was the designation of their proposed "public relations counsel and statistician" as a press agent.

He's Not a Press Agent.

"Well, what is he?" asked the inquirer.

"I tell you for the last time that a public relations counsel and statistician is not a press agent. We have to have somebody to meet the public and do similar work."

A former newspaper man pointed out that there was some justice in Mr. Nixon's differentiation of the terms. Press agents, during the last primary campaign, were quoted as low as $25 a week, while the board of tax appeals proposes to pay its public relations counsel and statistician $354 a month.

"The attitude of the county board was very unfair in undermining the confidence of the public in a new office, put in here to bring about equitable assessments," Mr. Nixon continued. "We need the confidence of the public."

Architects Giving Work.

He explained that the commissioners had been under a misapprehension in thinking that he and Mr. Brummel proposed to pay $3,200 to Graham, Anderson, Probst & White to draw plans for rearranging their offices. The architects are giving their services, and the $3,200 is the estimated cost of the job.

John M. Pratt, executive director of the Association of Real Estate Taxpayers, appeared yesterday at the state's attorney's office with records of his organization and conferred with Assistant State's Attorneys William Rittenhouse and Grenville Beardsley. School teachers adopted a resolution at a massmeeting Tuesday asking the state's attorney to investigate associations of taxpayers who have been fighting tax collections in the courts.

Seek Grounds for Action.

Believing that their failure to receive their pay was due in part to the so-called tax strikes, the teachers asked an investigation to determine whether there are grounds for prosecution for conspiracy. Neither Mr. Pratt nor the prosecutors made any statement at the end of their conference. They will meet again next week.

Tomorrow noon is the deadline for filing objections in the County court against collection of 1930 taxes. The Tax Service Association of Illinois yesterday filed an objection, citing 34 points in support of the protest, on behalf of 2,200 members of the association.

THREE MEN KILLED IN MINNESOTA WHEN SEAPLANE CRASHES

Duluth, Minn., July 14.—[Special.]—Going into a tailspin in a stiff breeze while returning to Duluth from Spring Park, near Minneapolis, a six passenger Ryan seaplane crashed on the bay front tonight, killing the pilot, a passenger, and the mechanic. The dead are: Henry V. O'Hara, 28, pilot, Duluth; Robert Bean, 18, passenger, Duluth, and Lloyd Rice, mechanic, Virginia.

O'Hara and Bean were killed outright. Rice, unconscious, was taken to a hospital, where he died a few minutes after being admitted. The plane was wrecked, the motor being driven back through the cabin. A witness said the plane was about 300 feet in the air when it suddenly went into a tailspin and fell to the ground.

Student Killed as Plane Falls.

Coldwater, Mich., July 14.—[Special.]—William M. Starkman Jr., 23, Bridgeport, Ill., a student at Tristate college, Angola, was killed late last night when an American Eagle plane he was stunting in fell several thousand feet into a tree. The plane was powered with a Szekely engine. Starkman was a former crew chief at Chanute field, Rantoul, Ill. The ill fated plane figured in an accident a year ago in which one was killed.

2 BILLION BILL FOR RELIEF HITS ANOTHER SNAG

adjournment could be had not later than Saturday.

The question of publicity for loans made by the Reconstruction Finance corporation also came to the fore today when Senator James Couzens [Rep., Mich.], as chairman of the newly appointed senate committee to investigate the corporation's activities, called upon Eugene Meyer, chairman of the board of the corporation, for a list of all loans made and for details concerning dates of maturity, rates of interest and the securities pledged.

Under the terms of the resolution creating the Couzens committee the committee will inform the senate only as to those transactions which it deems to be worthy of official attention. Mr. Meyer, in answering Senator Couzens' request, stated that the work of preparing the required list would begin immediately, but that about two weeks would be required to complete it.

Late tonight a second important bill went the way of the relief bill to a disagreement in conference committee that will require action by the two houses tomorrow.

This was the home loan bank bill with its rider, the Glass bill providing for a billion dollar inflation of the currency. The senate conferees receded on the senate amendment limiting the projected home loan system to four banks and the system of eight to twelve banks was thereby restored. But on the inflation amendment difficulty arose.

Senate conferees insisted on the Glass amendment giving the circulation privilege to government bonds bearing 3½ per cent or less. The house members held out for the Goldsborough bill for which the Glass bill originally was designed as a senate substitute. Already passed by the house, the Goldsborough bill would commit the federal reserve system to use its rediscount and open market purchasing powers to restore the dollar to its 1926 level.

Three Leave to Seek 45 Million Relief Loan

Corporation Counsel William H. Sexton and Charles B. Goodspeed and W. S. Reynolds of the Illinois Relief commission left yesterday afternoon for Washington, where they will seek $45,000,000 in federal aid for Illinois. The delegates will seek immediate assistance for the relief commission, the funds of which are almost exhausted, and will ascertain whether money alloted to Chicago may be used for paying teachers and city employés.

STRAPHANGERS HURT, TOO, WHEN BUDGET CLIMBS

One Day's Pay of Every Four Goes for Taxes.

BY TOM PETTEY.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, July 14.—(AP)—This city's teeming population is made up of the most docile citizenship to be found in any metropolis. The straphangers, clerical workers, and furnished room dwellers of New York City are being bled of their paltry earnings just as systematically as are their wealthier neighbors. They are paying 25 per cent of their daily income to a bureaucratic government, but they could not be awakened to the fact with a patrolman's nightstick.

"Let 'em Sock Rich."

Today those of the straphangers who are still gainfully employed smile fatuously when told the city budget is going to pass the 700 million dollar mark unless the civic and business organizations fighting for budget economies receive their support. They wise crack with the old shibboleth:

"Let 'em sock the rich. They can stand it."

The rich of this city are taking it on the chin, but every blow is eventually felt by the straphanger. Age old economic laws make this inescapable. When budget requests are higher than they were a year ago, and possible income from taxation is dwindling at the rate of almost a hundred million dollars a year, somebody is going to have to pay.

What They Would Find.

If Mr. Big Business Man would call one of his bookkeepers from his high stool and the two of them go out for a look at their extravagant town, these are some of the things they would find:

An army of 148,557 city employes doing an average of less than five hours work a day. This army represents the most complex maze of governmental bureaus in the country and includes one out of every 13 gainfully employed persons in the city. It takes greathearted taxpayers to keep this horde at work at their same 1929 boom time salaries.

The investigators would find the city spending approximately $2,000,000 a day for its municipal government. They would find that while almost everyone else in every walk of life has felt the pinch of reduced incomes, the city workers and their bureau heads have retained their old salary scale.

120 Expensive Limousines.

Looking into odd corners they would find that a million dollars a year is being spent to provide luxury automobiles for the bureaucrats. There are 120 expensive limousines manned by day and night chauffeurs and serviced by battalions of city mechanics, in addition to fleets of smaller cars.

Crossing the bridges to Brooklyn they would encounter four police caravans, nine lieutenants and thirty-six sergeants on duty, but find that the only shepherding of automobiles was being done by a platoon of lowly traffic patrolmen.

If they wanted to really look into the bridge situation they would learn that there are 231 bridgetenders on the payrolls at $432,120, and it takes at least three to tend one bridge no matter how small the creek.

Mayor's Staff Gets $80,000.

A visit to Mayor James J. Walker's place of business in city hall would be instructive. Mr. Walker has an $80,000 a year staff and that is just twice as much as the average business executive pays for the services of the same number and same type of workers. The mayor's salary has climbed from $15,000 to $40,000 in this town and there is no indication that it is going to shrink any in the future.

They would find a large number of "relief" workers in the many city bureaus for this is vacation season. If they called at the offices of department heads they would find that the vacation season for a city executive lasts a month each year and sometimes considerably longer.

Stopping by police headquarters scores of $3,000 a year policemen would be encountered doing the work of $10 a week office boys and messengers, but they would hear a lot about the need of a larger police army to keep down crime in the city.

Find Plenty of Bosses.

Over behind the city hall in the bureau of records count of noses would reveal four bosses and twenty clerks engaged in overseeing the work of 20 more lowly clerks.

A trip to the corporation counsel's office would uncover a department carrying the imposing title of the bureau for the collection of arrears in personal taxes. This bureau is a $50,000 a year bureau—but it collects less than $20,000 a year.

New York city now has a debt of about 1 billion 755 million dollars. This debt has grown at the rate of about $70,000,000 a year for the last five years and considerably faster during the last two years.

PROPOSE TUITION CHARGE AT CRANE NORMAL SCHOOL

A special committee of school trustees and school officials will meet this afternoon in the offices of Supt. William J. Bogan to discuss ways of cutting expenditures on the educational side of the system. Board members on the committee are Mrs. W. S. Heffernan, James A. Hemingway, and H. W. Caldwell.

The committee was chosen at the meeting of the trustees last Wednesday at the suggestion of Mrs. Heffernan. It is understood that school officials are working on a plan to charge tuition at the Normal and Crane colleges. Lewis E. Myers, president of the board, has proposed that the institutions be abandoned.

In the 1932 school budget, $547,811 is appropriated for the Crane Junior college and $273,893 for the Normal school.

There were approximately 1,100 students at the Normal school last year and 3,300 at Crane. It is understood that board officials have proposed a $200 tuition for the former school and $175 for the latter.

'CABLEGRAM CON' MAN SENTENCED TO PENITENTIARY

Tully Warner, 29 years old, 2123 Ballou street, known to police as the "cablegram confidence man," was sentenced to serve from one to 10 years in the Joliet penitentiary yesterday by Judge George Fred Rush in the Criminal court. Sentence was passed after a jury, which had deliberated all night, found Warner guilty of taking $1,100 from the secretary of Gordon Miehle, president of the Miehle Printing Press and Manufacturing company, by use of the cablegram racket.

Testimony showed that the secretary, Miss Laura M. Brusenbach, received a cablegram on March 24 which purported to come from Mr. Miehle, who was in Havana at the time. The message ordered her to give a "Mr. Sand" $3,840 for seven diamonds. Warner appeared at the Miehle offices at 14 South Damen avenue next day and said he was "Sand." He left an envelop supposed to contain the diamond, and accepted $1,100 as a down payment.

When he left, Miss Brusenbach found that the envelop contained pebbles and notified the police. Warner was trapped when he attempted to repeat the trick on Miss Alice Solek, secretary to Albert J. Pixley, restaurant owner, who was also out of the city.

COMPRESSED AIR BOMB EXPLODES, KILLS INVENTOR

William Strube, 55 years old, president of the Strube Machine company, 337 West 25th street, was killed yesterday when a compressed air shell which he was demonstrating exploded in the company shop. Strube had invented the shell and hoped to substitute it for dynamite as an explosive for excavating and other commercial uses.

Frank Armstrong, a representative of the Safety Mining company, was contemplating purchase of the shell and had gone to the shop for a demonstration. He said Strube had told him that 10,000 pounds pressure was necessary to explode the shell. When the indicator showed 6,000 pounds the shell exploded and decapitated Strube, Armstrong said. A fragment narrowly missed Armstrong and shop windows were broken by the explosion.

FRENCH COLONY HERE OBSERVES BASTILLE DAY

The French of Chicago yesterday celebrated Bastille day, the "Fourth of July" of their mother country. It was on July 14, 1789, that a popular uprising destroyed the Bastille prison, regarded as the symbol of monarchial despotism.

Rene Weiller, consul for France, and Mrs. Weiller held a reception in the consulate in the TRIBUNE Tower during the morning, during which a toast to France's president was drunk in real champagne. In an address the consul pointed to July 14 as a memorable day in civilization's struggle for individual freedom. Edmond Meyer, vice consul for France, and Capt. Alfred Soriano, president of the French war veterans of Chicago, were the speakers on a special luncheon program of the Kiwanis club at the Hotel Sherman. Last night, under the auspices of local French societies, there was a lawn party in Pilsen park, 26th street and Albany avenue.

MINERS' CHIEF SAYS $5 SCALE BEST POSSIBLE

Springfield, Ill., July 14.—(AP)—President John H. Walker of the Illinois district, United Mine Workers of America, today declared that the $5 daily wage scale to be voted upon by union members Saturday is the "very best that it is possible to get from the coal operators at this time."

Walker made the statement in answer to protests against the wage scale by several thousand miners here yesterday. Those opposed to the proposed wage agreement labeled it a "yellow dog contract."

"If this agreement is not ratified I sincerely hope that you may be able later to get a better one, but I am fearful of what may take place in event this tentative agreement is not ratified," Walker said.

The union president asserted that even under the $5 scale the coal operators will be working under a handicap.

BIBLE GROUP ON BERMUDA CRUISE MAROONS SATAN

Songs Instead of Jazz; Bar Is Soda Fountain.

New York, July 14.—[Special.]—The Rev. Dr. Donald Grey Barnhouse stood upon the high deck of the Transylvania as she steamed down the river this afternoon and, as he looked about him and listened, he smiled, for he saw and heard that his work was good.

REV. DONALD GREY BARNHOUSE.

Gratefully he listened to the young people praying that they might conduct themselves in a thoroughly Christian manner on this "revelation cruise" to Bermuda, and again he smiled, for he knew that as cruise organizer he had done much to make any other conduct impossible for the 600 members of the American Bible Conference association.

Instead of dancing to the raucous strains of a jazz orchestra, the young people were having a meeting and lifting their voices in the song, "There Is a Happy Land, Far, Far Away."

Soda Fountain for Bar.

Instead of gathering at the bars these young people were taking refreshment respectably at a shining new white enameled soda fountain set up in the veranda cafe, or consuming soft drinks at a smokeroom bar, which for this cruise had been rendered pure and good. All of the other bars were locked up and so were the wines, liquors and cigars.

Dancing, motion pictures, and card playing also were prohibited.

Chicagoans Among Leaders.

"It's all new to us, sir," said Adam Wylie, assistant barman, when asked if he had any experience at dispensing ice cream sodas or cherry sundaes. Nevertheless, this Anchor liner crew set out to please the young people, who are being led by Horner Hammontree of Chicago, and addressed by Capt. Reginald Wallis, field secretary of the Dublin Y. M. C. A.; William Allen Dean, pastor of Aidan Union church, Philadelphia; Harry A. Ironside, Moody Memorial church, Chicago; Roy Talmage Brumbaugh, First Presbyterian church, Tacoma, Wash., and Dr. Will H. Houghton, Calvary Baptist church, here.

GRAND JURY FOREMAN IN SWEAT BOX DEATH RECEIVES THREATS

Jacksonville, Fla., July 14.—(AP)—A. F. Gorman, foreman of the Duval county grand jury which recently indicted two prison camp officers for the "sweat box" death of Arthur Maillefert, young New Jersey convict, received a threat of death through the mails today.

The crudely lettered note told Gorman "there are ways" of dealing with people who "don't mind their own business," and warned if he persisted in the investigation of prison camp conditions he would "go out, but not by the chain."

Young Maillefert strangled to death in the sweat box at Sunbeam prison camp, near here, a chain about his neck and his feet in stocks.

The letter, printed with a pencil, was postmarked from Starke, Fla., near Raiford, where the prison farm is located, and was signed "You Know Who."

But Gorman insisted he didn't "know who." He expressed the belief that it was the work of a crank, "but then," he added, "it's fanatics who bump people off."

FIND WRECKED PLANE IN MEXICO; 1 AMERICAN DEAD

MEXICO CITY, July 14.—(AP)—An American, believed to be a survivor of the American plane piloted by Clarence McElroy, Medaryville, Ind., which has been missing since June 27, was found by an Indian woodsman five miles east of San Geronimo late today, a dispatch from there said.

The dispatch said the man was too weak to talk but he made signs he was the victim of an airplane crash and that the other victims would be found deeper in the jungle.

The man appeared to be starving, the Indian reported. An expedition was sent out from Geronimo and found one dead man, the dispatch said, but it was unable to determine whether the survivor was McElroy or his companion, Roy Gordon, an American of Tegucigalpa, Honduras.

McElroy was taking the plane to Honduras for delivery.

BLIND DRUGGIST ACCUSES EX-WIFE OF BEATING HIM

Harry Lapping, 50 years old, who became the proprietor of a drug store at 920 Maxwell street when he lost his sight four years ago, appeared before Municipal Judge Edgar A. Jonas yesterday as a complainant against his former wife, Mrs. Rose Brein, 111 South Central Park avenue.

His face and head were swathed in bandages. The wounds, he said, were inflicted by Mrs. Brein, who attacked him in his store with a broken bottle two days ago after she had taunted him about his blindness.

Mrs. Brein obtained a continuance of the case until July 27 because of the recent death of her father.

Lapping formerly was a clerk in the county commissioners' office and under Mayor Dever he was master of the Maxwell street market.

"WHAT IS A TERRAPLANE?" ASKS ARTHUR BRISBANE

BECAUSE he knows people, their burdens, their hopes, their yearnings, the most widely read newspaper writer in America is quick to report the rumor of a new-type automobile and say, "What is a 'terraplane'?..."

Because he knows economics and the automobile business, he concludes, "It takes courage to start anything new just now, more particularly a new automobile. But there is always room at the top, and opportunity, for there is no crowd there to impede your movements."

Is Arthur Brisbane right? Is there a place today for a car to fit the word which he asks about? Does the man accustomed to costly, heavy car luxury and "road sense" want the same thing at a price to fit his 1932 purse? Does a generation which planes on water and in the air want the same gliding swiftness, the same fluid smoothness in land transportation? Is any motor car factory daring enough in engineering, quick enough on its feet, independent enough in executive control to produce a 'terraplane'?

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., July 14.—[Special.]—It was learned today that the St. Lawrence waterway treaty to be signed shortly by the United States and Canada contains a safeguarding clause which makes possible a limited reopening of the Chicago water diversion question in event later developments disclose that the flow permitted under the pact is insufficient for succeasful barge operations on the Illinois waterway.

No details regarding the scope of the section or the possible flow of water Chicago might eventually be allotted were available today. It became known, however, that the treaty does limit Chicago to a fixed diversion, which, it is understood, follows closely the Supreme court decree handed down in 1925. Under that decree Chicago eventually is to be limited to 1,500 cubic second feet at Lockport, plus domestic pumpage, now averaging 1,700 feet per second.

Canadians Hold Out.

The Canadian government held out for several weeks against the insertion in the treaty of any language which might modify the Supreme court decree. State department officials urged that the diversion section of the treaty be so drawn that it would be possible at some later date to increase the flow for navigation purposes, if it were found that the diversion permitted by the Supreme court was insufficient.

The deadlock over the Chicago diversion matter continued for several weeks after other major points covered by the treaty had been agreed upon. Canada insisted that the terms of the Supreme court should be written into the treaty. Canadian officials stated their willingness, however, to sign a treaty which would preserve the mandate of the Supreme court with regard to diversion. They said also that they had no objection to language which would permit modification of the diversion from time to time as requirements for sanitation might change in the future.

Hoover Discusses Question.

Upon the insistence of officials of the Mississippi Valley association and senators and representatives of states bordering the lakes to the gulf waterway, the state department continued to urge that the diversion section be so worded that in event the treaty did not permit a sufficient flow to operate the Illinois waterway then steps could be taken to discuss the question of increasing the flow. It was reported today that President Hoover discussed this phase of the question personally with Canadian officials.

Officials interested in the diversion have been told that while the diversion is held down arrangements have been made which the administration believes will prove satisfactory to the Mississippi valley and Chicago. They have been informed that the door to an increase above the 1,500 feet permitted by the Supreme court has not been closed. It is not contemplated that this section of the treaty will be affected until after the sewage treatment works are completed at Chicago and the Lake Michigan flow has been reduced to a minimum.

Years Before Cut Comes.

Under the Supreme court decree, Chicago is given several years in which to complete sewage treatment works before the diversion is cut to 1,500 feet. On that date the maximum average flow whould be 1,500 plus domestic pumpage, which might run up to 2,000 feet by that time. If, as contended by the Mississippi valley group, the Illinois waterway cannot be operated with this combined 3,200 to 3,500 cubic second feet, then an application for an increase could be made. Under the treaty the flow could be increased in dry weather, just so the average of 1,500 was not exceeded.

Senators from Illinois and other Mississippi valley states are awaiting publication of the text of the treaty before making any statements as to its acceptability. Several said today that unless the treaty makes possible a substantial increase in the diversion for navigation purposes in event congressional legislation of that nature can be passed, they will vigorously oppose the entire treaty. In many quarters the administration was criticized for agreeing to any limitation being placed on the diversion.

Many Questions Included.

It was said today that virtually every great lakes controversial question between Canada and the United States has been included in the treaty. The diversion of water at Niagara is arranged for. It is understood that the treaty arranges for the construction of compensation works in the St. Clair and Niagara rivers to restore and maintain lake levels.

It was apparent today actual publication of the treaty negotiated by President Hoover, Secretary Stimson, Hanford MacNider, American minister to Canada; Assistant Secretary of State James Rogers, and Canadian officials will stir up a storm of criticism.

CINGRANI CONVICTED OF STREATOR ROBBERY —3 LEAVE FOR PRISON

Ottawa, Ill., July 14.—[Special.]—Frank Cingrani, 37, alleged instigator of the plot to rob the Union National bank of Streator of $52,000 last May, was convicted on a charge of robbery with a gun by a Circuit court jury today. Sheriff E. J. Welter left at once for the penitentiary at Joliet with C. C. Goss, Streator assistant police chief; George Kmetz, Streator policeman, and Joe Casmano, who were jointly indicted with Cingrani, but who had pleaded guilty. The policemen are under sentences of one to twenty years.

Cingrani's attorney, George Sprenger of Peoria, made a motion for a new trial for his client, which was set for argument July 23.

Evidence for the state was concluded with testimony of Sheriff Welter. Sprenger sprung a surprise when he rested the defense case without introducing testimony. The jurors deliberated only forty minutes.

Goss and Kmetz turned state's evidence. They were called to the stand yesterday by Russell O. Hanson, state's attorney, as his principal witnesses against Cingrani. They testified that Cingrani was the instigator of the plot and told of sitting in on conferences when the robbery was planned. Six Chicago gunmen then were brought to Streator to commit the robbery, he testified.

Terms of the treaty whereby this country agrees to aid Canada in financing the Welland canal and to credit Canada with funds expended on old St. Lawrence and Welland projects are certain to become targets for congressional fire.

May Contest for Power.

A big congressional battle is slated to come later when legislation is introduced to turn the power installation in the international sections of the river over to the state of New York for a cash consideration. Opposition to permitting New York state to hog the entire horse power accruing to the United States as a result of the expenditure of several hundred million dollars on the seaway and power project is growing. It was learned today that an arrangement may be proposed whereby other states would be permitted to purchase the power at the same price it would be made available to New York citizens.

WORLD FLYERS BACK IN BERLIN EN ROUTE HOME

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, July 14.—James Mattern and Bennett Griffin, American world flyers on their way home, today arrived at Berlin from Moscow as passengers on the air line and immediately went on a shopping tour. They were still wearing the outfits with which they started their world flight from New York and which ended in the Russian marshes near Minsk. Tonight they spoke over the radio.

Griffin still has a patch on his forehead and Mattern's right hand is bandaged. Though Griffin seemed weak, Mattern was lively and acted as spokesman for both. They intend to spend a few days in Berlin to study details of the stretch from Berlin to Alaska to be ready to make a full flight next year.

DIAMOND BROKER ROBBED.

Irving Shor, a diamond broker, was robbed of $34 and 12 diamond rings valued at $1,200 yesterday by two bandits who followed him into the vestibule of his home at 1318 Winnemac avenue.

Water Carriers Are Fearful of Government Regulation

New York, July 14.—[Special.]—The fear of government regulation is threatening to destroy or halt the development of the inland waterways, particularly the through traffic utilization of the Illinois waterway, in the opinion of large lake and barge line operators here.

The attitude of the water carriers was expressed by Reginald G. Narelle, president of the Seaboard-Great Lakes corporation, coast, canal, and great lakes operators, in an interview today. Mr. Narelle called the threats of water traffic regulation, made through the press by railway executives and such individuals as T. V. O'Connor of the United States shipping board, as well as the clause in the platform of the Republican party stating that "all (forms of transportation) should be subjected to appropriate and constructive regulation," a menace to the immediate expansion of the waterways.

Hesitate to Expand.

Asked whether such threats would act as a deterrent to the building of new ships and barge fleets and the preparation of New York to Chicago carriers to extend their lines through the Illinois waterway to St. Louis, Mr. Narelle replied:

"It is only natural that any industry would refrain from any expansion program while vague general threats of possible legislation are current. As we are totally unable to judge exactly how much control of our activities the legislation may take, we are naturally most hesitant to take any further steps toward expansion."

Mr. Narelle said the lake and barge line operators were fearful of and did not desire any regulation, but he added that transportation is in such a chaotic state as to justify the creation of a national commission to study all forms of transportation, with a view of laying down policies whereby each could operate in its natural economic sphere. The fundamental reason for the present conditions in the transportation field is the restrictive legislation operating against the railways, according to Mr. Narelle.

Sees Unreasonable Burden.

"The interstate commerce act was created to stop the abuses that were generated by the rail carriers themselves," Mr. Narelle said. "However, times and economic conditions have changed, and no substantial modifications have been made to meet present day conditions. Such restrictive legislation as the 'recapture clause,' in my opinion, imposes an unreasonable burden on rail carriers."

Mr. Narelle expressed opposition to the proposed revision of the Panama canal act to permit the railways to engage in water transportation. He quoted reports of the New York Barge Canal Terminal association, the Rivers and Harbors congress, and a speech by United States Senator Burton of Ohio, delivered in 1909, setting forth instances of the railways lowering their rates until the water carriers were forced out of business and then raising them.

Rail Rate Cuts Assailed.

"During the last eighteen months," he said, "the rail carriers have been making slashing reductions in their rates to meet water competition, apparently wholly without regard to whether such rates would be compensatory. In view of the fact that statistics indicate the water carriers lift less than 1 per cent of the tonnage of the entire United States, it would seem that the rail carriers are curtailing their own revenues at a time when they can least afford it."

Mr. Narelle cited a statement of the interstate commerce commission in the 15 per cent rate reduction case that "The most effective remedy for the immediate ills of the railroads is the economic recovery of the country." The commission might have added, he said, that "There can be no economic recovery of the country until the railroads are put back upon a proper earning basis, which can only be done by a restoration of the reductions made in their freight rates."

Canned Goods Slash Cited.

The case of the rate reduction on canned goods from the great lakes states to the eastern seaboard was cited by Mr. Narelle as a typical example of the railroads cutting their own throats. The total annual traffic is 600,000 tons and the maximum that could be hauled by the lake-canal carriers is 30,000 tons. The railroads, by reducing their rates, lost a revenue of $2,000,000 to save a maximum of $250,000 that might have gone to the water carriers, according to Mr. Narelle.

FLOOD DROWNS FRENCH JOBLESS ASLEEP IN TUNNEL

[Copyright: 1932: By the New York Times.]

NICE, France, July 14.—A sudden rise of the River Paillon, resulting from the recent heavy rains swept an unknown number of derelicts to death today marring the celebration of Bastile day.

The derelicts habitually sleep in a mile long underground tunnel which conducts the river through the city to the sea. While gay throngs of merrymakers were dancing in the streets tonight cries for help issued from a manhole. A fire department rescue squad on descending into the tunnel found the normally low sluggish stream grown into a raging torrent.

Seven derelicts, who were saved from drowning with great dimculty, declared that many of their companions, surprised in their sleep by the sudden flood, certainly perished and were carried out to the sea.

BOUND OVER AS BURGLAR.

Peter Vasile, alias Beck, 20 years old, 856 Wilson avenue, was held to the grand jury yesterday on five charges of burglary by Judge J. William Brooks. Vasile was arrested on suspicion and taken to his room, where police found several thousand dollars in loot.

BIRTHDAY PARTY FOR TEDDY AIDS FREE ICE FUND

Gift Provides Entertainment Idea for Mothers.

Teddy accomplished considerable yesterday. He's not only had a birthday, but provided $3.60 for ice for poor children so their mothers can keep their milk sweet, also providing an idea for mothers who wonder what to do to make their boys' birthday parties successful.

The contribution of $3.60 to THE TRIBUNE'S Free Ice Fund came with the single notation, "Teddy's Birthday Party."

Can't Stop Birthdays.

Birthdays are something that keep going on no matter what the depression does. Birthday parties for youngsters, just about as inevitable as birthdays, may well be made much happier parties if all the guests are asked to bring a few cents to contribute to the Free Ice fund. If a boy or girl is 8 years old, and has eight guests, who bring 8 cents each, for instance, that means a good deal of ice.

It isn't only the babies in city tenements, whose parents are chronically in need, who are suffering this summer because no ice is there to keep sweet the milk on which they depend for life. Babies in families who in ordinary times have provided well for their children now are victims of poverty. Many of these children, social workers point out, have the natural qualities for good citizenship. If their diet is not proper they will develop rickets. Ice is an essential in summer time for small children.

Donations Acknowledged.

Yesterday's donations to the Free Ice fund were:

Mrs. M. A. S.; Ethelyn C. Hopkins [$10 each]	$ 20.00
Delta Phi Club of Auburn Park; Myra L. Burns [$5 each]	10.00
Teddy's birthday party	3.60
Harry F. Klotz; Anna Kobilis [$3 each]	6.00
Orange-Crushys	1.30
Anonymous	1.00
Total	$ 39.90
Previously acknowledged	299.44
Grand total	$339.34

The Delta Phi club of Auburn Park, in addition to sending $5 for the Free Ice fund, sent $10 for the Camp Algonquin fund, bringing the grand total of contributions to the summer vacation camp fund to $1,808.43.

Donations to either fund may be addressed to the cashier of THE TRIBUNE, at Tribune Tower, and will be acknowledged as received.

WAKE UP YOUR LIVER BILE— WITHOUT CALOMEL

And You'll Jump Out of Bed in the Morning Rarin' to Go

If you feel sour and sunk and the world looks punk, don't swallow a lot of salts, mineral water, oil, laxative candy or chewing gum and expect them to make you suddenly sweet and buoyant and full of sunshine. For they can't do it. They only move the bowels and a mere movement doesn't get at the cause. The reason for your down-and-out feeling is your liver. It should pour out two pounds of liquid bile into your bowels daily.

If this bile is not flowing freely, your food don't digest. It just decays in the bowels. Gas bloats up your stomach. You have a thick, bad taste, and your breath is foul. pain often breaks out in blemishes. Your head aches and you feel dizzy and out. Your whole system is poisoned.

It takes those good old CARTER'S LITTLE LIVER PILLS to get these two pounds of bile flowing freely and make you feel up and up. They contain wonderful, harmless, gentle vegetable extracts, amazing when it comes to making the bile flow freely.

But don't ask for liver pills. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills. Look for the name Carter's Little Liver Pills on the red label. Resist a substitute. Buy at all stores. © 1932 C. M. Co.

BRITISH CABINET WORKS STEADILY ABOARD LINER

Meet on Empire Trade Program Twice Daily.

BY JOHN STEELE.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

ABOARD S. S. EMPRESS OF BRITAIN, July 14.—This is a working ship. What is almost the British cabinet, headed by Stanley Baldwin, lord president of the council and deputy prime minister, is meeting twice daily to work out a program for the imperial economic conference which opens at Ottawa on July 21, and little time is left for play.

Today the first "cabinet meeting" was held at 10:30 o'clock, at which time a plan of work for the rest of the voyage was outlined. This afternoon the cabinet met British industrial advisers, Lord Weir, Sir Gilbert Lyle, Sir Alan Anderson, Sir Douglas Newton, and Sir Edward Davison. The ministers discussed with them what Britain wants to obtain in the way of trade concessions from the dominions and what she can afford to offer in return.

Meet Indians Next.

Tomorrow morning the British delegation will confer with Indian delegates and in the afternoon with Southern Rhodesia's representatives.

The most active member of the whole delegation is J. H. Thomas, British minister for dominions, who is playing deck tennis, quoits and walking every spare moment. Baldwin, between meetings, spends his time resting and reading detective novels while Viscount Hailsham, secretary for war, sits in his deck chair studying documents. Other members of the delegation are rarely seen.

Irish Minister Aboard.

Among the passengers is H. M. Pollock, finance minister for Northern Ireland, who is joining the rest of the Ulster delegation, which went on the Laurentic, at Ottawa. There is also a large party of New Zealand experts and advisers who will join the main delegation at the Canadian capital.

Many experts are frankly pessimistic as to the possibility of reconciling the conflicting claims of interests, but all are determined to do what is possible to divert as much world trade as possible into empire channels.

Demand Butter Quota.

VICTORIA, B. C., July 14.—(AP)—A butter quota will be the demand of New Zealand at the Ottawa imperial conference, said T. W. Goodfellow, managing director of the New Zealand Cooperative Dairy company, Ltd. He arrived today on the liner Aorangi. He suggested an empire cooperative producers' marketing organization to handle the marketing of butter and other dairy products.

A PURE HEART PROVES UNDOING OF TWO SLICKERS

Because his heart was pure, R. A. Bastable, station agent for the North Western railroad at Malta, Ill., circumvented the wiles of two Chicago slickers yesterday. He didn't know that his bank roll was in danger until police told him so.

Mr. Bastable is spending his vacation in Chicago. He was looking up at the elevated at State and Van Buren streets when Charles Arends, 27 years old, 129 West 103d place, appeared at his side. Arends was juggling what looked like a large roll of greenbacks.

"Do you happen to know," he asked Bastable confidentially, "where a fellow could find a good burlesque show? I'm up from the country to have a good time."

Instead of answering, Mr. Bastable hurried to the police and pleaded that they save this youth from himself. Sergt. William Hennessey went back to the corner with him. In a nearby poolroom they found Arends with William Graham, 29 years old, 415 Belden avenue.

The pair confessed that Arend's country boy pose was designed to entice strangers into a game of pool, at which Graham admitted he is pretty good. While they were talking, Julius Hatalsa, 9002 Kingston avenue, appeared and charged that the pair had just taken his last dollar in a pool game. He signed a complaint charging confidence game, and Arends and Graham went to cells. Mr. Bastable went over to Grant park to look at the fountain.

Delinquent U. S. Taxpayers Warned They Face Arrest

Frank Worack, deputy collector of internal revenue for Lake county, Illinois, sent 468 delinquent income tax notices to citizens of his district yesterday. The notices bear on 1930 taxes and the recipients were notified that they would be given five days in which to confer with Worack before warrants for their arrest are issued.

British West Point Holds Graduation Exercises

Cadets of the Sandhurst Military college, Camberley, Surrey, passing in review before Field Marshal Sir George Milne at the graduation exercises. Sandhurst is the British counterpart of West Point, except that admission is obtained by social standing instead of appointment after competitive examinations, and furnishes most of the officers of the British army. Cadets are received from British colonies and possessions, and the turbans worn by some of the cadets indicate that they are from India.

DE VALERA TO GO TO LONDON FOR TARIFF PARLEY

Premier Accepts Bid for Compromise.

LONDON, July 15.—[Friday.]—(AP)—Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald of Great Britain has offered to meet President Eamon de Valera of the Irish Free state in London to discuss differences between the two countries, arising out of the Free State's failure to pay land annuities to Britain and the subsequent retaliatory tariff measure. Mr. de Valera, it is understood, accepted the invitation and he will come to London today.

The invitation to the Republican president resulted from a conference at No. 10 Downing street last night, when the prime minister, the lord chancellor and the attorney general discussed the situation with William Norton, chairman of the free state Labor party, and English labor leaders. The latter included George Lansbury and Sir Stafford Cripps.

Suggests Compromise.

Norton said after the conference that he had explained the "terms of a suggested compromise" with MacDonald, but he declined to disclose its details to the press. He added President de Valera would arrive in London at 6 p. m. today.

It was assumed that the compromise was a plan which Mr. Norton said at Holyhead, Wales, while on the way to London, he had been authorized to bring here and which was acceptable to the free state. He said at Holyhead that he thought the plan would be acceptable to the British.

Dublin Sees Hope.

DUBLIN, Irish Free State, July 15.—[Friday.]—(AP)—A scheme for investigation by a tribunal of differences between the Irish Free State and Great Britain was proposed today after the Free State had gone ahead with plans for a tariff war with Britain.

Acceptance by President de Valera of an invitation to confer with Prime Minister MacDonald in London was regarded in political circles here as hopefully altering the situation.

The compromise plan, which William Norton, chairman of the Free State Labor party, carried to London is understood to provide for a tribunal of four members, two nominated by the British government and two by the Free State, who would discuss the situation and report to both governments.

The dail yesterday adopted the president's bill to impose special tariffs on British goods in reprisal for the British land annuity taxes. It must go to the senate before it becomes operative.

British Tariff in Effect.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, July 14.—The new 20 per cent duties imposed on Irish Free State food imports came into operation at midnight tonight. Steamers laden with thousands of cattle, sheep, and hogs and thousands of tons of dairy products raced across the Irish sea endeavoring to make English ports before the customs offices closed.

The Cork steamer Kinsale, which was delayed by fog, arrived at Fishguard, Wales, half an hour too late. Its cargo of 270 tons of dairy produce thus was the first dutiable consignment under the new tariff.

RETIRED BANKER WINS SUIT FOR $879,000 FROM SHIPPING BOARD

New York, July 14.—(AP)—A verdict of $879,195.58 for Henry P. Talmadge, 85 year old retired banker, in his suit against the United States shipping board was returned today by a federal jury.

A motion to set the verdict aside was denied. Special Assistant United States Attorney General O. P. M. Brown, who appeared for the shipping board, said the case would be carried to the United States Supreme court if necessary.

Talmadge set forth that during the war he loaned $1,139,000 to the American Ship Building Company of Brunswick, Ga., and took an assignment of all money to become due to the company from the shipping board under a contract then pending. He acknowledged signing a release to the shipping board, but said he had done so under a misapprehension and because of misrepresentations made to him.

Talmadge sued for $479,000, with interest from 1918, contending that such a sum had been paid by the shipping board to the ship building company, instead of to him, despite the assignment, and that as the ship building company had failed and no longer was in existence, his only recourse was to seek recovery from the board.

Mrs. Alvin T. Hert Takes Over G. O. P. Job Today

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, July 14.—The second day's investigation into the death of Mrs. Katherine Gordon-Ellis from an overdose of sleeping medicine leaves the mystery as complete as ever. An autopsy will be performed tomorrow.

It is understood that while the police have no tangible evidence against the theory of suicide or accident, they have clews which introduce a strong suspicion of homicide.

The police commissioner today questioned a number of persons, including Katherine's divorced husband, Dr. Louis Gordon-Ellis, fashionable dentist, her lawyer, nurses of the American hospital, Neuilly, and especially "Pa" and "Ma" Wilson, proprietors of the Dingo bar, where Katherine for a year played the rôle of Lady Bountiful. It is the feeling of investigators that the key to the tragedy is in that widely known Montparnasse bar.

The police also are anxious to question two young women whom Katherine took to her home some time before taking the fatal dose. These women, whose names are known, left hurriedly for Spain by car a short time after Katherine's death.

Body of Missing Child Found Near His Home

Minneapolis July 14.—(AP)—The body of Leslie Delano, 20 months old child missing since Friday, was found in a sewage cesspool near his home late today. The child had been sought by several hundred persons, including 125 Minnesota National Guardsmen who were ordered in the search Tuesday by Gov. F. B. Olson.

BAIN POLITICAL HOOKUP BROUGHT OUT IN TRIAL

Receiver Tells $884,000 Tax Deposits.

Political phases of John Bain's banking business were introduced in the evidence yesterday in the trial of Bain, his two sons, and his son-in-law. The four are on trial before Judge John M. O'Connor on an indictment charging them with conspiracy to defraud depositors of $12,000,000 through the operations of the twelve banks Bain formerly headed. The case is being heard without a jury.

IRWIN T. GILRUTH

Irwin T. Gilruth, receiver for the twelve banks, testified that Bain, prominent in politics and a member of the south park board as well as a banker, was authorized by the county treasurer to collect taxes. During May, 1931, the month before the bank chain was closed, the twelve banks collected $884,233 from taxpayers and did not turn this money over to the county. The cash was not on hand when the state auditor closed the banks.

Gives Bond to Park Board.

Gilruth testified that the day before the banks were closed Bain gave $100,000 in bonds to the south park board to safeguard a deposit by the board of that amount. Another deposit of the south park board was $25,000 in the Chicago Lawn State bank, a Bain institution, and this is regarded as a preferred claim, Gilruth said.

The receiver said eleven of the Bain banks had paid obligations of $1,000,000 to the Continental Illinois Bank and Trust company since they were closed and the collateral has been returned. None of the collateral consisted of notes of John Bain or of his subsidiary companies, the witness stated.

Shows Doubtful Assets.

A statement of the condition of the Bain banks prepared by Lester Stark, an auditor employed by the state's attorney, showed worthless and doubtful assets of $6,243,951 in the twelve Bain banks, of which $3,688,975 was in loans or discounts made by Bain, his family and associates, his subsidiary companies, and officers and directors of the banks. Real estate loans totaling $6,790,872 were shown, of which the Bain group had obtained $2,435,000.

Prussia Bans Hitlerite News Organ for Slander

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, July 14.—Adolf Hitler's National Socialist news organ Angriff was ordered to suspend publication today by police for ten days. It was accused of slandering the Prussian administration of justice and of grossly insulting the Catholic church. The Hitlerites are lodging a complaint with the German government.

WITNESSES TELL OF ACCOUNTS IN WAUKEGAN BANK

Only two witnesses were heard yesterday in the trial at Waukegan of William H. Miller, Chicago banker charged with having conspired to defraud by keeping the Waukegan State bank open after it was insolvent. Charles Bond, an auditor employed by State's Attorney A. V. Smith of Lake county, testified to the condition of all accounts in the bank prior to its closing on June 17, 1931. Attorney Fred B. Whitney, receiver for the closed bank until recently, testified to the condition of the accounts after the closing and until he was relieved of his duties. The purpose of the testimony is to show that the bank was insolvent in September, 1930, Prosecutor Smith said.

BRITISH CABINET LEARNS ECONOMY ON $2.50 PER DAY

LONDON, July 14.—(AP)—Seven British cabinet ministers on the way to Ottawa for the imperial conference will have a personal problem of economics in addition to the more serious issues they are to discuss.

The thrifty British treasury allows them only $2.50 a day for personal expenditures in addition to the necessary official outlay.

Sheriff May Push Inquiry with Kin's Money.

Winston-Salem, N. C., July 14.—[Special.] — Sheriff Transou Scott marked time today on his investigation of the recent fatal shooting of Z. Smith Reynolds, 20 year old husband of the former Libby Holman, musical comedy singer, and son of the late R. J. Reynolds, tobacco manufacturer.

Sheriff Scott denied a report that a New York gunman was being sought in connection with the shooting of Reynolds. The sheriff said he has not requested the New York police to search their city for any gangster.

Brother to Arrive in Week.

Although the whereabouts of Richard J. Reynolds, 26 year old brother of Smith, still was a carefully guarded secret, it was learned from his secretary here that he is expected in about a week. Richard was abroad his unique yacht freighter Atlas Palomas, off the African coast, when his brother died of a bullet wound in the head.

What action he will take in the case was not learned. Richard is described by his friends here as the "protective" oldest brother.

In connection with Richard's expected homecoming, Sheriff Scott was asked if he would accept any offer of help in connection with the expense of his investigation of the shooting. He replied that he would "wait and see what the brother wants to do."

$50,000 Year Allowance.

Richard enjoys a $50,000 annual allowance, as did his brother. In addition he has taken advantage of a provision in his father's will whereby he receives from his father's estate $2 for every $1 that he earns.

He carries commercial cargo to different parts of the world aboard his freighter, on which his own quarters are like those of a private yacht.

New finger prints discovered in the Reynolds mansion may prove important, Sheriff Scott believes.

The new impressions were found on the jamb of the door of the bathroom adjoining the bedroom of Libby Holman, Broadway blues singer, widowed by the death of the young tobacco millionaire a week ago last night. While officially declared to be "too indistinct for comparison," it is understood the authorities are convinced the prints will not match those of any of the guests known to be at the house on the night of the tragedy. They are said to have been found on the jamb a few inches below what seemed to be bloody fingerprints.

Might Have Been a Marauder.

The sheriff's men while declining to discuss any theory they might be basing upon the new find admitted they were not overlooking the possibility that the shooting might have been done by a "marauder" who had entered the mansion unseen by young Reynolds or any of his guests at the drinking party. The coroner's jury found that the shooting was done by some party or parties unknown to them.

In connection with today's development it was recalled that C. Raymond Kramer, Long Island tutor of Reynolds, had told of being asked by Reynolds upon his arrival at the house about 10:30 on the night of the shooting if he had "seen another automobile." Kramer said the impression he got was that Reynolds had reason to believe the "other car" had entered the grounds shortly before his [Kramer's] arrival. No explanation of his concern over the car was vouchsafed, Kramer said.

Insist Body Is in Vault.

A rumor went the rounds for a while today that the interment of Reynolds' body had been secretly postponed for some mysterious reason. It was said—with no attempt to cite an authority—that the coffin placed in the family vault last Friday following the funeral ceremony did not contain the victim's body.

Members of the undertaking firm in charge of the funeral later set this rumor to rest with the most positive denial.

The youth was shot, testimony showed, when he found Gilday intoxicated and attempted to aid him.

Head of Rubber Company Ends Life by Shooting

Joseph A. Berger, 57 years old, head of a rubber company bearing his name at 646 Washington boulevard, shot himself through the head yesterday in the garage behind his home at 6511 North Sacramento avenue. He died on the way to the Rogers Park hospital. His widow, Mrs. Flora Berger, told police that he had suffered from a nervous ailment for the last six months.

Lee Rickard, 21 year old farm hand of Woodstock, died last night from injuries received when a tractor he was driving overturned, pinning him beneath it. The accident occurred Wednesday on the farm of Walter Sporlein, four and one-half miles north of Palatine. A neighbor hitched a team of horses to the tractor, righted it, and extricated Rickard.

SEIZE SUSPECT AS LEADER OF DURAND PLOT

Kraske Turned Over to Lake County.

CRIMINAL COURT.

Henry Butta, crime against nature, sentenced to 1 to 10 years in the penitentiary; Frank Malek and William Dubanski, rape, sentenced to 3 years each in Pontiac reformatory by Judge Rudolph Desort.

Tully Warner, confidence game, sentenced to 1 to 10 years in the penitentiary by Judge George [illegible] Bush.

Edward Koda, larceny, sentenced to 1 to 10 years in the penitentiary; Peter Smith, larceny, sentenced to 2 years in the Bridewell by Judge [illegible] Sullivan.

Max W. Kraske, accused of being the "brains" of the gang which sought to extort $50,000 from Jack Durand, foster son of Mr. and Mrs. Scott Durand of Lake Bluff, was arrested yesterday by Chicago detectives and turned over to Lake county authorities.

At Waukegan Assistant State's Attorney Wilfred H. Hall took a specimen of Kraske's handwriting and, after examining it, declared that he believes Kraske wrote the threatening note to Young Durand signed "R. M.", demanding that Durand meet members of the gang on June 27 at Wabash avenue and Adams street.

Durand kept the appointment, according to Chicago police, who watched the gang for a month before two of its alleged members were arrested on Tuesday at Mrs. Durand's Crab Tree farm north of Lake Bluff. Yesterday, however, Durand denied to Prosecutor Hall that he knew anything about the meeting.

Admit Meeting in Chicago.

Both he and Kraske admitted that last March Kraske met him in Chicago and asked him for $1,500 to help Frank Dzan, a hold-up man who served a term in Joliet penitentiary when Durand was incarcerated there for robbery and who is now a prisoner in the county jail. The extortion plot, accompanied by a threat to kidnap Durand's daughter, Patricia, 3 years old, was to provide a defense fund for Dzan and Fred Lorimer, his accomplice, who also was a prison mate of Durand, Deputy Chief of Detectives Walter Storms has said.

Durand denied yesterday that he had received any threats, although he offered to sign any complaint on which State's Attorney A. V. Smith of Lake county believes he can obtain a conviction. He also denied that he knew Pete Cunniff and Joseph Verdico, who were arrested on Tuesday at Lake Bluff as suspects in the alleged extortion plot.

Seize Suspect at Home.

Sergt. William P. Hennessey and Detectives Timothy Donovan and James Burns, who had been watching the alleged kidnaping gang for the last month, arrested Kraske yesterday in his home at 6216 South Campbell avenue. Kraske, who is 47 years old, asserted that he was the head of the Rex Roofing company, 1554 West 59th street, but had closed his office several months ago because of lack of business.

FORMER SECRETARY OF MICHIGAN TEACHER FUND ADMITS FRAUD

Lansing, Mich., July 14.—[Special.]—Miss Georgiana Kniesley, former secretary of the Michigan state teachers' retirement fund, pleaded guilty before Judge Charles B. Collingwood in Ingham county Circuit court today to a charge of embezzlement. Mrs. Kniesley was arrested several weeks ago under a warrant charging embezzlement of $251 had been signed by Miss Cora Riggs, Grand Rapids, president of the fund board. She had previously been dismissed from her position after attempting suicide and subsequently confessing to defalcations. An audit of the fund books by state auditors showed a shortage, extending over a period of years totaling over $37,000. The court released Miss Kniesley but ordered her to appear July 23 for sentence.

employes of two south side banks which were robbed recently to view Kraske at Waukegan, A. J. Newell, a detective employed by State's Attorney Swanson, said that he would bring witnesses of the recent robbery of the Rex Lake State bank to look at the prisoner.

A charge of conspiracy will be placed against Kraske, Assistant State's Attorney Hall said.

BEGIN DEFENSE OF SURCHARGE ON CRADLE PHONES

The Illinois Bell Telephone company yesterday began presentation of a defense before the Illinois commerce commission for its surcharge of 25 cents a month on cradle telephones. The commission had ordered the company to show cause why the charge should not be reduced or abolished.

K. R. Burgess, attorney for the company, argued that the growing demand for cradle sets demonstrates the reasonableness of the surcharge. While the number of ordinary sets has been decreasing since March, 1930, he said, cradle sets have increased until 200,000 are now in use throughout the state. This brings the company $600,000 a year in additional revenue.

W. K. Kruse, accountant for the company, presented exhibits showing a decrease in earnings, as follows: $16,330,649 for 1930, $15,367,683 for 1931, and $5,271,329 for the first five months of 1932. The return on investment in the Chicago area, he said, was 5.75 per cent in 1930, 5.224 per cent in 1931, and 4.341 per cent for five months of 1932. The commission continued the case to Sept. 29 to permit time to check the company's exhibits.

CROSSEYED BANDIT SOUGHT.

A crosseyed bandit yesterday led two accomplices into the drug store of Edmund R. Abell, 1900 North California avenue, and escaped with $110.

BANK TO ASK INDICTMENT OF CASHIER TODAY

Officials of the Boulevard Bridge bank announced yesterday that they will go before the grand jury today to ask the indictment of J. Leo Ludwig, former cashier, on charges of embezzlement. J. De F. Richards, president, said a shortage of $13,059 was discovered in Ludwig's accounts several months ago and that he has confessed. The insurance company which bonded Ludwig has reimbursed the bank for its loss, Mr. Richards said.

Son of Judge Borrelli Is Wanted in Auto Court

Francis Borrelli Jr., son of the Municipal court judge, failed to appear yesterday to face a charge of overtime parking and a warrant was issued for his arrest by Judge Leon Edelman. Young Borrelli is charged with parking for three hours in front of 400 North Michigan avenue in violation of the parking law.

$301,000 Available for Forest Preserve Bonds

President Emmett Whealan of the forest preserve district, announced yesterday that the district will pay $301,000 on bonds and interest defaulted on Jan. 15. The payment will take all the money collected to date by the district on its 1930 tax levy, Mr. Whealan said.

PLAN TO REBUILD CONEY ISLAND, HIT BY FLAMES

Hunt Bodies in Wreckage; 27 in Hospital.

New York, July 14.—[Special.]—Plans for new and more substantial buildings which will rise to replace those destroyed in the fire which swept four square blocks at Coney Island yesterday were made today while firemen continued to pour water on the smoldering charcoal which alone remained of dozens of frame structures —bathhouses, apartment buildings, and pavilions—which fronted the beach 24 hours ago.

Find No Bodies.

Fire lines still held around the burned over section; firemen and patrolmen prodded in the wreckage looking for the bodies they trusted not to find; linemen of the telephone company hacked down tottering poles; brick walls leaned crazily and threatened to collapse with every breath of air.

From all over Brooklyn thousands motored and subwayed to see what the fire had left.

Loss About $2,000,000.

Twenty-seven persons, including firemen, policemen, and civilians, were still in Coney Island hospital today recovering from comparatively minor injuries. Around 300 persons were treated for burns, bruises, and smoke inhalation yesterday evening and last night. None of these was badly hurt. No one, apparently, was killed. There was a rumor that 15 or 20 persons had been trapped in one of the bathhouses, but a search of the ruins today disclosed no bodies.

Estimates of property damage were still difficult to make this afternoon. Probably no more than a guess ever will be made, as insurance paid will represent not more than half, at the most, of the total loss. The area was known as "conflagration territory" by the insurance men, and strictly limited coverance was allowed at high rates. The best guesses of the loss today put it at around $2,000,000.

Woman Who Shot Jurges to Have Hearing Today

Bill Jurges, Cubs' short stop, will appear today in the Felony court for the arraignment of Mrs. Violet Valli, 21 year old divorcee, who shot him and herself in his room at the Carlos hotel last week. Served with a subpoena in the Cub dugout Wednesday, Jurges agreed to appear, but insisted that he would not prosecute the woman. Mrs. Valli will be arraigned before Judge John A. Sbarboro. The charge is assault to kill.

FINDS TOO MANY YOUTHS WORKING WAY IN COLLEGE

Educator Encourages Only Exceptional Students.

The young man who works his way through college is no longer a rarity, according to Albert B. Crawford, director of the department of personnel study and bureau of appointments, Yale university. There are too many such students, in his opinion.

Unless he is of exceptional scholastic ability a student should not be encouraged to enter college if he must support himself while there, Mr. Crawford told educators attending the Institute for Administrative Officers of Higher Institutions at the University of Chicago yesterday. The institute will close today.

The student of only moderate ability may be worthy in a moral or humanitarian sense, Mr. Crawford said. His efforts to support himself in college, however, probably would not profit him sufficiently to warrant the hardships, disappointments, mental and physical strain, and the inability to enter into the normal college life, he said. He doubted that the winning of "the sheepskin label of higher education" was worth the grind.

The yearly self-support earnings of all college students in the country might be estimated conservatively at upward of $50,000,000, Mr. Crawford said.

On the basis of the experience of eastern universities he estimated that at present about one-third of all women college students and more than one-half of all men students are earning at least part of their college expenses. The educational funds and facilities for student aid are not adequate to meet present demands, he said.

A duty long neglected by colleges is that of "debunking impressions regarding how little college costs, and how easy it is to earn that little," Mr. Crawford said. The average cost for a Yale education to self-supporting students is about $1,400 a year, he explained. On the other hand, he said, few students could earn more than board, or its equivalent, during the school term.

Tempting the Masses.

"By all means let us continue to offer opportunity whereby students of outstanding promise, not merely as scholars but as citizens, may work their way through college," he said. "But let us not thereby tempt masses of average youths into a situation with which they will not be able to cope."

In more than 100 colleges in the United States the student now is freed of the class attendance requirement and encouraged to study on his own initiative, Prof. George A. Works, dean of students at the University of Chicago, said in the morning session.

Informal conference rather than lectures and recitations are stressed, in line with the movement for "individualizing college instruction," Dean Works said. Thirty-two colleges are making changes in curriculum or teaching this year, he said. Of the 100 colleges using "honors" courses, 53 have the comprehensive examination system now used at the University of Chicago.

Antioch college's "coöperative plan" of education was described by Dean Algo F. Henderson. Students there alternate between work and study. The plan was inaugurated in the depression of 1921 and during the past year was maintained with success, he said.

BANDITS MENACE FIVE IN STORE; FLEE WITH CASH

Working with precision and an apparent knowledge of the establishment, three bandits held up the manager and clerks of the General Furniture store, 2947 Milwaukee avenue, last night and escaped with about $800. They entered by the front door and left by the rear where three confederates waited for them in an automobile in the alley.

The trio entered the store about 8:30 p. m. Each bandit carried a pistol and the leader jabbed one into the stomach of George Gengler, 2949 Milwaukee avenue, the porter, and commanded his to turn his back.

"The rest of you lie down," he ordered, waving the gun at L. M. Black, the manager; his assistant, Barney Jacobson, and two other clerks. While his companions guarded those on the floor, the leader went to the cashier's cage and commanded Miss Mildred Jeski, 3825 Diversey boulevard, to open the safe. She swung the unlocked door open and the bandit took the contents, about $700.

Black was relieved of $50 and Jacobson of $30. Then the bandits fled. Witnesses said they were driving a new, high powered car.

LOTUS TO BLOOM IN GRASS LAKE LAST OF MONTH

The lotus blooms in Grass lake, near Antioch, have started to come out in the hot weather of the last few days and, according to John J. O'Connor, who has watched the blossoming and waning of the rare flowers for twenty-one years, huge masses will appear in the last week of July and remain through the first week of August. He predicted an unusually abundant crop. The lotus blooms are protected by special legislation obtained by the Wild Flower association and may not be cut or picked.

Diver Strikes Bottom of Lake; May Be Paralyzed

Conroy Beck, 29 years old, 2218 Clifton avenue, dived into shallow water off Calvary beach in Evanston last night and sustained injuries which may result in paralysis from the shoulders down. He was swimming with Miss Ann Garrity, 1051 Belden avenue, and dived off a pier into water about five feet deep. He probably struck his head and shoulders on the sand bottom. He was taken to St. Francis hospital, Evanston, and later to the Edgewater hospital in Chicago, where he was unable to speak and apparently had lost control of his limbs and body.

"The newspaper is an institution developed by modern civilization to present the news of the day, to foster commerce and industry, to inform and mold public opinion, and to furnish that check upon government which no constitution has ever been able to provide."

CURTAINS ON THE FARCE.

Then up rose Senator Carter Glass, Virginia Democrat, who cannot be as good a prohibitionist as he'd like to be because of Bishop Cannon. Neither Virginia nor national prohibition is big enough to hold both the senator and the bishop. When the senator arose the battle had been going well for the Democrats for several days. They had resisted every Republican attempt to make them carry out their party pledge for nearer beer immediately. Although hard pressed by numerous assaults hurled into the breach by the grim Bingham, they held the impregnable ground of repudiation and nullification

Senator Glass had been in Chicago and had observed the joy with which the party in convention put the party in congress on the beer spot, and possibly the thought that Bishop Cannon was pleased by the determination of the Jeffersonians in repudiating the work of their convention was irritating to the senator. When the bishop is pleased the senator is not. Furthermore, certain Republican senators, notably Bingham, were having too much fun. The axiom seemed to hold good that Republican mistakes will be forgotten in Democratic blunders.

With whatever purpose in mind, Senator Glass uprose to create a diversion, offering a resolution for the repeal of the eighteenth amendment along the line of the Republican platform. An objection from Senator Norris of Nebraska prevented consideration. Senator Norris and Senator Borah later prevented consideration of the Wagner repeal resolution. Senator Glass' revenge, however, was unsatisfactory. The Republicans who stopped his pretext of compliance with the platform were Senator Norris, who has announced that he will support the Democratic ticket, and Senator Borah, the one man party who, if he nominated a President, wouldn't have anybody available to fill out the ticket.

This episode probably drops the curtain on the comedy of congress and the conventions. The parties can now have a fire sale of their platforms.

COUNTIES BLED BY STATE TAXES.

The La Follette redistribution of wealth doctrine is working so well in Wisconsin that the counties which are the center of population are bled white. The state government is a leech drawing money away from them so royally that they cannot pay their bills and care for their unemployed. Milwaukee contributes to the state from 10 to 12 million dollars more each year than is returned to it. Racine, Kenosha, Sheboygan, and other counties containing industrial cities pay in proportion. They have reached a point where they say they cannot stand it.

Elected representatives of the counties, the supervisors, who are responsible for financing their units of government and who are near enough their electors to hear from them, held a recent meeting in Milwaukee to demand the state stop its extravagance and let them keep enough of the money collected within their borders to stay solvent.

Milwaukee county alone pays 45 per cent of the total income tax and approximately the same percentage of inheritance and gasoline tax, automobile license fees, ton mile tax, and similar special imposts which have been laid on the promise of reducing the tax on real estate.

This constant sucking of tax money from the counties has left them no source of revenue but general property. The tremendous growth in tax delinquencies is proof that no increase can be looked for from that quarter.

The income tax returns 10 per cent to the county in which it originates. Of the inheritance tax the county receives 7.5 per cent. The state retains 92.5 per cent. The gasoline tax is refunded on a basis of federal, state, and county highways, and the taxpayers of southeast Wisconsin have paid millions for building and maintaining roads in remote, unsettled northern counties.

The state keeps 50 per cent of automobile license fees, which range from $10 for the smallest car to from $18 to $48 for cars weighing more than 3,200 pounds. Insurance companies pay a commission from 2 to 7.5 per cent on business done in the state and the state keeps it all, except it graciously permits towns, villages, and cities to retain for their fire protection an additional 2 per cent they tax fire and marine companies on local business.

All of the tax on railroads is kept by the state except a portion returned to towns in which the roads have piers, dock, or grain elevators. The state taxes electric utilities, retains 15 per cent and returns 20 per cent to the counties and 65 per cent to the towns, villages, and cities in which the utility is located.

Telephone companies pay a license fee based on gross earnings. The state keeps all revenue from toll fees and 15 per cent of the fees from local service, but returns 85 per cent of local revenue to towns, villages, and cities. None goes to the counties.

These special taxes deprive the local units of sources of taxation and force higher and higher the tax on property. All were enacted on the specious and unkept promise of reducing real estate taxes.

R. O. Wipperman, Milwaukee tax analyst, points out that from 1912 to 1930, the years in which most of the special taxes were added, the tax on property in the state increased from 32 million dollars to 123 million dollars. He adds that as more and more revenue came from sources other than property none reduced property tax but was used to provide more public agencies, social service, paternalism, costly and needless public improvements, and to increase salaries of public officials and public employés.

The necessity and the propriety of the indignation of county officials against this bleeding by the state cannot be questioned. It is bankrupting the counties and it is bankrupting the people. It is losing their homes and farms and is adding to their unemployment.

The smaller taxing units and the taxpayers themselves must find relief. It is certain they cannot get it from the experts in division and fractions who have devised and imposed the special burdens. Their remedy is in their own hands and can be had at the polls in exactly the same measure and as promptly as they compel it.

Milwaukee is exhausted being Santa Claus. So are Racine and Kenosha and most of the counties. They can recover their breath only when and as they make good with their votes their demands for a new deal from the state.

THE MYSTERIES OF LAUSANNE.

The French-British treaty of confidence seems not to imply exact correspondence of statement regarding it. Edouard Herriot and Sir John Simon have not agreed to say the same thing whether they mean it or not. Herriot, for instance, told the finance and foreign affairs commissioners that the conditional settlement with Germany took the form of a lump sum because the United States wanted it this way. The condition contained in the gentlemen's agreement, kept secret until THE TRIBUNE correspondent printed it, is American cancellation or revision. So then if Herriot's telling the truth the United States dictated the German settlement and of course let itself in for the consequences.

Sir John does not agree with the Frenchman. He told the house of commons, before it adjourned for its summer recess, that if the French people were being led to believe that the new accord had anything to do with obligations to the United States "they will be quickly undeceived." They certainly are being led to believe it and it will be interesting to find out who is telling the truth. Mr. Stimson for the American government has denied that the United States took a hand in the Lausanne agreement.

Although it is plain enough what Herriot is undertaking to convey as an impression the reports of what he said do not make it possible to pin him down definitely. He is letting it be understood that the negotiators yielded to American desires in fixing the German total and final payment. The inference is that this wish was expressed at Lausanne within the last fortnight which would betray secret, and denied, participation in the conference. If Herriot does not mean to make that exposure of clandestine negotiations, too hot to be revealed in the United States, then he apparently is allowing some past suggestions of American advisers in Europe to have currency as being of recent and decisive utterance.

The ordinary understanding of the conditional treaty with Germany, of the gentlemen's agreement and of the British-French confidence understanding would be that the countries have banded together to put the United States in the frying pan. Parliamentary responses may avoid the confession, but common expectation would ask what else could these nations possibly intend. Later it will be discovered what the American government has done, if anything, to encourage them.

Meanwhile attention may be called to another gentlemen's agreement. It was adopted by the United States congress in December as a rider to the resolution ratifying the moratorium agreement made by President Hoover in June:

"It is hereby expressly declared to be against the policy of congress that any of the indebtedness of foreign countries to the United States should be in any manner canceled or reduced, and nothing in this joint resolution shall be considered as indicating a contrary policy, or as implying that favorable consideration will be given at any time to a change in the policy hereby declared."

LOOP PARKING.

Commissioner Sprague of the public works department and Ald. Massen of the traffic committee do not believe that loop parking will restore an advantage to the merchants. The merchants think it will. The city's tests come to one conclusion and the merchants' to another. Mr. Sprague says the city administration will not resist another experiment, although he is convinced that it will prove that car storage in downtown streets does not help loop business.

The reasonable thing, then, is to give loop parking another trial. There are, theoretically, conflicting interests, one to which the loop is a destination, the other to which its streets are thoroughfares. Their conflict may not be as uncompromising as would seem. Even with no parking, the lane at the curb is seldom clear for moving traffic. The merchants are convinced from their own experience that the prohibition is an injury to business and that it blocks the customer from the store. They are entitled to the fair play of a test.

ON BANK GAINS.

[Aurora, Ill., Beacon-News.]

They say there is no loss without some gain.

The adage is bound to come to mind as we hear that the remaining banks of Aurora have gained hundreds of new customers since withdrawals by panicky depositors closed the Broadway Trust and the First National.

It also reminds that banks are as necessary to a community as heart and lungs to a man.

They are the community's circulatory system. Without them there would be atrophy of the body politic.

First one part and then another of the community would decay.

Eventually we would have the dead city.

But nothing like that for Aurora. We were headed in that direction for a few days while panic gripped us, but not so now.

We have regained our courage. Sanity is triumphant.

We are carrying on.

We will be stronger than ever.

A LINE O' TYPE OR TWO

OH, LADY, LADY! WHERE WAS YOU BRUNG UP?

A lady quite lovely of face and dressed in an all white sports suit ensemble, after robbing a lunchroom in Chicago, turned on the proprietor and two waiters as she went out and, waving a shiny pistol, said: "I wouldn't follow me if I were you. I'll use this gun if you do." We have no use questioning the lady's conduct; that, of course, is her own affair, but rather her remark, "I wouldn't follow me if I were you." Regardless of the fact that she was quite beautiful and wore a stunning all white sports suit ensemble, how could she follow her herself if she were not herself, but the proprietor and the two waiters? Because, if she were the proprietor and the two waiters, she would not be herself at all and therefore there would be nobody to follow. It seems strange that the proprietor and the two waiters did not call the lady's attention to this lapse in otherwise good English and the fact that she was lovely and wore an all white sports ensemble is no justification at all for garbled grammar. A lady bandit should ever remember that, although she is a bandit, she is also a lady, and try to speak like one.

THE MILLIONAIRE.

I have a four-walled heaven-place
Illumined by an Angel's face.

Of pinks and poppies, finds good room;

With marigold and mignonette
They join in paying Summer's debt.

Some friendly maples line the walk
And there are nooks for quiet talk.

A precious Elf keeps living bright
By driving off dull care at night;

For who could worry any while
Against the magic of his smile!

My bank account of sound content
Increases as the years are spent.

Why should I fret with golden care—
Whom Love has made a millionaire!

THOMAS CURTIS CLARK.

AN EASTERN PUBLISHER reports a contract providing for a sale of five million books during the year. It sounds rather dreadful put in that blunt way, something like the seven plagues of Egypt. Personally we think we'd rather have some of the plagues of Egypt, say the plague of locusts. There couldn't have been anything like five million locusts and, besides, you didn't have to go almost through a locust to find out that it was the sweet, dear old grandmamma who murdered the rich young yachtsman, Sir Basil Banana-Banana, and his five beautiful daughters.

A POLITICIAN in Wisconsin is suing a church for a dollar he dropped in the contribution box. On the other hand, suppose the churches commence suing the people who drop suspender buttons in the contribution boxes for obtaining sermons under false pretenses.

T. JEFFERSON OUTDONE; OR, CACTUS JACK'S TRIUMPH.

Cactus Jack Garner says that the Jefferson lads needn't go to all the expense of sending a committee to notify him that he was nominated for the vice presidency. All he wants them to do is to send him a letter. Yes, but that will take two three cent postage stamps. Why waste six cents when by his own admission Cactus Jack already knows his nomination. People who are throwing up their hats and saying that Cactus Jack has gone old Tom Jefferson himself one better in the matter of simplicity should calm down and think about those six cents. Mr. Garner, to show true Jeffersonian economy, should now come out and say that he heard about his nomination by reading it in a newspaper. When his enemies berate him for being a spendthrift, inasmuch as the newspaper probably cost two cents, he can rout them by proving the newspaper was one left behind by somebody else in a street car and that therefore it cost him nothing. Now that would be something like real Jeffersonian simplicity.

YESTERDAY WAS JULY 14TH, but over in Paris they didn't do much in the way of celebrating the fall of the Bastille. The French are commencing to realize very bitterly that if the Bastille had not fallen they would be getting twenty-five centimes a head now from American tourists who wanted to go through the place.

IN DEFENSE OF LEVITY.

The light I read with zeal,
Just why, in truth, should any man

If by being so we could improve
The earth and all about it,
Temper the powers that grimly move,
And all the evil, rout it.

Why then 'twould pay to moan and weep
Favor sackcloth and ashes,
Seek out and climb the stony steep,
While all about us crashes.

But when, alas, such course will lead
To deeper ills and sorrows,
Let's seek of joy to speak and read
And hope for brighter morrows.

CLARENCE MILLIGAN.

"AN ANCIENT MACEDONIAN COIN dated 300 B. C. and valued at $850 was stolen early this morning."—The Trib. It should have been worth more than that.

WE WISH the political campaign would open. They're a good deal of a bore, but right now they would be such a relief from the Smith Reynolds case.

ESCAPING DELIRIUM.

If a man has delirium tremens, or is delirious from any other cause, Dr. Donald Gregg thinks he should not have medicines to quiet him. Occasionally a delirious patient will be benefited by the use of such drugs, but these cases are the exceptions. The average patient will be made worse by the use of either mechanical or drug restraint, or the two in combination. The possibility that the same conclusions may hold as to convulsions in children and heat convulsions is worthy of consideration.

Seventeen years ago Dr. Gregg reported on the treatment of delirium tremens in five large city hospitals. The investigation, so far as it went, showed that it was customary to restrain delirious patients with sedatives; and, whether through coincidence or cause and effect, the death rate was high.

Dr. Gregg had noticed that animals and persons who were being mechanically restrained struggled until they were exhausted. If the basic disorder were serious the extra strain of the violent exertion used up the balance of the subject's vitality and pushed him across the line that separated life and death. This conclusion seemed to extend to include those who were restrained by the use of sedative drugs.

At any rate, he reduced their use to a minimum. Meanwhile, in the psychopathic hospital, restraint had been done away with and the use of sedatives had been reduced. Another treatment had been instituted and all the cases of delirium were getting well. This method has been kept up for more than seventeen years.

In the first place, hydrotherapy is used. The various kinds of baths and packs are employed. The second step consists in giving cathartics and enemas. The third is based on the theory that many of the symptoms are due to acidosis. The alcoholic who gets delirium tremens generally tells the physician that he has eaten but little for several days. If the physician analyzes the odors when he whiffs the patient's breath he can generally get the sweetish smell of acidosis along with the whisky breath. Dr. Gregg thinks the drug hunger of opium addiction is also due to acidosis. Therefore he gives some alkali freely. The one he uses is citrocarbonate. He also gives some sugar and, if the stomach tolerates that, some other food is given along with the sugar.

In this connection it is well to recall a recent report to a scientific convention in which proof was offered that in drug hunger the condition was not one of acidosis but a change in the degree of fluidity of the tissue cells. The scientists reporting advocated sodium rhodanate and sodium thiocyanate instead of alkalies.

If the use of alkalies in the treatment of delirium is new, and if there are those who think that the above mentioned drugs are better, the same cannot be said for the policy of feeding. Every periodic drinker knows that when he is on a bat he must keep eating or the monkeys will get him. When he undertakes to sober up he begins by drinking milk, clam or tomato juice, or munching some sugar or chocolate. If he can get his stomach to stand it he hopes to pull out before the menagerie moves in.

Nor is there novelty in the use of baths. In 1838 a physician studying medicine in Europe wrote his uncle, another physician, about what he saw in Florence. "The curative methods used in treating delirious cases in the lunatic asylums are curious. They commence with baths. From the tepid plunge they mount to the cold douche given through a nozzle several inches in diameter."

MORE THAN ONE KIND.

Mrs. L. H. writes: My 12 year old son has acidosis and is underweight. Please give me a list of foods that benefit acidosis and tell me how to increase the boy's weight.

REPLY.

One kind of acidosis calls for a diet that is rich in vegetables, fruits, and milk, and poor in meat, eggs, breads, and cereals. Potatoes and bananas largely replace breads. Another kind calls for one that is rich in cereals, breads, and sugars, and poor in butter, oils, greases, and fats. To put on weight one should go to bed at an early and regular hour, get more than eight hours' sleep, abstain from worry and excitement, and cultivate relaxation and calm. In addition to three regular meals of staple foods, one should eat a bowl of milk and sugared rice or crackers just before sleeping.

ASK YOUR DOCTOR.

Mrs. J. A. writes: Is it unwise for a girl to bear children if her mother is incurably insane?

REPLY.

Not necessarily. Something depends on the kind of insanity that the mother has. Even more depends on the personality and mental makeup of the girl. The prospective husband's mentality and personality also should be taken into consideration. It might be wise for the girl to counsel with her family physician. However, insanity is not inheritable.

NOT INHERITABLE.

C. J. O'D. writes: I have a friend whose parents died from anemia. Her brother has it now, but she doesn't know if she has it or not. If she marries and has children will it pass on to them? In other words, is anemia hereditary?

REPLY.

FROM THE TRIBUNE'S COLUMNS

16 YEARS AGO TODAY

JULY 15, 1916.

LONDON.—London today was thrilled by the news that Gen. Sir Douglas Haig had opened the second phase of the great offensive in the Somme region. In a battle that exceeded in violence the first assault, thirteen days ago, the British carried the German second line for four miles, captured the villages of Bazantin le Petit, Bazantin le Grand, Longueval, and Ovillers, and carried the remaining German positions in the Trones wood. The battle began at daybreak. Only the day before yesterday the German first line, from Hardecourt to Ovillers, had been won, and the big guns had begun to pound once more at the Teuton trenches. All night the heavy artillery had been driven without pause at the German second line. With the approach of daybreak the bombardment was redoubled, and soon after the first of Haig's troops left their defenses to begin the charge. The Germans, taken unawares by the swiftness with which the attack had been renewed, were forced back easily at first. But soon reinforcements were brought up and heavy counter attacks began.

PETROGRAD.—A Teutonic offensive near Stobychwa, northeast of Kovel, in an attempt to drive the Russians from the left bank of the Stokhod river failed, according to a war office statement. The intensity of the fighting west of the Stripa river has lessened.

ROME.—The summit of Castellette, in the Tofana region, has been blown up by the Italians, the entire Austrian force there being buried in the wreckage, the war office announced. Heavy fighting continues on Sette Comuni plateau. Hostile aircraft dropped bombs on Padua with slight damage.

WASHINGTON, D. C.—The big naval collier Hector, carrying fifty-two marines in addition to a crew of twelve officers and seventy men, sank off Charleston, S. C., in the hurricane which swept the southern Atlantic seaboard. A late bulletin from Charleston states that all the men who abandoned the collier when it grounded are safe aboard the tug Wilmington and the lighthouse tender Cypress.

CHICAGO.—Miss Pauline Edgerton, daughter of I. V. Edgerton, commission merchant at 220 West South Water street, summoned police to trap a burglar in the Edgerton home at 5749 Midway park, Austin. The police came and in confusion that followed shot and killed Miss Edgerton's sweetheart, T. Palmer Miller, a graduate of Dartmouth college, an official of the Consumers' company, and vice president of the Perry Pipe company, 1818 West Madison street. The burglar escaped. Detective Sergeant James Garrey, who fired the bullet which went through Miller's heart and then beat the young man over the head with the butt of his revolver, declared he thought Miller was the burglar and was about to draw a gun on him.

ZANESVILLE, O.—The divorce suit of Howard Chandler Christy, noted artist, filed several months ago against Mabelle Thompson Christy, was dismissed at the request of John Frazier, plaintiff's attorney. Christy just returned from a trip to New York, his wife's home. No reconciliation has been reported.

TODAY'S QUESTION.

How does spontaneous combustion originate and how may it be prevented?

[This question will be repeated and answered in this space tomorrow.]

YESTERDAY'S QUESTION.

What is nitrogen fixation, how is it accomplished, and what is its importance?

REPLY.

Nitrogen compounds are essential constituents of the food of all living organisms. Although nitrogen itself constitutes about four-fifths of the air, it is very inert, and the nitrogen breathed in by living beings is again exhaled unchanged. Before nitrogen can be used as food it must be fixed, i. e., converted into compounds with other elements. By passing an electrical discharge of high voltage through rapidly flowing air and treating the product with water, nitric acid can be obtained. Or, ammonia, a compound of nitrogen and hydrogen, may be manufactured by mixing the two elements and passing the mixture in a highly compressed condition over heated catalysts—that is, over substances which, without being themselves appreciably affected, hasten chemical reactions. Neither nitric acid nor ammonia is a food for animals, but they can readily be converted into plant foods (fertilizers), and by eating the plants animals obtain the nitrogenous material they need in their diet.

PROF. DODD ON ACADEMIC FREEDOM.

Chicago, July 5.—From your editorial of July 3 on "Capitalism and the Colleges" one may see that you, a stanch champion of freedom of the press, are a little perturbed as to the attitude of college and university teachers in this day of trial for American individualism. Perhaps this interest on your part may justify a little comment from the teacher's point of view.

All the constitutions of the United States guarantee freedom of criticism of the social order, albeit there have been conflicting enactments of late. The teacher of young people as well as the writer in the fields of history and economics takes this guarantee as an invitation to perform a needed function in the state—namely, that of critical comment on law, political behavior, and social readjustments.

And the history of two great countries during the nineteenth century confirms him as to the urge to speak the truth as arrived at by him. In the United States there arose a dangerous controversy over the extent to which sturdy individualism might go in the matter of slaveholding and governmental control. The southern institutions of learning, out of respect to those who either as generous benefactors or as masters of the states in which these institutions operated, denied their teachers and scholars the function of free criticism. Consequently between 1830 and 1860 there was no authoritative objection within the south to the dangerous trend of the plantation system. When the issue approached the war stage in South Carolina there was, in so far as the record goes, only one man of intellectual prestige who presented cogent argument against the dangerous attitudes of his people. Neither Lincoln nor Douglas was understood in the south between 1858 and 1861. One of the most cruel and most needless of wars followed.

The other country was imperial Germany. There the university had been during the early part of the nineteenth century the very home of free and liberal criticism of the existing economic and social order. Its professors were largely the authors of the German uprising of 1848. But when the great German leaders accomplished national unity through wars with Austria and France and started upon their marvelous economic development in 1871 the need for disinterested criticism on the part of scholars was greater than ever. That function was denied to any class in the state, although not so completely denied as in the old south. In 1898 young American and German students were commanded to keep silent at private pension tables whenever they indulged in criticism of public men and public affairs. Prof. René Gregory of the University of Leipzig was ostracized in 1899 because he maintained something of the old German attitude on the subject of freedom of speech. And from 1900 to 1914 this self-denial or imposed restraint became more universal. Nobody except socialists, and they were not disinterested or in a position to speak to the governing classes, spoke frankly of the dangerous legal and constitutional drift or of the imminent danger of world war. Consequently the German people in 1914 had no real self-criticism which might have led to a calmer view of British and French attitudes. Hence the world war began in Germany with a population which had been deprived of one of the great services which universities should render.

Now the United States has steadily drifted into a situation in which a relatively small number of great individualistic masters of industry and finance have practical control of all the larger affairs of states, cities, and nation, despite corrupt city bosses who seem to be masters of free and independent race blocs. In 1896 one eminent university president was dismissed because he favored free silver. Many professors were either dismissed or silenced. Since that exciting campaign the universities have not been so free to dismiss, although many cases of discipline are on record. The last dozen years scholars have asserted their rights more firmly and there is an association of teachers and writers which undertakes to investigate every case of dismissal for the exercise of the function of free criticism. And at present the trained men of the universities and colleges are serving their communities as public servants as well as scientific workers.

Finally, the embarrassment of teachers in endowed institutions who must criticize the economic roles of those who make endowments possible is obvious. Not many men have the vigor to oppose openly the unsocial efforts of their own benefactors. But they must do so in the hope that society may not drift into war or economic collapse. In such a case all suffer indescribable misery. Examples: the civil war and the world war, neither of which was necessary. Is it not the duty, therefore, of men of science and letters, despite obvious shortcomings, to make known their views, even when the kindliest of benefactors may feel themselves ungratefully treated?

DONT MENTION IT.

Quincy, Mich., July 2.—Please accept the congratulations of an old reader and subscriber for the splendid way in which THE TRIBUNE informed the public of the proceedings of the conventions, both in the columns of the paper and over W-G-N. Each of your special writers should be commended for the excellent articles appearing on every phase of convention activities. If the founder of THE TRIBUNE were to return today and know of the way in which his successors handled the news of these conventions he would feel that the paper is worthy of being called the "World's Greatest Newspaper." More power to you!

And the way in which your radio station, W-G-N, gave every minute of the convention calls for the highest praise and appreciation. The costs, no doubt, were great and the losses from sponsored programs canceled must have been considerable. But this unselfish attitude of service to the public made hosts of friends for the station. Please convey my thanks and appreciation to your Mr. Quin Ryan for his splendid unbiased description of the proceedings. I look forward to THE TRIBUNE and W-G-N's giving me every detail of the campaign.

INDIANA HOUSE ADVANCES DRY LAW REPEAL BILL

Same Members Who in 1931 Supported It.

Indianapolis, Ind., July 14.—[Special.]—The same Indiana house of representatives which in the winter of 1931 refused to alter the state bone dry law today advanced to second reading a bill to repeal the law.

The action came when the house, 51 to 41, refused to accept a minority report of the public morals committee asking that consideration of the bill be deferred until after other tax legislation had been enacted by the present special session of the legislature. The house then accepted the report of the majority of the committee, advancing the bill to second reading.

The first day of the session the house divided, 59 to 33, on the question of accepting the repeal bill on the house calendar. However, wets pointed out tonight, this was a question of procedure and not a fair test vote. Members of the present house were elected in 1930 and some members of the present state senate were elected in 1928, before prohibition liberalization was gaining momentum in Indiana.

Follows Committee Split.

The repeal bill came before the house after the public morals committee had split over it and a companion measure legalizing and taxing medicinal whisky. The repeal bill was introduced by Representative John F. Ryan [Dem., Vigo] and thirty others. The medicinal liquor measure was introduced by Representative Chester K. Watson [Dem., Allen and Noble] and eleven others.

Medicinal whisky is forbidden by the bone dry law passed in the Klu Klux Klan zenith days of 1925, which technically, though not actually, makes Indiana the most arid of the 48 states.

A majority of the public morals committee favors a medicinal liquor bill, while a minority is opposed. No report on this bill was made today.

During the roll call on repeal deferment Representative John D. T. Bold [Dem., Vanderburg] charged that Indiana Anti-Saloon league lobbyists were whispering with Republican members on the floor. Speaker Walter Myers stopped the vote and demanded whether any lobbyists were on the floor in violation of the rules. None was pointed out.

Pleads Violating Agreement.

In an argument preceding the vote Representative James M. Knapp [Rep., Wayne], minority floor leader, said:

"When the governor called this special session there was a gentleman's agreement among many of us that questions brought up here would refer only to tax questions. I can't see what the liquor question has to do with taxes. I admit I am prejudiced on the subject of prohibition. I am personally a dry, but I can see no foundation for claims that repeal of prohibition laws would open distilleries in Terre Haute and reduce substantially unemployment."

Representative Delph McKesson [Dem., Marshall], Democratic majority floor leader, was absent when the votes were taken. Republican members moved that absentees be called and their vote be taken, but their motion was overwhelmed by the Democratic majority.

Ethan A. Miles, attorney for the Indiana Anti-Saloon league, had spoken before the committee against the bills.

The prohibition planks of both the Republican and Democratic 1932 state platforms favoring repeal of the bone dry law were presented as petitions in the senate by Senator James J. Nejdl [Rep., Lake] as expressions of both parties in favor of repeal.

Former Co-Ed Granted Divorce from Ramsay

Judge Joseph Sabath signed a decree yesterday awarding Mrs. Elizabeth Shriver Ramsay, former Northwestern university beauty queen, a divorce from Gordon Ramsay III. She was given $650 alimony and solicitor's fees, and the custody of her two children. Mrs. Ramsay presented evidence of cruelty at a default hearing several weeks ago. Judge Sabath delayed signing the decree when Gordon Ramsay Sr., former public administrator of Cook county, told him that he hoped to arrange a reconciliation between his son and daughter-in-law. When the younger Ramsay did not appear yesterday in court, as Judge Sabath had suggested, the decree was signed.

Minister Ends His Life; Faced Charge Over Funds

Melrose, Mass., July 14.—(AP)—The Rev. Harold Marshall, head of the Universalist Publishing society, ended his life today by slashing his throat with a razor. Friends said he had recently suffered a nervous breakdown. The minister was named a week ago in a bill in equity alleging that he converted to his own use $25,579 intrusted for delivery to the Universalist General convention. The convention was the complainant.

CABINET TROUBLE AND REBELS ROCK BRAZILIAN RULE

Report President in Shaky Position.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BUENOS AIRES, Argentina, July 14.—Uncensored reports from Rio de Janeiro and Sao Paulo today indicate that the position of Brazil's provisional president, Getulio Vargas, has been rendered more precarious by cabinet dissensions.

It was reported, too, that the president's main lieutenant, Flores da Cunha, has been able to obtain the support of only half of the troops of Rio Grande do Sul in combating the "constitutionalist" rebels who have seized the southern state of Sao Paulo.

From Sao Paulo came a dispatch telling of a serious mutiny which occurred among the Rio Grande troops today. This, combined with other indications of weakness on the part of the government forces, is believed to explain the hesitancy of troops to attack the entrenched rebels.

Brazil Optimistic.

Meanwhile, the Brazilian government announced today that the rebels have been surrounded on all sides and are on the point of surrendering. The rebels, it was said, took the defensive last night, destroying bridges and railway lines to cover their retreat.

The revolt, which was begun last Sunday, has for its purpose the reestablishment of constitutional government in Brazil.

May Mediate Argentine Row.

BUENOS AIRES, July 19.—(AP)—An offer of mediation between Argentina and Uruguay may result from discussions inaugurated today by several Latin American and European ambassadors at the suggestion of a South American nation which has not been publicly identified.

Diplomatic relations between the two nations were broken yesterday. Uruguay was angered because Argentina showed a disposition to believe reports that Gen. Severo Toranzo, former commander of the Argentine army and now an exile in Uruguay was aboard a cruiser of the Uruguayan navy when the ship came to Buenos Aires for the celebration of Argenine Independence day, July 9.

Anti-Uruguayan sentiment has developed in Argentina as a result of charges that Argentine exiles in Uruguay have been permitted to foster movements against their home government.

Chile Asks Recognition.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

SANTIAGO, Chile, July 14.—The Socialist government of provisional President Carlos Davila today bid for recognition by notifying representatives of foreign governments of its readiness and ability to enforce order and respect international obligations. A national election will be held Oct. 2, it was announced.

Armando Jaramillo, former Chilean premier, was appointed president of the central bank today. Francisco Garcea Cana, whom he replaces, will continue as a director.

Boy Asks Exoneration of Man Who Beat Him, Dies

Denver, Colo., July 14.—(AP)—Eugene Davis, 15 years old, died in a hospital today after asking exoneration of a man who injured him fatally by administering a beating three months ago. The boy's father, Police Sergeant E. S. Davis, said he would abide by his son's wishes and not take any action against the assailant, whose name was not divulged. Eugene was engaged in a fist fight in Washington park, his father said. The man involved stopped the fight and then knocked the Davis boy down and kicked him into insensibility.

TRAVERSE CITY WINS PRAISE FROM BRUCKER FOR CHERRY FESTIVAL

Traverse City, Mich., July 14.—[Special.]—The same determination which made Traverse City stage the annual national cherry festival in the face of one cent cherries would carry state and nation out of depression, Gov. Wilber M. Brucker stated in officially opening the festival at the cherryland jubilee tonight. Mrs. Brucker, who arrived by plane from Mackinac Island earlier in the day, officially greeted Commander Huntoon and the naval training fleet from Great Lakes.

Queen Carolyn Hazzard and her court of honor were officially presented to the public at the jubilee. Queen Carolyn will receive her crown from the hands of Gov. Brucker tomorrow noon and the coronation ceremonies.

This afternoon the children will appear in the annual juvenile parade and in the evening Gov. and Mrs. Brucker will be guests of honor at the governor's ball.

RAISE BONDS AS THREATS SILENCE HOLDUP WITNESS

Judge Joseph A. Graber yesterday set bonds of $100,000 each for three youths charged with the robbery of a bakery at 320 Kensington avenue, when he was told the complaining witness had been threatened. The defendants are Angelo Falco, 18 years old; Leo Manfredi, 17 years old, and Frank Damore, 18.

Mrs. Robert De Facci, manager of the bakery, had identified the youths as the trio who took $300. When she retracted her identification in court Judge Graber threatened her with a sentence for contempt of court. Yesterday her employer, Achilles De Benedetti, told Judge Graber Mrs. De Facci had refused to testify because she had been threatened in telephone calls.

Judge Graber continued the case until Monday and ordered Mrs. De Facci to be ready to testify or face a charge of contempt of court or perjury.

Mrs. Forbes Withdraws Suit; Couple Reconciled

Mrs. Lucille Gray Forbes yesterday withdrew her bill for separate maintenance against Alexander Forbes, son of Walter Forbes, Rockford banker and manufacturer. Attorney Benjamin Davis informed Judge Joseph Sabath in the Superior court that the effort of young Forbes to effect a reconciliation with his wife, started when they met before Judge Sabath ten days ago, had been successful. Attorney Davis said that Mrs. Forbes will also dismiss a $500,000 suit for alienation of affections which she filed against her parents-in-law.

JAPAN INSISTS ON INDEPENDENCE OF MANCHURIA

League Group Told It Will End Parleys.

TOKIO, July 14.—(AP)—The Japanese government, after a series of conferences in the last week, indicated unmistakably to the league of nations' Manchurian investigating commission that it was determined to recognize the independence of Manchuria as soon as it felt the developments of the new régime warranted it.

After that, it indicated to the commission, Japan will decline to negotiate further with China or the league of nations regarding the status of Manchuria.

The league commissioners held a final conference today with Foreign Minister Uchida. Secrecy was maintained about the details of the conference, but it was stated officially the foreign minister outlined Japan's intentions to all five commissioners, including the American member, Gen. McCoy. All five expressed "a friendly concern" over Japan's course.

Japan Stands Firm.

Later an official source said: "The commissioners were informed of Japan's decision to reject any Manchurian settlement involving the restoration of Chinese administration there."

The commissioners plan to leave here for Peiping on Saturday. They declined to discuss the results of their visit to Tokio, but they evidently were discouraged over the prospects of altering Japan's determination to separate Manchuria from China.

A foreign office spokesman said the presence of the commission had not changed Japan's purposes in Manchuria and had neither hastened nor retarded eventual recognition of the Pu-Yi government. Recognition is not likely to come, however, as soon as is generally expected, he said.

Checkmates League.

Recognition of the state of Manchoukuo will end the possibility of direct negotiations between Japan and China concerning Manchuria, he said, and likewise will end Japan's participation in any activities of the league of nations dealing with the future of Manchuria.

It seemed to be the unanimous view among Japanese officials that it matters little what the Lytton commission reports, since Japan is determined to reject any attempt by outside authority to interfere in her relations with Manchuria.

Caterpillars Strip Leaves Off Walnut, Pecan Trees

Grayville, Ill., July 14.—(AP)—Great numbers of caterpillars have invaded the rural districts in this vicinity, farmers report, and have stripped walnut and pecan trees of leaves. Trees in areas where the worms have been working are virtually bare of all foliage.

MALT EXTRACT ADDS FLAVORFUL ZEST TO FOODS

Delicious Transformer of Ordinary Dishes.

BY MARY MEADE.

Looking for a brand new flavor for pies, cakes, breads, sauces, confections? In fact, for almost any and all of your pet recipes [which, while undeniably delicious, do seem to grow a bit wearisome just from their own good sameness].

Then let me suggest a newcomer to the flavoring shelf—malt extract. Breads—especially bakery breads—have used it for centuries, but it is only very recently that home cooks have discovered that the extract of malt may give an indefinably delicious flavor to a host of everyday foods.

Soluble Part of Barley.

What is malt extract? Actually, it is simply the soluble part of barley grains which have been sprouted and by the action of certain enzymes have had the starch, of which they are composed, changed into a form of sugar known as maltose. The sirup as purchased on the market has a distinctive flavor which makes a very pleasing addition to many more blandly flavored dishes.

As a rule malt extract, being a concentrated sweet, may be substituted for a small quantity of sugar—in most recipes, from one to four teaspoons. While it also adds a certain amount of water to ingredients of a recipe, it is seldom necessary to reduce the designated liquid to make up for the addition, as the amount added is relatively slight.

Has Keeping Qualities.

In addition to contributing flavor to everyday cookery, malt extract has a definite effect on the texture and keeping qualities of baked stuffs. In bread, for example, it feeds the yeast, thus decreasing the leavening time, producing a lighter loaf with better texture and a deeper, more appetizing crust. Breads, cakes, and cookies all seem to keep their freshness and tastiness longer when a small amount of the extract has been added to the dough or batter. Many malt extracts are available, most of them plain, while some are flavored with hops. The plain varieties are generally usable in the average recipes. The following recipes suggest two appetizing ways to make use of this interesting old-new flavoring:

Malt Spice Bars.

2½ teaspoons baking powder.
1-3 teaspoon salt.
½ teaspoon cinnamon.
½ teaspoon ginger or nutmeg.
½ teaspoon soda.
½ cup medium brown sugar.
¼ cup butter.
1 egg, well beaten.
2 tablespoons sour milk.
1-3 cup corn sirup.
3 tablespoons malt extract.
¼ cup each nuts and raisins.

Sift the dry ingredients twice. Cream the sugar, butter and eggs until light. Blend the malt extract with the sirup and add with sour milk to the creamed mixture. Fold in the dry ingredients together with the nuts and raisins. Pour into a shallow, buttered pan and bake in a moderate oven [350 degress F.] about fifteen minutes. Remove and cut in narrow, three inch bars when partly cool.

Pineapple Fritters.

1 cup flour.
2 teaspoons baking powder.
2 tablespoons sugar.
1-3 teaspoon salt.
¼ cup milk, warmed.
1 teaspoon malt extract.
1 egg, well beaten.
1 tablespoon lemon juice.

Sift the dry ingredients together. Stir the malt extract into the milk and cool. Add the egg, and stir into the dry ingredients. Beat in the lemon juice and the pineapple which has been shredded. Drop from a tablespoon into hot fat [380 degrees F.] and fry until golden brown. Drain and serve with a malt flavored fruit sauce.

"CIRCUS PUNCH" IS EASILY MADE THIRST QUENCHER

'Milk Blossom' Cooling and Nourishing.

Thirst quenchers which are easily prepared are popular with most families these days. Three recipes for three different kinds of cold drinks which may be prepared in the home have been prepared by nutrition specialists.

A form of "circus punch" makes an attractive drink on a warm day. Ingredients to use for 12 servings include a half cup of sugar, two lemons, half cup of apricot or other fruit juice, one and one-half cups of cherry juice and two quarts of cold water. The sugar and a cup of water are boiled for three minutes, cooled and the fruit juices added. When ready to serve, add the two quarts of cold water and some pink coloring if the latter is desired.

Another drink called "milk blossom" is readily prepared. Cherry, strawberry or raspberry juice is added slowly to cold milk and stirred constantly to prevent curdling while pouring in the juice. Only enough juice is used to give sufficient flavor, and the drink should be served immediately.

Chocolate milk shake is a cool and nourishing preparation. A paste supply can be made by using a cup of cocoa, cup of sugar, a few grains of salt and two cups of water, mixed in a double boiler, water added and cooked to a smooth paste. The latter is to be kept in a refrigerator and used as desired. Two teaspoons of paste in cold milk can be mixed in a shaker or a pint jar and served as a portion.

ROMAN HISTORY HAS ITS STORY OF CHERRY TREES

Fruit Brought from Asia by Ousted General.

BY BETTY BROWNING.

If Roman politics had not been particularly bitter about the year 70 B. C., the English language would be without one of its most sonorous adjectives, and cherries might not be the luscious fruit which inspires poems and festivals today.

Politicians and the military frequently were at outs even at that remote date, it would seem. A certain Roman general found his victories distorted into defeats by enemies at home; the truth of his hard earned triumph was withheld for years.

Remember Cicero and his praise of Pompey through endless high school Latin classes—Pompey and the defeated pirates, Pompey and the conquered Mithradates and Tigranes? Cicero neglected to mention that his client had reaped where Lucious Licinius Lucullus had sown, though there were, of course, mannerly references to that greatest of Roman gentlemen. Cicero could not overlook so convenient a pigeonhole in which to shelve the general Lucullus.

Ousted General Retires.

Deprived of his command, Lucullus withdrew to a lonely hill north of Rome, laid out extensive gardens and built the most magnificent villa Rome had yet seen. Here Lucullus played host to philosophers and poets, presiding at banquets graced by delicacies and topics of conversation hitherto unknown in the west.

Among his dazzled contemporaries, "Lucullan" became synonymous with luxury and refinement of living. Some centuries later Anglo-Saxons took over the term. So much for the English adjective.

Brings Cherries from Asia.

As for the cherries, Lucullus is said to have found luscious ancestors of our domestic cherries growing in the hills of Asia Minor, where their cousins, the peach and the quince, also originated. He brought back cherry trees and set them out in his spacious gardens.

Works on cherries mention Lucullus as the probable developer of the cultivated cherry as distinguished from the wild cherries of Europe and America. They point out that "cerasus," the Latin name for cherry, came from the Pontine city of Cerasus, near which Lucullus found his cherries growing. But these treatises do not state where Lucullus planted his cherries, nor if and how he had them served at his table. They do not even mention Lucullus' gardens or his fame as an Epicurean.

MICHIGAN SURVEY SHOWS AN INCREASE IN CELERY ACREAGE

An increased acreage with greater production per acre is forecast by celery growers. This is especially evident in a survey of the early Michigan crop, much of which will come to Chicago markets by rail, truck and boat for distribution.

In addition, a good crop of blueberries will soon be harvested, reports show. In Michigan a new law prohibits the use of mechanical rakes or pickers and the result is expected to be a fruit crop of better quality.

With the season for cold summertime drinks here again, the clever hostess is on the alert for refreshing fruit beverages. With a cookie or two or a slice of home made cake, the fruit concoctions in bright colored and patterned glasses make a pretty as well as a cool and drinkable picture for a bridge party or an informal evening at home.

If you can afford, a variety of colored glasses which may be chosen to suit the drink, should be at hand. Garnishes of berries, cherries, slices of orange or lemon, fresh pineapple, and mint also lend much to the color scheme.

Lemonade Is Favorite.

Iced lemonade still holds its title of being the most popular of fruit drinks. It's one of the simplest and easiest to make. Five lemons and one quart of water are the main supplies needed for lemonade for six people.

The old saying about not gilding the lily holds true with lemonade when it comes to sugar. Of course, some has to be added, but it should be put in as sparingly as possible as tart drinks are more refreshing and quench the thirst better than the sweeter variety.

Lemonade can be served with crushed ice or ice cubes and there may be a cherry or slice of lemon as garnishment. Too often lemonade makers cut up pieces of the rind for the drink thinking it adds to the strength, but let's correct that mistaken idea right now. It doesn't do anything but give a bitter twang to the lemonade. A slice of lemon added just before serving, however, is harmless and adds to the attractiveness of the drink.

Mint Julep Recipe.

Don't let the simplicity of lemonade making interfere with your trying out other fruit combinations. For instance there's mint julep which takes 1 cup lemon juice, 1 bunch fresh mint, 1½ cups sugar, ½ cup of water, 3 pints of ginger ale and ice. Add the mint leaves, sugar, and water to the lemon juice, letting them stand for 30 minutes. Then pour over a large piece of ice, add ginger ale, and serve in small glasses.

There are cherry drinks, too. Some of the following might be tried:

Cherry ginger ale, using twice as much ginger ale as cherry juice or equal parts of orange juice, cherry juice, and ginger ale.

Grape cherryade, one part grape juice, two parts cherry juice, and one-half as much sugar as grape juice.

Orange cherryade, one part lemon juice, two parts orange juice, four parts cherry juice, sugared to taste.

Lemon cherryade, twice as much cherry juice as lemon juice and the same amount of sugar as lemon juice.

These are all to be made without the addition of water.

TEST JERUSALEM ARTICHOKES FOR IOWA PRODUCT

Fields Will Not Soon Be Common.

Ames, Ia., July 14.—[Special.]—Fields of waving Jerusalem artichokes may become a common sight in Iowa in the future—but not soon, according to E. S. Haber of the vegetable crops section for the experiment station at Iowa State college.

With the recent announcement of the discovery of a method of making levulose, sweetest of sugars and one which many diabetics can eat safely, by chemists at Iowa State comes the possibility of a new crop for Iowa farmers—the Jerusalem artichoke, a species of wild sunflower.

There will be no outlet for such a crop in the immediate future before the manufacturing process is adapted and put on a commercial basis, said Mr. Haber, who has been in charge of growing the artichokes used by the chemists in their experiments.

Involves Some Problems.

The possibility of producing the Jerusalem artichoke on a commercial scale suggests several problems which will demand the attention of the vegetable men, agricultural engineers and chemists, said Mr. Haber.

The high cost of harvesting the tubers will need to be remedied either by development of new machinery or a variety which has its tubers in more compact bunches. To harvest the tubers used in the experiments it was necessary to cut off the tops and carry them from the field by hand because they were too heavy to rake. A potato digger was first run down the row and then on both sides of it to get all the tubers. The tubers were then picked by hand. Such a process is too expensive for commercial use.

Storage of seed also is a problem, according to Mr. Haber. Leaving the seed tubers in the ground until spring before digging them is the simplest method and is satisfactory where possible.

Cultivation Cheaper.

The artichokes were planted with an ordinary potato planter at about the same cost as planting potatoes. Cultivation is cheaper because the crop outgrows and smothers the weeds after the second working.

Use of a rich soil and fertilizer is necessary to get a heavy tonnage of the tubers per acre, according to Mr. Haber. The artichokes are hard on soil and would have to be grown in a proper crop rotation to prevent depletion of soils or necessity of using expensive fertilizers.

The experiment station here plans to study the growing of artichokes in an attempt to solve these cultural problems.

HOUSEHOLD HINTS.

PRESENT PRICES FAVOR GREATER USE FOR MEATS

Lincoln, Neb., July 14.—[Special.]—Housewives who have reduced the meat consumption in their families because of high prices which prevailed the last few years, may have established the habit of doing largely without meat, says Miss Matilda Peters, noted food authority at the Nebraska agricultural college.

Her deduction is that since they and their families have become accustomed to a limited amount of meat in their diet, they may not be aware of the relative economy of meat at the low prices which have prevailed during the last two to three months.

Food Fadists Blamed.

"'Eat sparingly of meat and eggs' and 'Do not eat meat more than once a day or, better, not more than three times a week' are examples of the type of advice which has led people to believe that the eating of meat is injurious to health," reports Miss Peters.

"Propaganda promoted by various food faddists and others regarding meat being a harmful food has no doubt resulted in a prejudice toward a perfectly wholesome food. There has also been published a number of unfair circulars.

"Two of them are entitled 'The Story of Too Much Meat' and 'The Story of Too Much Sugar.' In contrast to these, the same organization has published 'The Story of Milk' and 'The Story of Whole Grain Cereals.' Since any food has certain limitations, this organization should also have published the story of too much milk and the story of too much cereals."

Inexpensive Protein Source.

At present retail prices, this food expert finds, meat and eggs are among the least expensive sources of animal protein. Meat is nutritious and palatable and when lean is an excellent source of both of the minerals phosphorus and iron, she says.

Anemia is a common disorder, Miss Peters pointed out, which is caused by a lack of iron essential for the development of red blood cells. Liver and kidney are even richer sources of iron than are muscle meats.

SPECIAL COOKBOOKS ARE PUBLISHED FOR USE OF BLIND FOLK

Recipes in Braille for aid to the blind who wish to improve their cooking experience have been completed in a new type of cook book exclusively for the blind. All libraries for the blind have been supplied with copies.

Other means of aiding the blind have been devised. Many cooks without vision have increased their knowledge by use of the radio, and in the kitchen use specially shaped containers for various ingredients used in cooking.

Cooking No Mystery

LUCILLE E. RISER.

SCALES HEIGHTS OF COOKING ART BY WEIGHING FOOD

Be Scientific, Says Crack Student.

BY VIRGINIA GARDNER.

The mystery surrounding the art of cooking is no mystery at all to Miss Lucille E. Riser, 21 years old, of 5745 North Newcastle avenue, the only woman student in the University of Illinois college of agriculture to receive a perfect scholastic average. She completed her third year in home economics in June.

"The reason why Aunt Mary's cake was a grand success one day, and a failure the next, although she made it by the same recipe, was that she was not scientific in her cooking," Miss Riser said yesterday. "If she had weighed her flour, measured her milk and followed other directions to the letter, the cake would have to 'turn out' the same."

Good Cooks Are Made.

Scales, thermometers, ovens which are scientifically controlled, knowledge of chemistry and testing of baking powders and all food properties in the laboratory have exploded the theory that cooks are born and not made, according to Miss Riser.

She told of the problems studied in her home economics classes. She has never boiled an egg or peeled a potato in her class work. Those matters are too simple, she said.

But she has made biscuits in 24 different ways to find out why biscuits can be as hard as rocks one time and flaky and light as snowdrops another. In one batch of biscuits she would put one teaspoon of baking powder [only it would be weighed, not measured by spoonful] while in another she would put one and one-quarter teaspoons [measured by grams]. Different kinds of baking powder were experimented with, different amounts of shortening, and so on.

Hopes for Teaching Job.

When she finishes her fourth year, Miss Riser will try to obtain a position teaching other girls scientific cooking, and "the why of things rather than the how," she said.

She expects to be married in three or four years, however, she said.

"And then I'll probably go back to making cakes and biscuits in the old way," she said. "Maybe it's more fun, after all, not to know quite how a thing is going to turn out. At any rate, I won't run my household too scientifically."

WHOLE WHEAT IS HEALTHFUL FOOD AND APPETIZING

"The whole wheat grain cleaned, washed and boiled in a large amount of water for five hours, or until soft, makes an excellent breakfast cereal that is flavorful, sweet and most economical," according to Elvira T. Smith, home economics specialist of North Dakota agricultural college. "The entire wheat kernel may be used. In cooking, a large amount of water is necessary because the wheat swells about four times its original size.

"Well cooked whole wheat can be served in a variety of ways. It makes a good addition to meat broth or consommé. It may be combined with sweetened fruit sauce or pulp and whipped cream, thus making an excellent dessert, or it might be combined with maple sirup and whipped cream. The cooked whole wheat is especially good in recipes with meat."

Directions for making Spanish cooked wheat follow:

SPANISH COOKED WHEAT.

1 onion. 2 cups stewed or canned tomatoes.
3 tablespoons fat. 1 teaspoon salt.
1 cup cooked wheat. Few grains of pepper.

Fry onion in fat until delicate brown. Add chopped beef and stir until meat is well browned. Add tomatoes, seasoning and wheat. Cook slowly for about 25 minutes or until the liquid has been largely absorbed by the wheat.

CHICAGO STORE DISPLAYING OLD SHEFFIELD PLATE

Making of Silver Pieces a Lost Art.

BY JEAN GUTHRIE.

Lovers of old England in the days when men defied the doctors, wined and dined on a breath taking scale—and lived to be a hundred -may once more browse among the 18th century traditions and gloat over quaint marrow scoopers and shovels, snuffer trays, ponderous wine coolers, mammouth bread baskets and mysterious cheese dishes in a visit to the unique old Sheffield exhibition now on display in one of Chicago's leading jewelry salons on south Michigan boulevard.

The creation of true Sheffield silver, exquisitely handwrought by silversmiths for a brief century in England, is a lost art today, according to William H. Wagstaff, English silver authority. And as the rare old pieces gradually disappear, the value of the survivors increases.

Job for Silversmith.

Sheffield silver differed, we learn, from sterling in that it was plated—silver on copper either on one or both sides. But while today's silver plating is a job for the electroplater, in the Georgian period it was a craft for the silversmith who painstakingly hammered bars of copper over the surface of sheets of silver, and then hand moulded the pieces into shape.

The slight imperfections and variations in pattern mark the true Sheffield pieces, according to Mr. Wagstaff. Another characteristic of Sheffield made for royalty is shown by the imbedded squares of solid sterling designed for the imprint of the crest, to prevent it from cutting through to the copper.

As for pattern, Sheffields were varied and often puzzling. The most common was the gaderon, or rope design which was moulded from sterling and soldered onto old Sheffield. The lion's head and mask also appeared in some of the finer pieces.

Huge yet delightfully graceful candelabra form the crowning glory of Sheffield silver, but often it is the novel, extensible single candlesticks which win the applause. These are slender silver sticks which may stand regally at eleven inches or be telescoped neatly to an eight inch height to suit the occasion.

Served Double Purpose.

Soup by the gallon was apparently the eighteenth century motto. And like other Sheffield pieces, the huge covered soup trenchers could do double duty. A turn of the wrist and the handle of the deep cover came off, and sargo—another dish for the already groaning board.

Great Georgian coffee and tea urns may be found equipped with small alcohol lamps. Others contained a central sheath into which was lowered a solid bar of red hot iron which set the water bubbling in a surprisingly short time.

Today's midget salt and pepper shakers would stare up aghast at the Eiffel tower effects which used to supply England with its condiments. Sterling pepper "muffineers" as well as the old time salt containers sometimes stood fifteen inches tall, with the salt or pepper mounted about half way up, the rest of the structure being simply an empty dunce cap which was removed when a diner wanted to dip out more salt for his roast beef or rarebit.

Dishes for Old Rarebit.

True English rarebit, with its exact science in the mixing of beer and cheese, had to have an elaborate setting of its own. Quaint old Sheffield cheese dishes may be found with sealed trays beneath for hot water and hinged lids to capture the aromas of this typical after dinner "savoury."

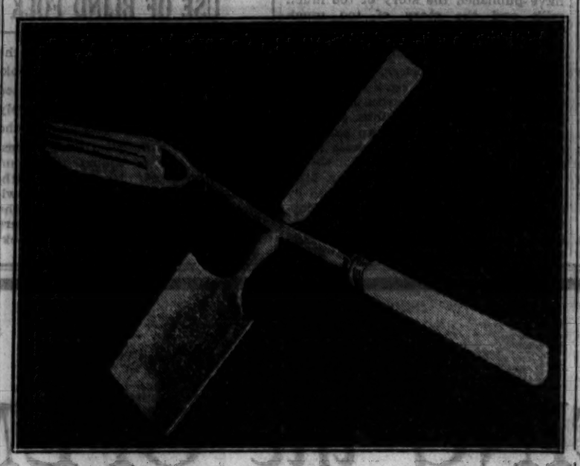
Marrow bones, served after the soup and before the fish, demanded equipment quite as elaborate as our own modern array for lobster attacks. Long silver scoops dug out the marrow from the bones. And two implements—a species of large serving forks and a sturdy trowel—respectively cut off and dished up the marrow.

Sweating whisky decanters were kept off Georgian tables by wooden bottomed Sheffield holders. And bread eaters always, old England served its staff of life in no wafer thin slices but in hefty chunks which were placed on a napkin in huge silver baskets. Exquisite examples of these grand old containers are still in existence.

USE TO EAT MARROW BONES



In wining and dining Georgian England marrow bones were the luscious aftermath of the soup course. These implements of old Sheffield silver cut and shoveled up the marrow.

FIND CORN BELT HENS LAY EGGS RICH IN VITAMIN

Yellow Maize Gets Credit for High Quality.

BY EVERETT SWINGLE.

Market and nutrition experts say that eggs produced on middle western corn belt farms are of high quality and food value as compared to the eggs produced in other sections of the country.

Two principal reasons for corn belt egg quality are given by Paul Mandeville, manager of the Institute of American Poultry Industries. The predominance of yellow corn as a staple feed for poultry is one reason and another is that hens of the central west are fed much more grain than flocks anywhere else in the world.

A Natural Egg Area.

"The great area of the middle west is the natural corn producing area of the world," said Mr. Mandeville. "Eggs from this area are largely the product of yellow corn which is rich in vitamin A. This vitamin is carried to the yolk of the egg in the oil of the corn, while the starches and fats of the corn blend easily with the proteins of other feeds.

"This results in an egg of better body and rich in characteristics most desired in baking and cooking. Central west farms market annually about 40,000 carloads of eggs, of which from one-fourth to one-third are in the high quality class and sought by the best trade."

Improvement in Marketing.

Consistent educational programs have improved the marketing of eggs. In spite of their protective shell, it has been shown, eggs are perishable and require protecting from unfavorable high temperatures, which induce spoilage. The grocery store which once accepted and kept eggs packed in oats is no longer modern unless it keeps the eggs refrigerated at temperatures best for butter, milk, and other perishables.

HOUSEHOLD HINT.

The large leaves of cauliflower may be boiled for half an hour and served with butter. Their flavor is similar to that of Brussels sprouts.

DRIED CURRANTS IN PACKAGE FORM ARE DRIED GRAPES TO U. S.

Dried currants purchased in package form at the grocery store are not currants but dried grapes. At least that is the description of dried "currants" as outlined by the federal food and drug administration.

Raisins of Corinth are considered among the best and are imported from isles of Greece. Other varieties include the Vostizza, Patras, Amalias, Pyrgos, and Kalamyos. Some packages are labeled "washed," which means that possible exterior impurities have been removed by washing.

Destroys 13 Novels; 14th Wins Praise

Writes of Mad Scientist Facing Death.

"A Preface to Death," by Fred Rothermell. [Little Brown.] Published today.

FRED ROTHERMELL, the thirty-one year old author of "A Preface to Death," has to his credit, besides the present novel, thirteen destroyed novels, two destroyed collections of short stories, one published book of short stories, and an indomitable ambition. He has been a newspaper man, a student of medicine, a chauffeur, a power house oiler, a janitor, a clerk, a farm hand, an art director and a free lance illustrator, all, he says, for the sake of getting experience from which he may draw material for books.

FRED ROTHERMELL.

"A Preface to Death" is in many ways an extraordinary book, sometimes brilliantly conceived and executed and sometimes confused and uncertain. The story concerns the tragic adventures of an astronomer past forty who, under the terrible mental and physical strain of a new discovery, revolts against the pettiness of his home life and his family.

The cold he had contracted on a trip to Africa, exaggerated by sleeplessness and incontinent drinking, exposure and fatigue develops into tuberculosis. He is forced to leave his work and go to a sanitarium in New Mexico. His departure comes as both a burden and a relief, a burden because he must give up the only passion of his life, astronomy, a relief because he will be free, his own master again.

At the sanitarium he meets Juno, a fellow consumptive and a fellow sufferer from life's tricks and whimsies. They decide that life in the sanitarium is impossible and that they will go away together to the desert to fight alone for their lives. From the time they leave until the inevitable conclusion of the book the reader watches the author build up his blinding climax, watches the slow progress of doom, and is held fascinated by the futility of denying the preface to death.

"A Preface to Death" calls to mind the momentous work of that great German, Thomas Mann. "The Magic Mountain" by that author has the same subject and practically the same general setting. It is true that Mann's book has a broader and more complex canvas, that his mastery of his huge theme is almost unerring, that he is more profoundly interested in the riddles of the human soul. Nevertheless, Fred Rothermell, with the limitations of space and with a narrowed concentration on the subject of consumption, has written a book that reveals the same power, the same brilliance in handling atmosphere and character that made "The Magic Mountain" a literary event.

Now and again the reader receives the impression of vagueness and indefiniteness in the style and motivation. The tenseness of the atmosphere, the subtlety of emotional conflicts, the complicated cross currents of human relationship, all from time to time, seem oddly pointless, as if the author had not kept his motive clearly and firmly in mind, had neglected to shape and direct his material.

Though there are several themes in the book, and an emphasis upon motives through the means of symbolism that is for the most part restrained and effective, the value of the book does not so much rest on the ideas and philosophy as it does upon the characterization of Homer Vondorn, the mad astronomer. He is an inexplicable man. Tortured by the necessities of reality, exalted by the only passion of his life, the study of the stars, forced to fix his eyes upon the earth and away from the sky, driven steadily and maddeningly toward his doom by a disease that denies him the only things of life he wants, he holds out his life to death not because he wants to but because he is impelled to by something deeper in him than will or desire.

The year he spends on the desert with Juno witnesses his struggle against himself, his effort to keep his eyes upon the ground and not on the stars. The curious passionate relationship with Juno becomes more and more complicated, more and more impossible as he approaches nearer and nearer to his destiny. The characterization of Homer Vondorn will remain for some time in every reader's memory. He is real, with the godlike proportions of a man exalted by his own genius, and with the humanness and pettiness of a man blindly egotistic and unaware of the needs and desires of other people.

Perhaps even more memorable than Homer Vondorn or the atmosphere of the sanitarium and the fantastic desert is the part consumption itself plays in the book. The details of the manifestation of the disease are described with vividness. The cough and the fever which the patients try to forget in smoking and drinking, the weakness and the nausea, the flush and the pallor and the final hemorrhages are the physical accompaniments of a thing that becomes a spectre haunting the shadows of the doomed victims, slowly destroying mind and will and spirit. "A Preface To Death" is a book to be read, primarily because it reveals a talent that, despite its unsteadiness and unevenness, is commanding. M. D.

Happiness and Thrill Chasing Often Confused

That's Why Many Are Dissatisfied.

BY DORIS BLAKE.

What do you mean when you say: "I'd like to get more happiness out of life"; "I want more happiness out of marriage than So-and-So"? What is your idea of happiness?

You hear people say that they've never known the happiness they felt was their due. What do they mean? That they haven't had successive days of exciting adventure? That they haven't known moments of great merriment? Thrills? Superlative joy?

The question is whether most of us aren't happier than we think we are. We do not recognize what happiness is. We've got to thinking of happiness as something clothed in glamour, public adulation perhaps. We think of it as part of an outstanding occasion in life, as a wedding day, let's say, or the period of courtship, an anniversary occasion, a day of reward for distinguished service. Something like that.

The day baby got a first tooth, the day he took his first couple of steps, the day one's husband surprised one with a bunch of flowers were happy days. There was no fanfare about the occasion. Simple things, these, but happiness provoking.

"I have never been particularly happy," reports "A Wife." "My husband is a good man, but we haven't been able to go places and do the things I'd like."

The question is if "A Wife" wasn't reasonably happy wouldn't she have found the ways and means of going the places and doing the things she'd like? Isn't she happier as she is than exerting herself for the things she says she wants?

The trouble with most of us is that we feed on a wrong definition of happiness. We get it all mixed up with excitement chasing. One of the dictionary definitions of happiness is "freedom from pain." That's a long cry from the average person's idea of happiness. On the other hand, happiness isn't necessarily a positive sensation either.

Persia Appeals for Early Action on Art Objects for '33 Fair

BY H. BASIL.

TEHERAN, Persia, July 14.—[Special.]—The minister of commerce and the minister of fine arts have made a call through the press for traders and private collectors to hurry along with the preparation for dispatching to Chicago for the World's Fair anything they consider worth exhibiting.

The wardens of one of the Christian churches of a large provincial city are expected to send a valuable altar carpet covered with candle droppings. This carpet was woven more than two hundred years ago when the church was built during the reign of Shah Abbas.

It is not known whether the carpet will be exhibited in its present state or whether it will be cleaned by a special chemical process, but it is understood that the carpet is being sent to America for the dual purpose of being cleaned and exhibited.

Many of the Christian churches in Persia have valuable objects of art, particularly carpets, and many of the churches have been cheated out of their valuables by crooked dealers.

Mayor Walker kept him waiting 40 minutes. The rajah is absolute ruler over 25,000 subjects, nine children, and his wife. The ranee directs 50 servants and spends most of her time with her children. She was wearing a long, green native dress of washable satin covered by a white sari with a batique border of red and black stripes.

Vernon Williams Presents Unusual Program of Songs

In his song recital at the Punch & Judy theater yesterday morning Vernon Williams paid tribute to the age of Sarti, Caldara, and Handel, a period when a great amount of the world's most aristocratic music was written. Mr. Williams was particularly happy in his choice, since he brought together songs that were both excellent in themselves and of infrequent appearance on song programs. He sang with the manner of a person who has put much study on this period.

Cavallo's Symphonic band will give the second of its series of concerts from the band shell of Grant park tonight at 8 o'clock. The program will contain works by Wagner, Massenet, Ponchielli, and Tschaikowsky, also medleys of classical, popular, and jazz numbers. The Illinois Central Male chorus, directed by Carl Craven, a former first prize winner in the Chicagoland Musical Festival contests, will be featured in a group of songs, and Richard Stross, concert virtuoso, will appear as soloist. Erect Stature Gives Figure Youth, Grace

So Sit Up Straight, Ladies!

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

"Please print an exercise that will straighten shoulders. With me it has become so marked that my round shoulders make it painful for me to carry myself correctly. SHARON."

I print the above to prove that round shouldered sitting and walking may lead to difficulty in ever recovering the easy grace of youth. True, some youngsters start out handicapped through lack of parental discipline in this regard. They go through their early teens without being told to sit erect at table; to sit erect at work desk, to walk with back straight. It is hard for them to get the shoulders strengthened later on.

Parents can contribute one great beauty asset by making their girls [boys, too] hold themselves erect, put their feet down with the toes straight ahead. They may not be able to control the color of the eyes or the hair, but at least they can give their children carriage and set them on the way to the indisputable beauty asset of grace.

Some day, just as an experience and a first hand lesson in the youth and beauty value of a smart, upright carriage, count the women who pass over whose smartness of appearance you exclaim. Count those, also, whose dowdiness is likewise impressive.

You never see an older woman, a woman in the fifties, say, who is gaining compliments on her youthful appearance who hasn't a good shoulder line and back.

Exercise will help straighten the shoulders. It will lift that heavy lump off the shoulder blades. Doubling the fists, bringing them to the shoulder hollows in front and pushing forward, upward, sidewise with the arms, giving a good strong pull on the muscles with each movement, will also help. Also, describing circles with extended hands pulls those shoulder muscles into play.

BUT the most important thing to do is to sit up straight. Keep on sitting up straight! Stop in your work every little while to see if you really are sitting upright. And stand with equal regard for the straightness of the spinal column.

Pastor at Blue Island Quits at Board's Request

The Rev. Irving L. Mellott, for four years pastor of the First Congregational church of Blue Island, has resigned, it was announced last night. His resignation was requested by the board but details were not disclosed. Edwin Stothard, chairman of the church board, said the action was taken "on general principles." When asked if the board felt that the minister was receiving a higher salary than it thought should be paid, Stothard replied: "Too much for the services rendered."

HOW TO KEEP FROM GROWING OLD

Many Notables from East in City for Race

Fashionables Will Attend Arlington Classic.

BY JUDITH CASS.

THE Classic to be run at Arlington Park tomorrow afternoon has attracted numerous well known easterners to Chicago, among them some who were scheduled to take prominent parts in the big benefit that is being given tomorrow night at the Marshall Fields' Long Island estate, including the Cornelius Vanderbilt Whitneys and the John Hay Whitneys.

Both these young matrons are included in the list of cigaret girls published in all the eastern papers, but since they are here, or rather, Mrs. "Jock" Whitney is here and Mrs. "Sonny" Whitney is arriving tomorrow morning, they certainly cannot be at the dinner and fête to benefit the Biological institute of Cold Spring Harbor.

Neither will Mrs. Frederic McLaughlin [Irene Castle] break her retirement and dance with Clifton Webb, as it was reported that she would do, for she will arrive in Chicago on Sunday from an eastern visit, which means that she won't be at the fête.

That the affair will be a wonderful one, though, is certain, for elaborate plans have been made for it, and the invitation list was most exclusive, even though every one who goes must pay for his supper. Some of the New Yorkers feel that the $00 invited by Mr. and Mrs. Field to this affair will be known thenceforth as the Eight Hundred of New York society, taking the place of Ward McAllister's Four Hundred. The party is to be a dinner with circus features afterwards on the lawn of Caumsett, with some of the notables from that part of the country taking the part of freaks in the side shows.

"Jock" Whitneys Visit Niblacks.

The "Jock" Whitneys have been visiting the Austin H. Niblacks in Lake Forest since last Tuesday, going to the races every afternoon, and incidentally having at least one afternoon that was very profitable to Mrs. Whitney, for on Wednesday her horse Crowning Glory won the Hyde Park stakes revival, winning almost $18,000. Mrs. Whitney's Stepenfetchit is scheduled to race in the Classic, and her husband's cousin, Cornelius V. Whitney, also is to have an entry in that rich race, for his Top Flight is to be in the running.

The "Sonny" Whitneys are to be the guests for the week-end of Mr. and Mrs. John Hertz at their country place at Cary, the Hertz other guests to be Admiral and Mrs. Cary T. Grayson of Washington, and Mr. and Mrs. Silas J. Mason of Lexington, Ky.

Among other notables here for the races tomorrow are Mr. and Mrs. Morton L. Schwartz of New York, who were here for the Democratic convention, and who returned to see Mr. Schwartz' Gusto race tomorrow; Mr. and Mrs. Charles Amory [her stable is not represented in the Classic this season], and Mr. and Mrs. William R. Coe—he is the owner of Osculator, a Classic entry.

Vice President Curtis, who has attended every Classic since its inception, has found it impossible to come this year, but has sent sincere regrets and best wishes to the Albert D. Laskers, who usually have been his host and hostess. Tomorrow night the Otto Lehmanns will give their annual Classic party at the Post and Paddock club at the conclusion of the racing, and there will be numerous luncheon parties at the club before the program starts.

Many Parties for Crosleys.

Admiral and Mrs. W. S. Crosley are about the busiest people on the north shore, what with preparations for their departure for the Pacific coast and keeping tab on all the farewell parties that friends of the popular pair want to give for them.

They are to start west on Aug. 1, and practically every evening between now and the 29th will see them going to a party at which they are to be the special guests. They are not accepting invitations for engagements after the 28th because they must allow three days for final packing.

Next Thursday evening the Press club is giving a large dinner for the Admiral and Mrs. Crosley, and a few of the other parties scheduled for them include a dinner on Friday, the 22d, at which Capt. and Mrs. Halsey Powell will be hosts; a dinner to be given on the 26th by Capt. and Mrs. John Abbott at their residence in Evanston, and a dinner that Commander and Mrs. Boland will give at Great Lakes on the 28th. The nicest party of all probably will be the one that the officers of Great Lakes are to give on the evening of the 27th for their beloved commander and his wife.

The Crosleys will go straight to the Pacific coast, where the admiral is to relieve Admiral Pringle in command of the battleship No. 3 fleet. They will be succeeded at Great Lakes by Rear Admiral and Mrs. W. P. Cluverius, who are expected to arrive here in late September.

Mr. and Mrs. Cornelius Crane, who have been occupying Mr. Crane's mother's Lake Shore drive house for several weeks, are making some grand vacation plans, although they are not certain yet that they'll be able to carry all of them out. They are leaving Chicago next Tuesday to visit Mrs. Richard T. Crane and Miss Florence Crane at Ipswich, Mass.

Then, if their plans develop as they hope, they will sail for Europe and then travel through the fjords in Norway and Sweden in their own yacht, which will be in readiness for them when they get to the other side of the Atlantic.

Laflins Motor to Southwest.

Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd A. Laflin of Lake Forest are motoring to Santa Fé for a visit with Mrs. Laflin's mother, Mrs. William E. Clow Jr., and her sister, Miss Francise Clow, who went to Santa Fé after her return from Europe in late May. From there the

New Luggage Is Built for Style, Service

Color Gets a Place in Modern Designs.

BY RHEA SEEGER.

STRONG armed porters must be hard to find when you need them the worst if one can judge by the flyweight summer luggage that is being shoved quickly and easily around for the benefit of curious and "show me" shoppers.

Whether your shopping trip is for the express purpose of spending some of your vacation hoardings for smart 1932 bags and cases and hat boxes, or whether you wander into a baggage shop by accident and without the slightest urge to buy or even travel, it's a ten to one chance that you will exit with new summer luggage and a wild desire to travel and show it to the world.

Traveling equipment, like travel tours and rates, features such phenomenally low prices that the popular feat that it is cheaper to travel than to stay at home is a cheerful and obvious truth. You can buy sturdy, practical, and long wearing luggage for the smallest sums you have ever been asked to part with. And if all this fresh, new, colorful luggage doesn't lure more hidden dollars out of deep seclusion, nothing ever will.

Look for the natural linen colored cases of a superior linen crash, with colored stripes as decorations. Besides helping a doubting tourist to rapidly identify personal belongings, these striped suitcases and handbags supply local color wherever you send them. They are also protected against showers and any mud splattering . . . you can restore the first fine gloss with the daily swish of a duster and wipe away all signs of travel stains with a dampened cloth. These linen covered cases come in all sizes, from the small week-end case to several sizes of suitcases, a compact but capacious small trunk case, and square hat boxes.

Good looking leather affairs, made of deep brown and black, ought to please the most critical masculine luggage toter . . . they are made to withstand all the ordinary whams and scuffs and kicks as well as the extraordinary treatment that sometimes abuses an extraordinarily good looking suitcase.

Gladstone bags are again going about with the most fastidious male globe trotters . . . say what you will, men have just as many extras to pack as any bundle collecting female, and the obliging expanding bellows of a Gladstone bag takes care of a lot of excess baggage without a complaint or a telltale bulge.

The new low prices on fitted cases are sensational . . . if you have always promised yourself the luxury of such an extravagance, now is the time to buy . . . buy them at a price that is anything but a sinful luxury. You can find swanky red leathers, deep blue, royal purple, and jade green, fitted with matching enameled toiletries, that are breath taking beauties and unheard of bargains at the price.

While picnic kits probably are only distantly related to such swagger travel luggage, this is the season to invest in these kits, too. Picnic going people will plan to eat out of doors all summer after they have acquired any of these pluperfect leather covered cases with everything included in the way of unbreakable dishes, thermos bottles, compartments for plenty of food and the necessary cutlery.

One huge success will take the eye of the esthetic eater . . . black and white cross-barred napkins with fringed edges . . . red handled knives and forks, and, as a knockout climax, scarlet plates and cups and saucers of an indestructible composition that is

I Like You So Much

BY MAY EDGINTON

SYNOPSIS.

Gold Franklyn calls Dr. Elverton, who has a surgery in a poor district of London, to attend her indolent, dependent young half brother. The doctor offers to give Barney Pierce, a well to do accident victim, a lift to his destination, and Pierce waits while the doctor makes his call. He catches a glimpse of the pretty creature who summoned the doctor. Both men determine to help the plucky young orphan girl. The doctor is to sail the next week to New York and Havana on a leave, taking the ship doctor's place. Mrs. Doris Bathaway, a widow, friend of Pierce's, is to sail on the same boat. She wants a maid-companion for the Atlantic crossing. The doctor sends Gold to see Mrs. Bathaway and she gets the job. Pierce regrets putting Gold under the demoralising influence of Doris. He decides to sail himself. On the boat Doris meets David Dorrance, who wants to interest Pierce in a business deal. Doris asks Gold to dine with her. They are joined by Pierce and Dorrance. Gold is angered by Pierce's cynicism and distrust of women. Gip Alen, Gold's half brother, stows away on the boat and threatens to disclose his identity unless Gold does as he bids. Pierce, who overhears Gip's threats, unknown to Gold, takes the youth in hand.

INSTALLMENT XVII.

A STOWAWAY DEALT WITH.

The captain had just risen from the now deserted bridge table, and his personal steward was rapidly clearing away cards, scorers, and whisky glasses. Gip Alen blinked in the strong light, his languid bravado leaving him. He was conscious of his shabby suit, not improved by lying in a boat, by clambering out somehow under a stretched tarpaulin. His hands were dirty; his hair roughened; and the captain, quite still, was boring into him with eyes that knew a derelict and a detrimental on sight. The young man realized that he stood between two men who, for all their different callings, were made of much the same elemental stuff.

"Well, Mr. Pierce, nice of you to look me up again. What can I do for you?"

"I've brought you a stowaway, captain, named Alen."

"How d'you know my name?"

"Shut up," said the captain briefly. "A stowaway, Mr. Pierce?"

"Yes. I found him getting back into one of the boats."

"Indeed. Now," said the captain to Gip Alen, more briefly yet, "do you want to speak?"

The young man thought swiftly of Gold, her scarlet coat, the lace frock, the rich employer. "Yes, I'd like to tell you who I am and why I came aboard——"

"He has nothing to say, captain," said Barney Pierce, and the hand that still held Gip's arm tightened. "The fact is that he has a relative aboard, a lady, who should now be well rid of him. But he followed her with an idea of blackmailing her into paying, or getting some one to pay his passage."

"Shut up," said the captain.

"Indeed," said the captain, looking the young man over as if he were some peculiarly revolting animal of a lower species.

"I'll pay his fare over third class if you'll have him put there and kept there, captain."

"With pleasure, Mr. Pierce." Addressing Gip again the sailor asked curtly: "Well, d'you know your luck?"

"Luck? A steerage passage 'luck'——"

"Luck," said the captain briefly. "Well, any baggage?"

"Not an ounce," the young man answered, trying for his usual nonchalance, and badly failing.

"I'll find him the bare necessaries," said Barney Pierce, seeming to tower over him, though there was a matter of but perhaps four inches between them. He could hear again the girl's desperate cry: "And your clothes! You've left them all behind! I can't provide!"

"Right, Mr. Pierce, very good of you. We'll send for the purser straightaway." The captain pushed a bell. "Passport?" he asked sharply.

"N-n-no," Gip stammered.

"No passport? How are you to land?"

"I didn't think."

"Think now. About Ellis island. Or our keeping you till we turn round, taking you back home, and prosecuting you."

The young man looked at them meditatively, then dazedly, incredulously; these things didn't happen!

"Well," he complained, "that wouldn't really happen, would it?"

"That is the exact procedure," the sailor told him grimly.

"I'm an American citizen," said Gip Alen.

"Can you prove it?" the captain asked.

"I've got my birth certificate on me—I wasn't crazy enough to leave without that. I knew where my"—something in Pierce's stare made him hesitate—"where that relative of mine kept it, with a few more family papers. It's here all right," he touched his breast pocket.

"This relative of yours isn't an American," said Pierce briefly. "How comes it?"

"That's not your business!"

"You've made yourself our business," the captain barked, "and I advise you to answer."

Gip said sullenly, "Well, my father was an American. I was born in Mystic, Conn. I've got it all here. I tell you, my . . . this relative you're making a mystery about," he said, turning resentfully on Pierce, "was born in London. Then her mother—she was an actress of sorts—came out to New York and met my father and married him, and I was the"—he laughed derisively—"the unhappy result."

Pierce and the captain looked at one another.

"If this is all true, it simplifies part of the problem," said the captain. "You may be able to land. But after——"

"Leave that to me," said Pierce.

The steward stood in the doorway. "Ask Mr. Roberts to be good enough to come to me at once," said the captain. "So you're prepared to look after this young man, Mr. Pierce?"

"I'll fix him," Barney Pierce nodded.

"You're very good to trouble about him. I hope he knows his luck."

"I'll trouble about him if he takes my orders."

"Hear that?" said the sailor briefly. "You'll take Mr. Pierce's orders."

"I'm damned if I——"

"It's a poor alternative for you. There's a long bread line in New York, you can take my word."

Gip flinched again.

"All right."

"You've nothing to sulk about," said the captain. "Well, Mr. Pierce?"

"This fellow's to promise not to waylay, molest, or annoy this relative of his in any way either on the ship or when landing. If he does I won't be responsible for helping him, either with the authorities if that still proves necessary or anyhow else."

"Hear that?"

"I hear," Gip murmured disdainfully.

"He'll write a note to this lady telling her so, and saying that a passenger has taken pity on him and paid his fare and will see him through."

"Sit down," said the captain, pointing to a desk.

Gip sat.

"No names."

"You hear that? Mr. Pierce's name is not to be mentioned. Get on with it."

"I'll see the note when he's written it," Pierce remarked.

Gip Alen was flushed with rage and an unusual humiliation as he wrote that enforced note to Gold, under the eyes of two hard men who knew him, no escaping it, exactly for what he was. He wrote, endeavoring to put a flattering complexion upon the thing as far as he himself was concerned:

Dear Gold: A good Samaritan found your poor half-brother only about two seconds after you had left him so harshly. This G. S. has taken kindly to your step-brother and is squaring accounts with the captain and purser and paying third class expenses and so on. Don't try to get in touch with me—I don't want to talk to you again for some time, I assure you. GIP.

"You've a nerve," said Pierce when he read this.

"Grant me something," Gip replied impudently.

"It'll do," said Pierce slowly. "I don't care how you choose to put it, and I'm sure your half-sister won't, so long as you don't trouble her again And when we land——"

"Yes?" said Gip standing up.

Laflins will drive to California. They plan to return about the middle of August.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Reynolds, who were expected to return this week from a two months' stay in Europe, are prolonging their travels and won't be back until August.

Mrs. Robert D. McFadon has arrived at the Waumbek hotel in Jefferson, N. H., for her usual summer visit, our correspondent in the White mountains writes. Mrs. McFadon's elder daughter, Mrs. Mark Skinner Willing, has a summer cottage there on the slope of Starr King mountain, and Mrs. McFadon's younger daughter, Mrs. John Kendrick Bangs Jr., of Detroit, and Mr. Bangs, are with Mrs. McFadon.

Mr. Bangs has achieved distinction on the golf course and is a member of the Waumbek golf team. Mrs. John G. Gleesner, president of the White Mountain Garden club has announced that the third flower show will be held next Thursday at the Maplewood casino, the proceeds to be used for civic planting.

From Pittsfield we hear that Mrs. Cyrus Bentley has arrived there to visit Mrs. Frederick T. West at Court Hill, and that Kimball Salisbury is to join Mrs. Salisbury and their children at Tor Court, the summer place of his mother, Mrs. Warren M. Salisbury, this week-end.

There will be open house today at Arden Shore camp out at Lake Bluff, and friends of the camp will drive out from Chicago and the north shore for the annual picnic and program by the children vacationing there.

Party Guests Cheer as Cubs Beat Dodgers

Hundred Boys and Girls See Exciting Game.

BY SALLY JOY BROWN.

One of the most exciting parties in the series of good times we have during the summer months is the annual day at Cubs park and it was an especially good party yesterday afternoon because the north side team beat the Brooklyn Dodgers in a game that threatened more than once to be a tie.

There we were, one hundred strong, in the choice box seats which Mr. Veeck, president of the Cubs, had provided for us. We shouted and cheered and applauded from the moment Slade of the Dodgers came up to bat until Sukeforth, also from Brooklyn, caused the last out in the ninth. And what a game it was! Neck to neck the boys batted and ran and walked their way through the first six innings and it looked as though the pitchers, Guy Bush and Dazzy Vance, were never going to let either opponent get a run.

Then came the seventh inning and things began to happen. Wright of the Dodgers came to bat and knocked a fast one out into left field. The ball whizzed over the diamond and seemed to gain in velocity the farther it went. Would it land on a roof across the street or was there a chance that Riggs Stephenson whose long arm stretched into the air would be able to intercept it? There was and he did, and the shouts that came up from the boxes back of third base where one hundred boys and girls were sitting could be heard for blocks around, I am sure.

In the same inning Manager Hornsby who, by the way, played third base, scored the first run for his team. Came the eighth—that exciting, thrilling inning in which Billy Herman, Ki Ki Cuyler and Stephenson added runs to the score. And the ninth, when it looked like the Dodgers were going to get a home run and the score would be tied. But——

Stripp and Wright of Brooklyn came up to bat and singled. They were followed by Lopez, who walked. The bases are loaded. What's going to happen? Now Sukeforth, pinch hitting for Phelps, comes to bat. Whoopee . . . he fails, the game is over. Score, 4 to 1 in favor of the Cubs!

Do you wonder that we had a good time at this party?

Stunning Model Designed for Larger Figure Is Cut on Slenderizing Lines

WOMAN'S DRESS.

Here is a stunning model for summer town wear, with up to the minute light topped bodice. It is cut on slenderizing lines, and gives flat slimness through the hips, while the front panel effect lends height. The neck is cut in the becoming V collarless line, and the lower part of the bodice tapers towards the center waistline, lessening the bodice breadth.

The pattern, 2864, comes in sizes 36, 38, 40, 42, 44, 46, and 48 inches bust measure. Size 38 requires 2¾ yards of 39 inch material with ⅞ yard of 39 inch contrasting.

Radio Rushes Work on Movie of Prison Camp

Comes at Time of Florida Investigation.

BY GEORGE SHAFFER.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Hollywood, Cal., July 14.—[Special.]—The investigation of Florida prison camp conditions following the death of a road gang prisoner comes just as the Radio-RKO film company is rushing to completion a chain gang picture with a locale laid in southern swamps.

The picture's title is "Liberty Road," and it has a cast of white and Negro actors headed by Richard Dix.

Sid Sutherland, former Chicago and New York newspaper man and magazine writer has been retained by Warners as writer of the "Match King" story. The film is to be based on disclosures of the Kreuger investigation.

Nancy Lyon, reported fiancée of Harry Bannister, could not get close enough to Ann Harding's ex-husband to bid him a sweetheart's adieu at the airport yesterday when Bannister hopped east because Miss Harding and little Jane Bannister, Miss Harding's daughter by the actor, monopolized Bannister's good-byes while the mechanics twisted his propeller.

Miss Harding was reported by airport attendants as having offered congratulations to Bannister on his engagement to Miss Lyon, which Bannister himself said was a "friendship rather than an engagement."

However, Miss Lyon, who is rehearsing to play in Eddie Cantor's "The Kid From Spain" film, said she "could not truthfully deny" that she and Miss Harding's ex-husband are betrothed. She said, "I am very fond of Harry Bannister. My family approves of Harry. He is on his way to Europe and I do not know when he will return."

WASHINGTON SOCIETY

Washington, D. C., July 14.—[Special.]—President Hoover will entertain a company of men at luncheon Friday, July 22, in honor of the president-elect of Panama, Señor Harmodio Arias, former minister from his country to Washington. Señor Arias will succeed President Riccardo Alfaro, who resigned the post as minister here to be elected president.

Secretary of State Stimson also will entertain for the distinguished visitor, though it is not definitely decided whether the party will be a luncheon for men or a garden party at Woodley, the secretary's suburban home. The president-elect will be a guest at the legation during his several days' stay here.

Secretary of State Stimson was the ranking guest at dinner this evening of the French ambassador, Paul Claudel, who entertained in celebration of Bastile day. Among the other guests was the Italian ambassador, Giacomo de Martino, dean of the diplomatic corps, and the members of the French embassy staff.

Swim Suit and Dance Dress Twins Worn by Parisiennes at the Seaside

BY BETTINA BEDWELL.

PARIS.—[Special.] — Some elegant Parisiennes have adopted the Mainbocher idea of the twin bathing suit and evening frock for the seaside summer resort. You can pick out the same lovely creature whom you saw sunning herself at the Monte Carlo pool in the morning by the dress she wears in the evening, for her dance dress will be identical with her swim suit in color and in effect. Naturally there is a difference in the expanse of leg visible, but the resemblance is striking none-the-less.

One of these twin ensembles is shown in our sketch today. In the background is the swim suit, which is hand knitted, with a white bodice and short red-brown trunks. The bodice is twisted on the shoulders and has silver clips to hold the twists in place. The hat with this suit is a white linen topper, and you will observe that a topper is worn with the dance frock also. This one is made of white satin, by Suzanne Talbot, and matches the white satin bodice of the dress.

This bodice is twisted on the shoulders just like the bathing suit, and the twists are held by rhinestone clips. The skirt is ankle length, and rises at the top to a high waistline, where it ends under a tailored white satin belt. This skirt is cut on the bias and flares slightly from the hipline. At the waistline in front are placed several white satin orchids.

Reference Book Valuable Guide to Literature

Names Best Volumes for Children.

BY GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS.

For any one who has to do with the selecting of books for children—mothers, and especially teachers and others working with children in the crafts and arts, etc.—a reference book that is a valuable guide is "Realms of Gold."

The mother wondering what books she can buy for her little toddler, or for her little convalescent, or her adventurous growing boy, the teacher anxious to put on a puppet show or marionette show, the neighborhood group interested in folk dancing or woodcraft or cooking—all can find in this book many fine references to such material.

The editors, Bertha E. Mahoney and Elinor Whitney, have done a fine piece of compiling. The introductory brief chapter gives a history of books for children that is illuminating.

Some of the classifications will give an idea of the scope of the book. Books for the nursery. Picture, poetry, games and stories; books for story telling; Bible stories; singing games; songs; plays; animal stories; fairy tales and myths; games and occupations; books about the earth, the sky, the sea, animals, and plants [natural history]; books of adventure; science; invention, music; books of the history of the world; discoveries, heroes; poetry; sports; occupations, and handcrafts.

Not only the titles and authors are given but often a sufficient summary to assist in appropriate selection. The publisher, the price, the illustrator and often a reproduction of an illustration, or an excerpt from the books are also given. In the case of books on which the copyright has run out, several editions by various publishers are listed.

This book can probably be found in most of the libraries. The price of the book would repay one in short time by the elimination of ill chosen books. But you may be out of pocket in the end by being incited to buy more books than you expect—for the graphic spread of goodies put before you in its pages by illustraton, excerpt, or enticing title is almost irresistible.

Lilies Increase Their Popularity in City Gardens

Ease of Cultivation Is Important Factor.

BY PAUL POTTER.

Cultivation of the lily is becoming a specialty with many of Chicagoland's hosts of amateur gardeners who find new varieties, with their various sizes and colors and flowering habits, a source of added interest for their gardening activities.

True lilies are somewhat apart in their family history from the lily of the valley and associated plants, but even among the "true" types there is a wide variety of foliage, growing habits, and color.

Except for early spring care when signs of disease must be noted and diseased plants removed, the growing process is largely simple cultivation, occasional providing of plant food and a periodical search for insect damage. The earlier blooming types such as elegans, Madonna and maculatum are considered the hardiest. The elegans are adapted best to light and sandy soils and sunny locations. Of larger size are the orange lilies, croceum, frequently the sole source of bloom in deserted yards, continuing their growth and propagation without care.

The regel lily, because it was imported from China, was formerly a novelty occasionally found in some energetic gardener's yard. But extensive propagation and easily made popularity have made it more common though no less elegant. A fragrant yellow, brown or white blossom and the fact that this lily is the easiest of all to cultivate, has enhanced this popularity.

Lilium auratum, a golden banded type and the speciosum and "yellow speciosum" or Henry's lily are also popular and commonly grown. Thorough winter protection after planting the bulb in late fall or holding the bulbs in cold storage and planting early in the spring make for the best bloom of the speciosum.

GOLDEN GLOVES CAMP, PUNCHES AMAZE VISITOR

But German Writer Picks His Team.

BY HEINZ REICHMANN.

Lake Wawasee, Ind., July 14.—Now I know at last why the Golden Gloves bouts are fought with such fervor, why the contestants enter the ring with enthusiasm. Who doesn't desire to live like these boys are living for a couple of weeks? They are now enjoying at this lake the life customarily associated with the wealth of millionaires.

When I report to Germany what I have seen at this camp they may consider that I am weaving fanciful tales. No one will believe that the Golden Glovers, who have never seen such luxury, all of a sudden are living in a palace, training for international contests with the champions of the fatherland. Will they believe me when I tell that an orchestra plays in the dining room at luncheon and dinner? That uniformed waiters serve these amateur boxers as if they were the wealthiest of patrons? That their food cannot be surpassed, and that expert masseurs, trainers and coaches are watching and helping them gain the condition they will need to win at Soldiers' field?

But He's Convinced.

No, they won't believe these things. I didn't believe them myself at first, and I thought that I had mistaken the address until I discovered the garage where a fight arena has been established. I needed only one glance this afternoon to see that the sixteen Golden Gloves boxers had taken advantage of the many facilities they have been offered and that the luxury in which they live will make them worthy opponents for my countrymen.

It is certain that those Chicagoland boys will enter the ring on July 26 in their best fighting form. The German champions will have the hardest fights of their careers. This afternoon, after my formal introduction to the Golden Gloves boys, they took me by storm, asking questions about the boxers they will fight.

"We've heard so much about the Germans," they said, "and we want to know what to expect." "Are they stronger than the Frenchmen?" "How do they hit?" "How is their infighting?" "Can they take it?"

Curiosity Prompts Questions.

These are only a few of the queries which were shot at me for minutes almost without end. There was no lack of confidence. Curiosity prompted the questions. As a matter of fact, I never saw a team which was so certain of victory as the Chicagoans. But they mustn't take their tasks too lightly.

I saw the Americans train today. They are good, very good, excellent. Still I think that the Germans are superior. I wrote yesterday that Chicago would see on July 26 the Dempsey-Tunney fight repeated eight times and that the Germans would play the part of Tunney and the Americans the part of Dempsey. I said that to point out that these international fights will be as thrilling and as excellent as that famous professional heavyweight encounter at Soldiers' field. Now I can continue my comparison and say that this same example will serve to illustrate the styles of the boxers of Chicago and Germany.

The Germans will be the Tunney. They will box, stressing defense, and attack to collect as many points as possible. The Chicagoans will fight. They will try to land the knockout punch as quickly as possible. They have the punch, but I doubt very much if they will find the opportunity to land it.

Germans Superior on Defense.

My visit has shown me that the German boys are superior in their defense. The principle of boxing in Germany is that a good punch without a defense is worse than a good defense with a medium punch. The fights will be all the more interesting because of the different styles of the Chicago boys and the German champions. Fighters against boxers always guarantee sensational bouts.

Seldom have I seen boys taking their training as seriously as the Chicago boxers. At 1:30 this afternoon they were a bunch of carefree boys. At 2 o'clock they were punching each other in the ring with determination to knock each other down. Spectators could see some real battles. There was a bloody nose, a score of ripping body blows, although no fight was permitted to go more than two rounds.

How they punched! For example, consider the two rounds between Henry Rothier and George Haberski. What a show they gave! And how much greater will be the real fight when the training contests are so sternly fought!

Water, Smith Mix.

In the two rounds between Adolph Water and the corpulent countryman of Jack Sharkey, Adam Smith, who has around his stomach a reserve against the depression, there was action sufficient for any show.

My general impressions, however, are that the Chicago boys are faster on their feet than the Germans; that as a team they probably will punch harder, but that they are more open to attack. Leo Rodak, the Golden Gloves captain, of whom I had heard so much, measured up to my expectations. So did John Phagan, the colored welterweight. However, I must reserve a more detailed comparison of all eight weight divisions for another day.

BAN ON NURMI LIKELY TO STAND, SWEDES INDICATE

New York, July 14.—[Special.]—Indications that Paavo Nurmi will not be reinstated, at least by the International Amateur Athletic federation council, before the Olympic games were disclosed today upon the arrival of a delegation of Swedish athletes in New York City en route to Los Angeles.

With the group, one of three Olympic delegations to reach here today, the others being composed of Finnish and Polish athletes, came J. Sigfrid Edstrom, president of the federation and chairman of the I. A. A. F. council, that temporarily suspended Nurmi in April.

Although refusing to make any prediction as to what action the council will take at its next meeting on July 28 at Los Angeles, he said four of the six council members who voted unanimously at Berlin to suspend Nurmi also would be at Los Angeles.

However, a newspaper man accompanying the Swedish delegation quoted Edstrom as saying that Nurmi would not be reinstated insofar as he was concerned and that the council was lined up against the Finn.

When's a Bean Ball a Wild Pitch? Headache's the Same

BY WESTBROOK PEGLER.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, July 14.—To those who remember the killing of Ray Chapman, the Cleveland shortstop, in 1920, it will seem strange that the American league should find it necessary to admonish the pitchers again to refrain from throwing the pernicious bean ball. The death of Chapman was a great shock to the baseball community, and, although Carl Mays of the Yankees, the pitcher who struck him down and out, insisted that he did not throw to hit him, the suspicions was not so much disproved as it was not proved.

The suspicion was a quite natural one because it was a custom of the pitchers at that time to throw straight at a hitter's head for purposes of intimidation. The players and umpires acknowledged the danger as one of the routine risks of the trade and offered no formal challenge to the bean ball until Chapman lost his life. Sometimes personal malice entered into the equation between the pitcher and the hitter, but more often the bean ball was quite impersonal, and the hitter assumed the responsibility for protecting himself at all times.

Indians Had Duster Mails.

In fact, the Cleveland athletes, in their indignation against Carl Mays, did not come into court with their own hands entirely clean, for they included among their number in the latter part of that season an itinerant pitcher, imported from the Coast league, known, out of respect for certain incidents in his past, as Duster Mails. There were then and there have been since many pitchers who indulged in the practice of dusting off hitters, but Mails of the Indians was the only one to become so notorious for dusting them off as to earn the very name of Duster.

Whether Mails dusted them off intentionally or through honest lack of control is a matter that lies between Mails and his pastor, his lawyer or other confidants. But duster he was and complaints about dusting came strangely from the members of the ball club that employed him and his talents.

Dividing Line Is Thin.

But the sport business produces many guardhouse lawyers and it is almost impossible to trace the thin, wavering dividing line between honest and heinous intent. The prize fighters jab the thumb in the eye and many an eye has been permanently put out in this manner, some of them, perhaps, by accident. The football players clout one another on the base of the brain, causing concussion, but whether to remove an obstacle barring the way to the ball carrier merely for the instant or to remove the obstacle completely from the game the officials are required to divine.

The rules committee did legislate against the rabbit punch in football last winter, but the coaches prized the rabbit punch and the new penalty was modified almost to nullification even before spring practice began. In baseball the players wear sharp steel chisels on their shoes, primarily to sharpen their footwork, but when these spikes cut down a baseman in the swift confusion of a slide into a bag, no mortal umpire can tell whether the runner had mayhem in his heart or nothing more sinister than sporting abandon.

Case of the Catchers.

Catchers block the plate at their own risk, but they do block it, and, to protect themselves from the spikes, they long ago adopted the shin guard. But there is no protection against a runner who charges the plate standing up, so when Bill Dickey of the Yankees blocked the plate against Reynolds of the Senators, who will not slide because he is afraid of breaking an ankle, Reynolds bumped him

STARS SEEDED IN FINAL OLYMPIC TRYOUTS TODAY

Palo Alto, Cal., July 14.—(AP)—Although well seeded in the draw for heats today, favorites for places on the American Olympic track and field team face the keenest kind of a fight in the preliminaries tomorrow.

Most of the fields are so well matched that upsets and record smashing performances are looked for before the final tests have decided the best three performers and, automatically, the shield wearers in each event.

There will be trials tomorrow in 13 of the 18 Olympic events, leading up to the finals Saturday at Stanford's stadium. These, with three non-Olympic contests in the low hurdles, weight throw and three mile walk, will also make up the national senior A. A. U. track and field championship program for 1932.

New York Team Favorite.

The New York Athletic club's collection of super-stars, headed by Gene Venzke, George Spitz, Leo Sexton, the Lermond brothers, and Percy Beard, appears certain to win the national

C'MON, SANDE! CLASSIC CROWD WANTS TO SEE YA'

Ask Jockey to Make Last U. S. Ride on Rehoboth.

BY FRENCH LANE.

They've sent for Earl Sande to come and take part in the Arlington Classic, the world's richest 3 year old race, at Arlington Park tomorrow afternoon.

Enthusiastic about his colt Rehoboth's fine chance of winning, Dr. J. Fred Adams of Baltimore late yesterday began negotiations which most likely will bring Sande here from New York to ride the Maryland 3 year old.

May Be Sande's Farewell.

Should Sande accept it may be his farewell to an American racing public which has made him its jockey idol for a half score of years. According to announcements from New York, Sande, despairing of keeping down to the weight required of American jockeys, will sail from New York next Tuesday for Europe and ride out his career on French and English turf.

The last minute effort to bring Sande here overshadowed most of the developments in connection with the $90,000 race yesterday, although the south was qualifying a most dangerous contender when Sazerac, the son of Westy Hogan-Resistance, which races for A. B. Letellier of New Orleans, was a handy winner by three lengths in the Drexel purse at a mile. He ran the distance in the flying time of 1:35 2-5 and was pulling away from some of the fleetest horses at the end. Masked Knight was second and Dyak, a Chicago 3 year old, third, with Marmion, Trombone, and Mad Pursuit, all Classic eligibles, trailing.

Finnerty Gets Job.

There was more activity in the Stepenfetchit camp than in that of any other Classic candidate yesterday. Mrs. John Hay Whitney's Latonia Derby winner worked the Classic route of a mile and a quarter hard held in 2:10 1-5. He was fighting for his head all the way, and the early morning railbirds regarded it as a most satisfactory drill.

A little later Trainer James W. Healy engaged Jockey Bob Finnerty to ride Stepenfetchit in the Classic. Finnerty will come from Latonia. He handled Stepenfetchit better in the Latonia Derby than any boy has this season.

Others among the leading jockeys in America were here awaiting the Classic engagement, and the great race, which will determine the 3 year old championship, will not only be a brilliant contest between the country's leading 3 year olds, but also a battle of riding skill and daring.

Workman Rides Top Flight.

Sonny Workman will be astride Top Flight, which last night continued to rule as a slight favorite. Tommy Malley will ride Faireno. He has been in the saddle in all the great New York colt's eastern triumphs. Bobby Jones, regarded by many as the best jockey in the west, will wear W. R. Coe's green and white atop Osculator.

Jimmy Burke again will be up on Springsteel, while Bubble Up will have Laverne Fator or Eugene James up. It was James who rode Burgoo King to victories in the Kentucky Derby and Preakness this year. S. Coucci will be aboard the American Derby winner Gusto, Hank Mills may ride Mad Pursuit, while C. E. Allen most likely will be Sazerac's pilot.

The Classic occupied so much interest among the spectators in the big crowd yesterday little attention was paid the exciting races being run.

Expect 40,000 for Classic.

The Glen Ellyn purse, at a mile, carrying $2,500 in added money, was the best race on the program and it attracted the three fleet fillies, Tred Avon, Late Date, and Seven Veils. They finished in just that order with Tred Avon, the favorite, paying $2.64.

Otto W. Lehmann, president of the Jockey club, last night predicted a crowd of between 40,000 and 50,000 for tomorrow.

Do Sox Like Boston! Win in 11th, 9 to 8

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Boston, Mass., July 14.—The victory the White Sox anticipated upon their arrival in the city of beans and codfish was accomplished all right today but only after a nightmare. Refreshed by the cool weather and the thought of somebody worse off than themselves, the Chicagoans stepped out gayly with a 7 to 1 lead in two innings, but they let this handsome advantage get away. Then they had to labor through the eleventh before harvesting the run that put the Red Sox down for keeps by 9 to 8.

It was all because of Mr. Smead Jolley, late of Chicago, that the party could not be concluded in nine innings. The ungainly outfielder had been more or less of an annoyance all day, but was more than that in the ninth. Sam Jones was pitching, he having been summoned in the eighth when Milt Gaston completed a good job of folding up. Old Sam had two men out and the boys had their working tools packed up, but Jolley boosted a homer into the right field seats for an 8 to 8 tie. Then nothing happened until Funk opened the eleventh with a pop double, went to third on an out and home with the winning run on Blue's tap to Olson, who couldn't throw the ball back to the plate soon enough to do any good.

Infield Performs Skillfully.

For once the White Hose infield performed with big league skill and the combination appears to be the best so far uncovered. There was Jack Hayes, for instance, with 18 chances, all handled flawlessly at second. Another thing the Chicagoans did well was to hit in bunches and also display patience at the plate. A combination of the latter two enabled them to pile up that big lead with six runs in the second inning when they knocked out Bob Welland, their old pal, and then let Rescuer Paul Andrews pitch wide balls until he had forced half of the six runs over the plate. After that Pete Jablonowski did a fair job and Wilcy Moore might have done the same if bad luck hadn't taken its toll in the shape of Funk's pop double in the eleventh.

The Chicago brand of Sox did enough to Welland in the first inning to indicate that his tenure of office would be limited. After one was out Hayes singled to center. Hodapp slapped one equally hard to left. Fothergill boomed one into center and Hayes scored while Hodapp took third. the gayety ended abruptly when Kress bounced into a double play.

Gaston's start wasn't much better than Welland's, but he at least settled down for a spell. Successive hits by Olson, Jolley and Alexander with two out let the red legged athletes tie it at 1 and 1 in their opening attack.

Big Second Inning.

Blue beat out a bunt to open the noisy second and it wasn't long before Welland was up to his ears in trouble. Blue stole second, went to third on Appling's long fly, and home on

STEPHENSON'S CIRCUS CATCH, HIT WIN GAME

Hornsby 3d Hero with 2 Singles.

BY EDWARD BURNS.

Assorted Cub heroes, afield and at bat, yesterday saw to it that the Chicagoans won a thrilling 4 to 1 victory over the Brooklyn Dodgers to even the current and season series, and keep the Cubs apace with the Pittsburgh Pirates, two games out of first place.

Offhand, a 4 to 1 tabulation doesn't indicate the affair was one of the d-ama specials of the year. But when you know that not a run was scored until the Cubs made one in the seventh, the basis of the heroics at once becomes apparent. Not only was the game scoreless in the first six innings. In those first half dozen sessions only two singles had been accomplished by each team.

Name Your Hero, Folks.

In the matter of heroes, you can take your choice, with our little stack, if you don't mind, going on old Jackson Riggs Stephenson. But here's the list for your consideration:

Guy Bush, who pitched a superb game to hang up his tenth win of the year. Guy, in addition to his fine pitching, also broke up a squeeze play designed to tie the score in the seventh. Had the play been successful there might have been a much different story.

Rogers Hornsby, who became fidgety watching the play of Stanley Hack and decided to take over the third base job. In the seventh Rogers broke through the invincible technique of the proud Dazzy Vance, knocking the third Cub hit. The boss went to third on Barton's single and scored on a force play. In the eighth Hornsby again singled, this time off Phelps, to drive home Stephenson with the final Cub run.

Stevie! There's the Boy!

Riggs Stephenson. Neighbors, there is OUR hero. You can throw out everything that happened after a catch the Old Hoss made in the seventh. With two on as the result of the third and fourth hits off Bush, and the Cubs getting mighty jumpy, Riggs made a great backhand, running catch of Wright's potential triple. If that baby had got away there would have been a sad story to tell this night. But Stevie wasn't through when he made his magnificent catch. In the eighth he drove in runs No. 2 and No. 3 and scored No. 4—sweet assurance in view of the fact that the Dodgers made a run and had the bases full when the game ended.

Yesterday's victory, while it did not enable the Cubs to gain on the Pirates, made third place less imminent, for the Chicagoans now are a game and a half ahead of the Boston Braves. The win brought the current series to one game apiece and each team now has won five in the season calendar. All of which make a nice setting for this afternoon, when Lon Warneke will go after No. 13 before a Ladies' day assemblage.

Dodgers Act Up at Start.

The Dodgers were quite annoying in the first inning, though they did not succeed in run manufacture. Slade started the game by fanning, but Taylor walked and went to second while Stripp was beating out a bunt towards third. Wilson fouled to Barton and then O'Doul walked, filling the bases. Three of the first four pitches to Cuccinello were balls and the next one was a strike. The inning ended when Cuccinello flied to Cuyler.

Hartnett, second man up in the third inning, was the first Chicagoan to reach first. He got there because his grounder popped between Wright's heels. Bush flied to Stripp and Herman forced Hartnett.

The Cubs got two men on base in the fifth but, unfortunately waited till two were out before they launched the enterprise. After Hornsby had been called out on an eyelash decision, Barton fanned for the second time. Grimm knocked the second hit off Vance, a single to right, and stole second. Hartnett walked. Then Stripp made a nice play to come up with Encouraged by the return of Chick Hafey after a long absence because of injury, the Reds had piled up six runs of their own in the first two innings. Whitney, Lee, Hurst, and Davis provided the heavy hitting for the Phils.

Night Owl Golf Tourney Won by Bob Cary

The huge light towers which cast their rays on the fairways and greens of the West Wilmette illuminated golf course looked down on more golf than they've seen in their existence last night, when the first night golf tournament in the history of the district was held. Invitations to 30 leading professionals and amateurs had been sent out, but the presence of several added starters made the field 58 and the evening a huge success, for a goodly gallery was also in attendance.

It took an amateur, Bob Cary of Sunset Valley, to show several of the best pros in the district how to play the nine hole, iron shot layout, par for which is 27. Bob had an 18 hole medal card of 24—26—50, four strokes under par, and two better than the round shot by Wally Chamberlain, Westward Ho's professional.

Amateurs Next in Line.

Next in line were two amateurs, George Dawson of Glen Oak, with 28—25—53; Dick Martin of Briergate, 26—27—53, and Tod Hardy, a professional from Lincoln Park, who had 24—29—53. Others who finished well up were Laurie Ayton Sr., of Evanston, 27—28—55; Sonny Rouse of Deerfield, 29—27—56; Harry Cooper of Glen Oak, the new Canadian open champion, 29—28—57; Jock Anderson of Techny Fields, 30—27—57, and Al Lesperance of Westmoreland, 28—29—57.

A best ball event also was held which went to Cooper and Dawson after a playoff with Hardy and Jack Hoag of Evanston. Each pair finished the regular 18 with scores of 51, but the Glen Oak twosome won when Dawson birdied the first extra hole. Cary and Martin had the best ball of the evening, a 49, but since the event was restricted to a pro and an amateur, it didn't count.

Card Includes Four Birdies.

Cary—Out	333	333	323—24
Cary—In	333	333	333—26—50

Other scores in the tournament included: Joe Paletti, Olympic, 30-28—58; Jock Hutchison, Glen View, 29—29—58; Sam Bernardi, Briergate, 30—28—58; Dave Pattullo, Wilmette, 28—30—58; D. L. Sullivan, 27—31—58; W. Wehrle, 32—27—59; Tod Sloan, Racine, Wis., 30—29—59; Eddie Gayer, 28—31—59; Jim Noonan, Lansing, 30—29—59; N. Siliber, 29—30—59; Terry McGovern, 31—28—59; J. Cameron, 31—28—59; Dave Tosh, Sunset Ridge, 32—28—60; Jim Wilson, Ravisloe, 32—28—60; Al Bluhm, Big Oaks, 30—30—60.

SEVEN RECORD HOLDERS IN GIRLS' OLYMPIC TRIALS

Women's world's records in at least half a dozen events seem likely to fall tomorrow when more than 200 feminine stars from every part of the United States compete in the final tryouts for the American Olympic team at Dyche stadium.

Holders of the world's and American records in seven of the eleven events will be among the contestants. If Betty Robinson is permitted to run, it will add three more to the list, since the Chicago star holds the world's marks in the 50 yard, 100 yard, and 220 yard runs.

The sole absentee is likely to be Stella Walsh, and even she may be here to take part. Stella is still eligible to compete for the National A. A. U. championships, even though she will represent Poland in the Olympics. She holds the American record in the broad jump.

The other record holders who will take part in the meet are:

OLSEN, FROEBEL TRACK COACH, TO JOIN PITT STAFF

Pittsburgh, Pa., July 14.—[Special.]—Carl Olsen, former track coach and director of athletics at Froebel High school in Gary, Ind., has been appointed head track coach at the University of Pittsburgh, it was announced today. Olsen also will assist in the physical education department.

Olsen succeeds Frank Shea, Pitt track coach for several years, who resigned to devote more time to his law practice. Shea, however, will serve as advisory coach.

RED SOX RESTORE SOX CONFIDENCE AND WILL TO WIN

Berry's single. Berry was trapped off first base, but jumped back and forth until he saw a chance to dive back to first and elude tagging by Alexander. This little matter is what made the inning worth while. Gaston then doubled to left and Berry then raced around to the plate with the help of Warstler's error on the return throw.

Weiland's troubles continued to multiply on a pass to Seeds and a single by Hayes that filled the bases. Gaston did not try to score on the latter hit as a mark of respect to Jolley's throwing arm. This was as far as Weiland went. Andrews strolled in and uncorked a wild pitch, on which Gaston counted. Nobody ran home while Hodapp was being thrown out. Then Andrews walked Fothergill to fill the bags again. He walked Kress and Seeds was forced to score. He also walked Blue and Appling, sending two more across the plate. Away went Andrews to let Jablonowski finish the inning.

Order Is Restored.

Jablonowski kept the Chicago boys under his thumb until the fifth, when they grabbed off another run. After both Berry and Gaston had fanned, Seeds was plunked on the shoulder by a pitched ball. He returned the compliment by stealing second while the pitcher was holding the ball. Hayes drove a two bagger down the left field line and Seeds sprouted into a run. The crimson hose accomplished a similar amount of damage in their half. Jablonowski doubled off the left field sign with two out and scored on a single by Johnson.

Gaston got one man out of the way in the seventh before stumbling into the episode that sliced four runs from his healthy lead. Tate singled to right and went to third on Jablonowski's hit, which caromed off Gaston's shin bone. Johnson lined a single to right to score Tate. Olson tripled to the boards in right center to move Jablonowski and Johnson over the plate. Olson registered on Oliver's infield out. Gaston walked both Jolley and Alexander, but escaped further damage for a moment when Hayes picked up Rhyne's bounder.

Bit of Red Sox Stupidity.

If it hadn't been for a bit of Red Sox stupidity in the eighth there is no telling what might have happened. As it was the home troops were turned back with only one run after a flying start of three hits. Warstler led off with a triple to right and Tate's single scored him. Jones was hurried into the proceedings to pitch to Watwood, who batted for Jablonowski. Watwood singled to center. Durham went to second to run for Tate and was picked off the bag on Berry's throw to Appling. Jones nailed Johnson on a high foul to Seeds, who had moved from center to right, and Watwood died stealing. Then Mr. Jolley hit his homer after two were out in the ninth and the show proceeded.

Warneke Out for No. 13 Today; Bad Luck to Dodgers?

Van Lingle Mungo will furnish the opposition for Lon Warneke when the latter goes after his No. 13 victory this afternoon.

Violet Popovich Valli, the shooting lady, attended the game. She sat near the Brooklyn dugout, but had a view of the open side of the Cub dugout in which sat her favorite target, Alli Jurges.

Hack Wilson's record at bat was a foul to Barton in the first, a fly to Barton in the fourth, a grounder to Herman in the seventh, and a fly to Stephenson in the ninth.

Dazzy Vance was injured in the play which sent Rogers Hornsby home with the first run. He finished the inning and then retired.

Cubs Win, 4-1; Three Join in Hero Parade

Bush's hot grounder over first and ran to first in time to make the third putout.

Taylor's Blotted Out.

The second hit off Bush was the single which Taylor made with one out in the sixth. Danny's effort forthwith was blotted out, for Stripp lined to English and Dan was doubled off first.

Hit No. 3 off Bush was a single to center by O'Doul with one out in the seventh. Cuccinello followed with a single to right and O'Doul stopped at second. It was at this point that Stephenson rose to the fielding heights. Wright drove the ball to left, a tremendous smack about 15 feet fair. Bookmakers were offering 6,000-000 to 1 that it at least was a double when suddenly Stevie made a backhanded stab with his gloved hand and speared the ball. The inning ended when Lopez tapped to Herman.

The Cubs, of course, were jubilant over Stephenson's masterful display of artistry and got themselves a run in their half of the seventh. Stevie, first up, modestly lined to O'Doul, but Hornsby lined a single to right and went to third on Barton's single to right. Grimm caromed a bouncer off Vance's hand to Wright, who tossed to Cuccinello to force Barton, Hornsby scoring the while. Hartnett filed to O'Doul.

Squeeze Play Flops.

The smiles on Cub faces weren't so apparent when Frederick, batting for Vance, opened the eighth with a double along the right foul line. Finn ran for Frederick and went to third while English was throwing out Slade. Taylor tried to put on the squeeze play to get Finn home with the tying run, but Bush captured Danny's bunt and threw to Hartnett to get Finn by the narrowest of margins. Taylor sought to steal second, but he didn't make it.

Having had enough of tension the Cubs chased over three runs in their eighth. Phelps walked Herman and fanned English. Cuyler then made his first hit of the series, a single to center, and Herman went to third. Cuyler stole second. Stevie then slammed his double to left center, scoring Herman and Cuyler. Stevie came home on Hornsby's second hit, a single to left. Barton filed to Wilson.

Here is the record of Bush's relaxation in the ninth: Stripp singled over Hornsby and Wilson completed his first hitless day in ten games and his second in nineteen, when he filed to Stephenson. O'Doul forced Stripp for the second out, but Cuccinello walked. Wright then singled to left center, scoring O'Doul and putting Cuccinello on third. Lopez walked, filling the bases. The game ended when Sukeforth batted for Phelps and tapped to Bush, who threw to Hartnett to force Cuccinello at the plate.

BEEBE, WEILLER TO MEET TODAY FOR GOLF TITLE

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Milwaukee, Wis., July 14.—The western women's open golf championship will be carried away by a Chicago golfer for another year. Miss June Beebe, Olympia Fields Country club, and Miss Jane Weiller, two of the leading golfers in the Chicago district, will meet in the final match of the 1932 tournament on the Ozaukee Country club course tomorrow.

Miss Beebe, champion last year, advanced to the final round by defeating Miss Frances Hadfield, St. Augustine, Fla., who is representing the Blue Mound Country club of Milwaukee. The score was 2 up.

Miss Weiller, a favorite ever since she won medalist honors, was forced to the 18th green to defeat Miss Lucille Robinson, Des Moines, holder of the Iowa state championship, 1 up.

The semi-finalists displayed sparkling golf. Miss Beebe, in her match with Miss Hadfield, scored two eagles on the last nine. She shot a 37 on the first nine and a 38 on the second nine for a 75. Miss Hadfield scored 40—38—78.

The match between Miss Weiller and Miss Robinson was close all the way. All square, they teed off on the 18th with good drives, but the Iowa woman's approach shot was sliced into the rough. Miss Robinson pitched on easily, but missed a three foot putt to give the Chicago girl victory. Miss Weiller carded 39—39—78, while Miss Robinson scored 38—42—80.

The final match between Miss Weiller and Miss Beebe will be at 36 holes.

The runner has the right to arrive either horizontally or upright and at full speed and, certainly, a bumping is less to be feared than a knifing with the spikes. So up-and-down Reynolds could not be charged with intent to do great bodily harm in charging the bases his way. There was no doubt of Dickey's intent, so he lost a $1,000 fine and, perhaps, $2,000 in pay, and the Yankees may yet lose a pennant by his suspension for 30 days. Reynolds alone knows whether he could have gentled his arrival without disadvantage to himself.

Penalty Scale No Help.

The bean ball has never enjoyed official sanction or condonation. The only protection it needed was the inevitable doubt as to its intent, and this doubt certainly cannot be resolved by the scale of penalties for first, second, and third offenses which the American league has now adopted. The penalties for first degree murder are clear but many a jury has been loath to convict a lady defendant who swore that they struggled for the gun, a shot rang out and everything went blank.

Similarly, when Babe Ruth was in his prime the Yankees tried to devise an effective rule against the intentional base on balls, a compliment often paid him in difficult situations, to the great annoyance of the patrons who wished to see him hit or strike out in his characteristic large way. On strategic grounds, at that stage of the Babe's career, the intentional pass could not be assailed at all, but on the ground of business policy there was much to be said against it. The customers were thwarted, cheated, and exasperated, for the Babe was the ball game then, and it was held to be very poor business to thwart, cheat, and exasperate the customers.

Umpires Just String Along.

But this put it up to the umpires to say whether a pitcher was trying to find the plate or trying to avoid it, and also to decide just how many balls a pitcher should be allowed to waste in throwing to the Babe, a special case. The umpires, also availing themselves of the doubt regarding intent, all declined to invoke the intentional pass rule. They read the pitchers' intent as strictly honest and the president of the league had to interpret theirs the same way.

So the intentional pass rule was modified to say that the catcher must not step out of position to receive the pitch-out until after the delivery was begun, which is a rule, all right, but not effective against the intentional pass.

Some day, inevitably, some other hitter, like Chapman of the Indians, will forget to duck a bean ball and there will ensue another momentary commotion, but the bean ball will continue in the baseball business. It has a strong moral effect on some hitters, and there are some so stout in the bean that to effect a rival pitcher's removal for one, ten, or thirty days, a mere beaning would be a cheap price to pay.

Golf, Vintage of 1895, Like Old Family Bus—Amusing

BY RUTH DE YOUNG.

Waiting to tee off the other day at the Chicago Golf club, Robert Fauntleroy of Geneva turned his attention and that of his two out of town guests to the natural beauties of the surrounding landscape.

"Strange, the way golf courses used to be laid out," he remarked. "They neglected the most beautiful and, incidentally, the most difficult sections of the countryside. Take this course, for instance. It used to outline the boundaries and forget all about the ridge and the valley." There were two almost perfect squares formed by the 18 holes."

If you're in doubt about Mr. Fauntleroy's observation, get out one of the old golfers' green books published along about 1900 and study one of the early maps of the Wheaton course. Or, if you prefer, stop in Hinsdale some day and have a chat with David Foulis, an honest to goodness Scotchman with as delightful a "burr" as you'll find. With his brother, James, he laid out the Chicago Golf club course back in '95 and '96 and some 20 years later revamped it to include these "beautiful and hasardous" sections Mr. Fauntleroy talks about.

Fund of Golf Recollections.

There's probably no one with a better fund of golf recollections than Mr. Foulis. For with St. Andrews, Scotland, as his birthplace and a golfing heritage that goes back three generations, he has a paternal interest in the sport that is both informative and entertaining.

"Two shepherds, bored with watching their flocks, dug holes in the hillside and tossed stones into them . . . and that was the beginning of golf," he relates. "Simple, wasn't it, or at least simpler than our modern version, but then stones and a hillside aren't conducive to a fashionable sport today. Records date the first attempt in the 14th century. About 100 years later St. Andrews in Scotland

YO-HO AND A JUG OF MILK! NAVY'S GOAL OF BOXERS

Golden Gloves Boys Hear Dvonch's Sea Yarns.

BY WILFRID SMITH.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Lake Wawasee, Ind., July 14.—Another day, and much like those which have preceded in the Golden Gloves camp at Wawasee, has ended. Which is most satisfactory to the coaches, for with each succeeding drill Chicago's boxers are approaching the time when they will be at the peak of condition.

Properly directed, and you may be certain they are, July 26 is the day when this perfection of form will be reached. On that night eight champions of Germany will run into more trouble than in any of their previous international competitions.

For many reasons the German boys now are considered favorites to win the team championship. The Germans are good, judging from all reports. And the Golden Glove boys have read every line printed. But from the 16 lads now in training will come eight who can hold their own as a team against all comers.

Nearing Top Condition.

Boxing so far this week has been limited to two rounds a day for each contestant. Each also engages in at least two more rounds of rope skipping and bag punching. Success at Soldiers' field July 26 depends not only on the accuracy of the punches, but on physical condition, in particular the legs. By next week at this time the Chicago boys will be able to carry on in the ring without though of fatigue in the leg muscles. Morning calisthenics and short jogs and sprints over the fairways of the golf course, gradually are bringing about this condition.

It's too early now to speculate on the makeup of the American team. The choice will be a matter of hair line judgment in several of the weight divisions. Johnny Baltzer and Lennie Cohen, flyweights; Laddie Tonelli and Henry Rothler, lightweights; Adolph Wiater and Vernon Miller, in the 175 pound class; Adam Smith and Duffy Dvonch, heavyweights; Tony Sutton and Bill Connell, battling middleweights, who have more than five pounds advantage over the champion, Charley Neigo, call for close inspection before final decisions are made.

All Depends on Rodak.

The selections in the 118 and 126 pound classes revolve largely on what Leo Rodak weighs next week. He finished today's boxing at 123 pounds and so far has made no effort to reduce. If he does shring a bit, then George Haberski of Waukegan and Frankie May will scrap it out for the featherweight position. For that matter it's entirely possible that Haberski can train down to 119 pounds, the bantamweight limit plus the one pound allowance. Then there's George Goodman, bantamweight runner-up on the 1931 team, who it is hoped will gain leave of absence to come to camp next week. Goodman weighs 117 pounds.

Uncle Sam may get recruits for his navy before the Golden Gloves boys quit camp. Duffy Dvonch, who has just signed for a four year hitch after finishing eight years, has been regaling the boys in the bag punching sessions on the advantages of a sailorman's life. Duffy has it all down pat, how much a week, incidentals, and so on, even to the day when he can quit on half pay.

Adam Wants to Be Life Guard.

Adam Smith would like a job at Wawasee as life guard. He's the first in the water for the afternoon swim and the last out. He should be a fireman, considering the speed with which he can dress and make the training table. Eight minutes from the time he hauled his 214 pounds on to the pier this afternoon he crashed the dining room.

Al Soukup holds the golf record so far, although the "first time out" players, who threatened to break 100 and did in a conversational way, have quit and this minimizes Soukup's achievement. He cleared the bunkers, avoided the railroad, and, if his addition was correct, turned in 101 strokes for 18 holes.

Johnny Phagan, and there's one boy you can bet your bank roll will lick the best welterweight in Germany, is the kingpin at the workouts. The Negro waiters have their quarters on the second floor of the garage building, which has a balcony overlooking the ring. The waiters and chambermaids gather in force in these preferred locations, and does Johnny do his stuff!

In the WAKE of the NEWS

FEEDING THE BOYS.

LAKE WAWASEE, Ind., July 14.—Food plays an important part in the training preparations of the sixteen Chicagoland amateur boxers from whom eight will be chosen to oppose the German invaders at Soldiers' field the night of July 26.

Trainer Johnny Behr has no ideas on the subject which might be classed as fads. In fact, he is rather liberal on the subject and belongs to the developing school of thought which feels that athletes training over a long period have in the past been held too inflexibly to a certain diet. First object of this food is nourishment, with enough variety to keep the boys interested.

It has not been difficult to keep sixteen healthy youngsters interested so far. In fact, most of them have been enough interested to be from three to five pounds over the weight they will be required to make a week from next Tuesday. This was expected and approved. This extra poundage has been acquired despite the almost tireless energy displayed with all the new pastimes and amusements at their disposal.

This penchant for exercise, which came dangerously close to overexertion for the first three days, is now abating as the boys become accustomed to their surroundings and realize that the lake for swimming, the riding horses, golf course, and pingpong table will be here during their entire stay. Beginning next week, swimming will be restricted to once a day for a limited period only instead of three or four times daily, as some of these chaps dip into the lake now, staying as long as they please.

So, believing in substance and variety, Trainer Behr simply informed Chef Claude Critser of the Spink-Wawasee hotel what items the boys could not have and left the rest to the chef. The verboten list includes, of course, pastry, starchy foods, and cream. Butter, except in small quantities, as well as ice cream, will go to the sidelines about the middle of next week, while liquids will be restricted during the final days of drying out to make weight. Here is today's menu as an example:

Breakfast at 8 o'clock—Orange juice, corn flakes and milk, bacon and eggs, whole wheat or rye bread, skimmed milk.

There are changes from day to day. Instead of chicken, medium rare filet mignons or sirloin steaks, medium rare roast beef, and roast leg of lamb frequently find a place on the fare. So you see no one is starving.

Chicagoland Spirit.

Tony Sutton, Chicagoland middleweight, today handed to Henry Rothler of Davenport, chunky lightweight champion, a copy of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE with the innocent remark, "Want to read about the Germans?" That issue contained the story of Franz Kartz, German lightweight, and how Franz hoped and expected to win his 31st start in international competition. As the others sitting around looked on expectantly, Rothler read the article with a slight frown, then looked up suddenly to say, "It's too bad to disappoint that guy. I'll knock his block off." Although Rothler is Belgian born, there was no vindictiveness in the remark, just the Chicagoland team spirit which the coaches are trying to develop.

Trying Golf Again.

Despite our retirement from golf two years ago, The Wake was inveigled to try the course across the road from the hotel with a set of clubs borrowed from Manager Irwin of the country club. As we came in, Professional Don Perry asked, "How do you like our course?" We answered truthfully: "The tees are all right, the B. & O. tracks on the left appear level, the rough on the right is difficult to get out from, and the putting greens are fine. I only played nine holes, but some day I'd like to try the fairway."

The process tomorrow of reducing a field of 201 starters in the 13 Olympic preliminaries to 84 survivors for Saturday's finals promises to furnish real thrills, even though extreme care has been taken in most cases to make it relatively easy for the so-called super-stars.

Among the sprint races, although Emmett Toppino, Frank Wykoff, and Ralph Metcalfe have been seeded in separate heats of the 100 meter trials, there will be only six survivors after the semi-finals later in the afternoon. If, as is generally expected, Eddie Tolan, Wykoff, Metcalfe, and George Simpson come through the 100 safely, all they will have to do then will be to run one 200 meter test each.

Tolan Faces Test.

Tolan, the world record holder, will get brisk competition throughout. He is drawn against Toppino in the first heat of the 100 and seeded in the 200 with Hec Dyer of the Los Angeles A. C. and Wykoff.

The Olympic track and field committee later in the day decided to change the arrangement for the 800 and 1,500 meter tests, whereby four runners in each of the two trial heats tomorrow will qualify for Saturday's finals.

COONEYS WIN, 6 TO 2.

Schwartz Wins Place on U.S. Swim Squad

Cincinnati, O., July 14.—(AP)—Clarence (Buster) Crabbe of Los Angeles won the 1,500 meters free style in the Olympic swimming trials this afternoon, but a freckled faced youngster from Florida was right on his heels all the way.

Finishing second, 14 year old Ralph Flanagan of Miami Beach qualified for the United States team along with Crabbe and James C. Cristy Jr. of the University of Michigan, who finished third.

Schwartz Wins Sprint.

These three, with Al Schwartz of the Illinois Athletic club, Ray Thompson of the Naval academy, and Manuella Kalili of Los Angeles, today definitely became members of the swimming squad of 21 which will represent the United States in the Olympics. Schwartz, Thompson, and Kalili finished in that order in the 100 meters free style.

Flanagan was off after Crabbe in the 1,500 meters. Crabbe pulled out in front on the first lap and about half way had lengthened his lead to 12 yards. He expanded it little thereafter.

Medica Comes Up Fast.

Jack Medica of Seattle was far behind Cristy, but a great closing spurt over the last 400 meters brought him near enough to make a real bid for the third place on the team.

Tomorrow Olympic representatives in the breast stroke and 200 meters free style will be selected.

HIGH MASS SUNG FOR PORTUGAL'S EX-KING MANUEL

LONDON, July 14.—(AP)—Two women in simple black, surrounded by former kings, princes, dukes, ambassadors and an assemblage of 2,000, were the central figures today in an impressive ceremony at Westminster cathedral where a high mass of requiem was sung for former King Manuel of Portugal.

One of these sorrowing women was Donna Augusta Victoria, widow of the former monarch. She wept silently with her head bowed during the long service. The other was former Queen Amelie, his mother. She held her head erect, but her lips were tightly pressed together.

Former King Alfonso of Spain and former King George of Greece were among the mourners. The duke of Gloucester and the duke of Connaught represented King George V.

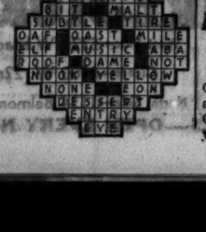
YESTERDAY'S PUZZLE SOLVED



JUDGE GREEN'S "$25 AND COSTS" IS $2 AT PAYOFF

Judge Thomas A. Green rebuked two alleged pickpockets sternly in State street court yesterday. He sentenced each to pay "$25 and costs" and talked at some length of clearing the streets of undesirables. But after he had left the bench for the day, a glance at the court sheets showed "$1 fine and $1 costs" had been substituted for the original order.

The prisoners, Joe "Slippery" Harris and Frank "Greasy" De Carlo, had been arrested by Policemen John Howe and William Drury on an Edgewater Beach hotel bus. The detectives had followed them over most of the north side Wednesday hoping to catch them plying their trade but they weren't successful. Nevertheless they brought the pair to court.

"I thought I told you pickpockets to stay off the streets," roared Judge Green. "I'm going to fine you $25 and costs and see that you leave the city or stay off the streets." He marked the fine on his court sheet.

The pair protested their innocence, but the judge declared that the fine would stand. Later it was noticed that the "$25" had been scratched out and the smaller figure substituted.

Mrs. Mary Campbell Leffingwell Esmond was granted a divorce yesterday by Circuit Judge Daniel P. Trude from John Wilson Esmond, vice president and resident manager of E. H. Rollins & Co., bond brokers.

The Esmonds are socially prominent, and have a large estate at Barrington, which Mrs. Esmond gave as her residence. The divorce was not contested. Mrs. Esmond testified in chambers to two alleged acts of cruelty, charging that her husband pinched her and twisted her wrists, and struck and pushed her on another occasion. The couple married in June, 1923, and separated May 2, 1931.

Mrs. Esmond was given permission to resume her maiden name. She received a settlement in lieu of alimony, the terms of which were not disclosed. There are no children.

REV. P. V. BYRNE, FIRST PRESIDENT OF DE PAUL, DIES

The Very Rev. Peter Vincent Byrne, first president of De Paul university, died yesterday in St. Louis. He was 86 years old.

Father Byrne, who had been a priest since 1869, was chosen to head old St. Vincent's college in 1898 when Archbishop Feehan requested the establishment of the institution by the Vincentian order.

Classes were held in the building at Webster avenue and Osgood street, which had been the parish school. The first year there were only seventy students. The college grew rapidly, however, and in 1907 a new charter from the state changed St. Vincent's to De Paul university.

Father Byrne retired as president of De Paul in 1909 and went to St. Louis, where he became president of Kendrick seminary. Following his retirement from this post he continued to reside in St. Louis.

BOND ISSUE OF THE LAKE SHORE TOWERS CALLED

Kahn Comments on N. Y. Situation.

BY AL CHASE.

Bond issues on the Lake Shore Towers, at 3914 Lake Shore drive, and the commercial building at the southwest corner of Lawrence and Winthrop avenues, known as "1111 Lawrence Avenue," have been called for deposit by the American Bond and Mortgage company's bondholders' protective committee, of which Craig B. Hazlewood is chairman. Joseph E. Otis and Dayton Keith are the two local members of the committee. The others are easterners. George L. Wire is secretary.

JOSEPH E. OTIS.

Lake Shore Towers is an eighteen story co-op, containing thirty suites of eight rooms each and a twelve room duplex. It was financed by an $810,000 bond issue, with $772,500 now outstanding. Sinking fund payments due June 1 total $26,100; interest amounting to $24,140 is in default, and $30,148 taxes are unpaid pending objection.

Despite the fact that the building is well located and well rented, the mortgage indebtedness and fixed charges under present conditions are too high in comparison with the present value of the property, necessitating the contemplated reorganization. The owners, comprising the 3920 Lake Shore Drive Building corporation, have signified their willingness to cooperate with the committee in a plan of reorganization providing that all income be used for the benefit of the bondholders.

The 1111 Lawrence Avenue building, containing ten stores and forty offices, was financed with a $375,000 bond issue, since reduced to $346,500. Principal payments of $13,000 and $10,200 interest are in default. Taxes totaling $23,800 are unpaid.

Raps "Independent Committees."

In response to inquiries concerning the formation in the east of so-called "independent committees" for the protection of boldholders and also litigation instituted by certain of these new bodies, Sidney Kahn, executive vice president of S. W. Straus & Co., stated:

"During the last eighteen months a great deal of publicity has been given the real estate bond situation, some of it of a very garbled nature, written perhaps without malice, but by people who lacked comprehension of the problems involved. Taking advantage of the interest thus aroused, we have seen several committees formed with the ostensible purpose of serving bondholders. In our opinion some of these committees are merely designed to furnish fees to the members thereof and their counsel.

"Their methods take the form of legal proceedings based on purely fictitious charges of the loosest kind, while none of such charges has been or can be substantiated, expenses must be incurred in opposing them. There have been formed, however, some committees to which prominent citizens have lent their names and for which leading firms of attorneys have been retained.

"We believe that these committees, regardless of the character of the personnel or the sincerity of intention behind the personnel, only serves to confuse bondholders, to create additional burden of expense to bondholders who are persuaded to deposit their bonds therewith, and to delay reorganizations.

Doubts Realty Miracles.

"A bondholder who gives thought to the situation knows that no agencies can perform miracles. Diligent work by competent executives familiar with the problems confronting them and functioning with a view toward eliminating waste and conserving the security is all that any committee can offer to the bondholders. It is our firm conviction that the committees formed by S. W. Straus & Co., availing themselves of the experienced personnel of its organization can function more efficiently and at a lesser cost than any other agency.

"The bondholders have manifested their confidence in S. W. Straus & Co. by the overwhelming deposit of bonds with the committees organized by that firm. Many favorable reorganizations have already been submitted and consummated. S. W. Straus & Co., and the committees organized by them, will continue their activities to protect the interests of its bondholders.

REAL ESTATE NEWS

The Simmons company has leased a quarter of the eighth floor of the Merchandise Mart, comprising 200,000 square feet, for a term of years and will move its general offices and showrooms from the American Furniture Mart to its new quarters immediately following the closing of the July furniture market tomorrow, it was announced yesterday. Other important tenants on the same floor are the Clinton Carpet company and the Old Hickory Furniture company.

A restaurant will be operated for both the company's employés and visiting buyers. The turret at the northeast corner of the building, approximately sixty feet in diameter, will be used as a lounge. The lease provides that the lessee will not maintain either office or display rooms in the Furniture Mart. The Simmons lease in that building has about eighteen months to run.

Paying $41,984,247 in Dividends.

BY HOWARD WOOD.

Earnings of American Telephone and Telegraph company amounted to $75,090,345 for the six months ended June 30. This was equal to $4.02 per share on 18,660,970 shares, the average number outstanding during the period, and compares with $4.89 per share in the corresponding period of 1931.

Today this company, one of the few big concerns still paying dividends at the 1929 rate, will mail out to its 700,000 stockholders quarterly dividend checks totaling $41,984,247.

The present dividend rate of $2.25 per share quarterly has been in effect since 1922. It was earned every year through 1930, and last year earnings were within 7 cents per share of covering the year's dividends.

Gross earnings for the six months ended June 30 totaled $130,846,788 and included $69,671,263 of dividends received from subsidiaries and $47,672,797 of telephone operating revenues. In the first half of last year gross earnings were $150,379,198.

Partial Cause of Drop.

Half of this $20,000,000 drop in gross earnings is accounted for by the fact that no dividends were received from the Western Electric company this year. In the first half of 1931 the latter contributed $10,325,862 to its parent company.

President Walter S. Gifford of A. T. & T. in his report states that the Western Electric is now operating at 20 per cent capacity, with a net loss for the first four months (latest available figures) of $3,381,000.

In the first half of this year American Telephone's expenses, including taxes, were $43,100,472, compared with $45,214,639 in the corresponding 1931 period. Interest charges were $12,646,970, against $15,951,202 a year ago.

"While the company shows earnings of $4.02 per share in the first half of 1932," President Gifford explains, "dividends received from associated companies amounting to $69,671,263, as shown in the statement below, were not fully earned by these companies during the six months by approximately $8,000,000."

May Consider Reduction.

The deficit, however, is not serious in view of the fact that at the close of last year the consolidated balance sheet showed a surplus of $448,372,285, not including $788,586,005 reserve for depreciation of plant and equipment, $85,289,893 reserve for contingencies, and $268,152,953 premium on capital stock.

The shutting off of the company's income from Western Electric has been the only important change in subsidiary dividend rates as far as the parent company is concerned. Bell Telephone of Canada, in which American Telephone owns about a fourth interest, recently reduced its quarterly dividend rate from $2 to $1.75 per share; but this when translated into the parent company's income means a reduction of only about one cent per share on A. T. & T.'s approximately 18,660,970 shares.

First Quarter Earnings.

In the first quarter of 1932 American Telephone reported net income of $38,899,204, equal to $2.07 per share, compared with $45,440,578, or $2.53 per share in the first 1931 quarter.

"During the first six months of 1932," President Gifford reports, "the number of Bell System telephones disconnected exceeded those added by about 785,000. The number of telephones now in service, while approximately 6 per cent below the system's maximum development—a point reached in 1930—is slightly in excess of those in service on Jan. 1, 1929.

"Long distance calls were about 15 per cent less than for the same period last year."

The company's report for the current quarter will be of particular interest because it will show the effect on its earnings of the new 10 to 20 cent tax on long distance calls. The higher postage rate adds $28,000 per year to the cost of mailing dividend checks alone.

At 700,000 the number of the company's stockholders sets a new high and represents a gain of 55,000 since the first of the year.

The earnings figures for the first half year are subject to minor revisions when final figures for June are available.

BRINGS OUT ANOTHER LARGE OFFERING OF UTILITY SECURITIES

Another large piece of utility financing will be brought on the market today. A banking syndicate headed by the National City company will offer a new $30,000,000 issue of Consolidated Gas Company of New York 5 per cent debentures. The debentures will run for 25 years and will be marketed at 94 and interest to yield about 5.44 per cent.

The Consolidated Gas issue is the third big utility issue brought out this week and is the largest of the three. On Thursday a $25,000,000 note issue of the Edison Electric Illuminating Company of Boston and a $10,000,000 mortgage bond issue of the Brooklyn Union Gas company were put on the market. Today's offering brings the total utility financing for the week to $65,000,000.

Proceeds of the Consolidated Gas debenture sale will be used to retire floating debts and for extensions and additions to the company's properties.

TREASURY DIRECTED TO COMPILE DATA TO AID STOCKS INQUIRY

Washington, D. C., July 14.—[Special.]—As an aid to the banking and currency subcommittee's further investigation of the stock market, the senate today adopted resolutions requesting the treasury department and federal trade commission to "make available and furnish such information as may be called for and deemed necessary" by the subcommittee.

Senator Peter Norbeck [Rep., S. D.], committee chairman, announced that he also would present additional resolutions to permit the subcommittee to go into the income tax returns in its search for evidence. Income tax particulars are secret, being open only to the house ways and means committee, the senate finance committee, and the joint congressional committee on internal revenue taxation.

According to present plans there will be no hearings in the stock exchange inquiry during the recess of congress, but the subcommittee's experts will continue to work on several cases which will be taken up by the subcommittee next winter.

Washington, D. C., July 14.—(AP)—The Chicago Great Western Railroad company asked the interstate commerce commission today to authorize it to borrow $2,000,000 from the Reconstruction Finance corporation. The money would be used to pay maturing equipment obligations, taxes, interest and for retirement of serial equipment trust certificates and payment of rent due to the Pullman Car and Manufacturing corporation.

The interstate commerce commission has authorized the New York, Chicago and St. Louis Railroad company to borrow $700,000 from the Reconstruction Finance corporation for additions and betterments to its line. That road on Feb. 24 was granted a loan of $9,300,000 to pay fixed charges, vouchers and bank loans.

Baldwin Locomotive Orders Show Decrease in June

New York, July 14.—(AP)—Baldwin Locomotive Works' bookings in June totaled $463,000, a decrease of $10,000 from May. For the first six months they amounted to $3,922,000 against $13,191,000 in the same period of 1931. June shipments were valued at $1,027,000 against $1,283,000 in May, and $1,895,000 in June, 1931. Shipments for the first six months aggregated $6,612,000 compared with $12,007,000, while June 30 unfilled orders totaled $4,130,000 against $8,053,000 a year ago.

New York, July 14.—(AP)—New life insurance written during the first six months of 1932 totaled $5,027,768,000, compared with $5,838,830,000 for the same period last year, a decrease of 13.9 per cent, the Association of Life Insurance presidents announced today. New ordinary insurance amounted to $3,308,217,000 against $3,950,437,000; industrial insurance amounted to $1,362,331,000 against $1,391,763,000, while group insurance totaled $357,220,000 compared with $496,430,000, according to the compilation.

IN BUSINESS 63 YEARS, HOPEFUL FOR U. S. FUTURE

Pittsburgh, Pa., July 14.—(AP)—Take it from Willis L. King, 82 years old and senior vice president of the Jones & Laughlin Steel corporation, there's a silver lining in the business clouds.

Depressions, says King, are just incidents in his life. The steel magnate, identified with that industry 63 years, has seen them all since 1869, big and little, and has survived every one with a smile and greater determination.

Here's what he says about the present dislocation of business:

"No, siree, I never saw a time when we were running as low as we are at the plant right now, but we'll come out of it, and come out bigger than ever.

"The trouble with us in this trouble is that we have the worries of all Europe and everybody else on our shoulders along with our own. We never had to worry about Europe's troubles before."

AUTO RADIATOR BUSINESS NOW 60% OVER JUNE

New Ford and other automobile radiator contracts just secured by the Long Manufacturing company, Detroit, division of Borg-Warner corporation, will cause the July business to be approximately 60 per cent greater than June. That was announced yesterday by Mr. C. S. Davis, president of the parent corporation. The Long sales for June were 18 per cent higher than May and 22 per cent higher than June of last year.

The Long Manufacturing company sales for the first half of this year were 23 per cent higher than the last half of last year, although they were somewhat less than the first six months of 1931. The outlook is that August will equal July business.

The Long company manufactures automobile radiators and clutches as well as copper radiators for heating purposes.

$7,499,800 GOLD NOW EARMARKED PROBABLY FOR ENGLAND'S BANK

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, July 14.—An increase of $7,499,800 in gold earmarked for foreign account, the largest such movement since the outflow of gold came to an end last month, was reported today by the Federal Reserve Bank of New York. Against that loss the receipt of $1,742,100 gold from Canada was reported, bringing the net loss for the day to $5,757,700.

It was thought likely the gold set aside yesterday was for the account of the Bank of England. Other foreign central banks have already earmarked all the gold they can secure here and have recently found it necessary to release some of the metal previously placed under earmark.

Gold movements for the week ended on Wednesday resulted in a net gain of $8,413,000 to the gold stocks of this country. The gain through net decrease in earmarked gold amounted to $10,664,000. While imports were $1,385,000, consisting of $997,000 from Canada and $388,000 chiefly from Latin American countries. Exports of $3,636,000 consisted of $3,506,000 sent to France and $130,000 to Switzerland.

Sterling exchange fell ⅛ cent today to $3.54⅝, but continental European exchanges were firmer. Francs were unaltered at 3.92¼ cents, belgas gained ½ point to 13.89½ cents.

UNION PACIFIC AGAIN IS HEADED BY A HARRIMAN

Southern Pacific Staff Revised.

New York, July 14.—(AP)—The Harriman lines, Union Pacific and Southern Pacific, announced important changes in their managements today.

Union Pacific, in which the Harriman family interest still survives, elected as chairman of the board W. Averill Harriman, elder son of the late E. H. Harriman, to succeed Robert S. Lovett, who died last month.

Southern Pacific completely overhauled its official personnel, abolishing many of the higher official titles and creating some new officers, all for the purpose, said Chairman Hale Holden, of simplifying and adjusting the organization more closely to present day conditions.

The Harriman election to the highest office in the Union Pacific system aroused interest in railroad circles because he thus steps into one of the most important posts held by his father when the latter was overlord of the Union and Southern Pacific lines. E. H. Harriman was both president and chairman of the boards of Union and Southern Pacific. Shortly after his death ex-Judge Lovett was elected his successor as chairman of the Union Pacific.

Is Director of 50 Concerns.

The new Union Pacific chairman is 40 years of age. He is as well known as a polo player and the owner of a large racing stable as he is as a financier. His directorships include more than fifty corporations. While his interests have been to a considerable degree in finance and in shipping, he has kept up the railroading tradition of Harriman. He has been a member of Union Pacific's executive committee for a number of years, and at one time served as vice president in charge of purchases. He graduated from Yale in 1913.

At his death E. H. Harriman left a fortune of less than $75,000,000, which seemed small in contrast to the fabulous estimates of his wealth during his lifetime. He left his fortune to his widow, and it is believed to have remained in the family.

In Southern Pacific the Harriman influence appears to have virtually disappeared some years ago, the Harkness, Dodge, and other family fortunes becoming more prominent in it. Changes announced in its management involved most of the higher and many of the minor officers. Hale Holden, chairman of the executive committee, was elected chairman of the company, a new position, carrying general control and management of its affairs. His former title was discontinued.

Pick New President.

A. D. McDonald, vice chairman of the executive committee, was elected president, succeeding Paul Shoup, who becomes vice chairman in charge of maintenance and development of traffic. McDonald's old title will be discontinued and he will have charge under the direction of the chairman of management operations and traffic of the company's lines and steamships.

Another office abolished was that of chairman of the board, formerly filled by H. W. De Forest. He asked to be relieved of all duties of the office except those relating to finance, which he will continue to look after as a director and member of the executive committee.

Cut Salaries Again.

The company also announced another 10 per cent salary cut affecting employes receiving $10,000 or more per annum. In January the company made a general salary cut of 10 per cent.

Commenting on the management changes, Mr. Holden said: "The office of chairman, newly created, places the control and direction of the affairs of the company in a single authority with the support and assistance of two principal officers, the vice chairman and the president."

Mr. Holden in his statement did not refer to the matter of salary adjustments in connection with the various changes of titles. In the recent list of salaries of railroad officers published by the interstate commerce commission the office of chairman of the board of the Southern Pacific carried a salary of $22,500; that of chairman of the executive committee $135,000; that of vice chairman of the executive committee $85,000, and president $90,000, a total of $335,0000 for the four positions.

Tell Kreuger Loss in Swiss Stock Venture

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, July 14.—Plans of the late Ivar Kreuger to gather 50,000 Kreuger & Toll debentures in this country, intending to find a favorable market for them in Switzerland, was revealed here today. At a hearing before Henry K. Davis, special federal master in chancery, a letter was explained in which Kreuger had enjoined secrecy on J. H. Hentz & Co., brokers, in relation to the account carried as Mercator A. G., an account revealed at a previous hearing.

When Mercator failed to respond to calls for margins, the brokers sold out the account at about the time of Kreuger's suicide in Paris. The loss to the account was about $800,000.

Cites Other Amounts.

Jacob K. Javits, counsel for the petitioning creditors of Kreuger & Toll, questioned Sherman N. Bijur and Jerome Lewine, partners in the brokerage house, as to two additional accounts in which they believed Kreuger had been interested. The lawyer spoke of "enormous sums" handled through those accounts. Those transactions are being examined by an accountant.

These accounts were carried in the name of the Société Financière Suisse et Scandinave in which Kreuger at one time had a half interest and that of the Société Financière Pour Valeurs Scandinaves en Suisse, which he controlled. They already were on the books when the Mercator account was opened.

Place Limit on Pledges.

The records produced by Bijur and Lewine included a letter showing that Hentz & Co. had limited to $1,700,000 the amount of Kreuger & Toll securities that they would accept for collateral in all three accounts. A cable message has been received by the brokerage firm from the Société Financière Suisse et Scandinave, it was revealed at the hearing, demanding its credit balance. This balance as shown by the records consists of $225.36 in cash, $7,000 as the proceeds of the sale of 1,000 shares of Electric Bond and Share company and 20 shares of the same stock which had not been sold when the last entry was made in the brokerage firm's records.

The balance in the account of the Société Financière Pour Valeurs Scandinave en Suisse was given as $1,346.08 in cash, 75 shares of Electric Bond & Share, 300 shares of the Cerro de Pasco Copper company, 300 of International Nickel, 25 of International Match, represented by certificates of deposit; $3,000 face value Norwegian Hydro-Electric 5½s and $5,000 face value Kreuger & Toll 5 per cent secured debentures.

British Copper Tariff Will Be Ottawa Theme

New York, July 14.—British copper executives, representing the Rhokana corporation, which owns valuable ore reserves in Rhodesia, South Africa, and the Rio Tinto Company, Ltd., operating copper properties in Spain, have arrived here from London and will proceed to Ottawa for the imperial economic conference that is expected to take up the matter of a British tariff on foreign copper.

The great Canadian copper industry also will be represented by executives delegated by the Noranda Mines, Ltd., the International Nickel Company of Canada, Ltd., the Hudson Bay Mining and Smelting Company, Ltd., and other Canadian metal enterprises. Whether Australian copper mines will be represented has not been learned.

Follows Action by U. S.

The proposal for a British copper tariff is one of the results of the American copper tariff of 4 cents a pound on foreign metal which went into effect June 21. The great English copper interests of Africa are likely to have an influential voice when the question of a tariff comes before the conference. Their point of view on the matter is of practical interest. It was learned today that they are not especially desirous of a protective duty, at least not of a high tariff such as the United States has imposed. Their ideas seem to focus on a duty just sufficiently large to preserve the British copper demand for British owned copper mines.

Some of the British copper men are understood to believe that a duty of a cent a pound or even less would be sufficient protection. Their ideas of a tariff are modest because they are not under any illusions, it was said, regarding the purposes of a tariff.

Chary of Pegged Price.

They do not believe that a protective duty should be aimed at advancing the price of copper above world parity. They favor maintaining that parity, it was said today. Canada alone is said to have sufficient copper output to supply all the demands of English copper consumers, with the result that a small duty would serve the purpose.

Canada Produces 161,368 Tons of Newsprint in June

June production of newsprint in Canada totaled 161,368 tons, while shipments were 164,310 tons, says the Newsprint Service bureau. Output in the United States last month was 85,399 tons and shipments aggregated 84,255 tons. Canadian production in the first six months of this year was 150,883 tons less than in the same period of 1931, a drop of 13 per cent. American output was 46,395 tons, or 8 per cent under a year ago.

DROP IN WHEAT CAUSES STOCKS TO SELL LOWER

Break Closes Brisk Morning Rally.

BY FRED HARVEY.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, July 14.—Wheat upset the new bull movement—or what was passing for one—on the stock exchange today. Prices which have been on the mend since early in the week were moving ahead well, with fresh gains of from a fraction to 2 or 3 points showing all over the works, when word came of the wheat break break in the Chicago pit. Net losses on some leaders were 1 to 5 points for the day, while some preferred issues were 2 to 7 points higher.

Heavy Selling Halts.

Liquidation dried up in the last thirty minutes or so and prices steadied, but the closing figures generally were not very much above the lows of the day. It was all disappointing to the prophets who have been assuring all concerned that market prospects were growing very rosy indeed, all things considered.

The turnover came within an eyelash of a million shares, making it the biggest day's business since 'way back last spring.

The opening today was the strongest and broadest in weeks. A score or more of trading favorites came out in initial blocks of 1,000 to 2,000 shares on gains ranging from a small fraction to nearly a point. Brokers reported an "encouraging" accumulation of overnight buying orders brought on largely by the vigorous display which marked the final half hour of yesterday's dealings.

Foreigners Buy Stocks.

Many of the orders were said to have come by cable, evidence a belief by foreign interests that the Lausanne agreement and other recent developments abroad forecast a turn for the better in international economic conditions. Foreign buying in preferred issues was said to have been the heaviest in some time. As a result—partly at any rate—many of these issues bettered their positions anywhere from 2 to 7.

Another squeeze was attempted in Auburn, but it didn't get very far and the close of trading found the stock showing a net loss of 5 points.

Peoples Gas of Chicago, which spurted for more than 5 points, later surrendered about a third of its gain.

Estimated receipts at Chicago today: Cattle, 1,500; hogs, 15,000; sheep, 8,000.

All live stock experienced a setback in yesterday's session. Hogs declined 10@25c, the larger proportion of packing grades registering the biggest loss, with the general average and top prices off 15c at $4.60 and $5.10. Prices are 40@50c under Monday, but still show gains of $1.40@1.80 compared with the low point of the year. Sultry weather contributed to the weakness and trading moved dreamily along at the lowest prices in 12 days.

Another 2c break in the wholesale pork market brought fresh loins down to 7½@14c. This range compares with 13@21c a week ago. Current quotations at Chicago are relatively low, being 4@5c under pork loins at leading eastern distributing centers. A week ago Chicago prices were 1@2c above the east. Yesterday's hog receipts carried the first large shipments of packing sows this season, indicating that the movement of "packers" has finally started and is several weeks late.

Action Is Slower.

Action was slower in the cattle yards yesterday and prices came down mostly 25c, the break in hogs and lambs since the first of the week, coupled with the record heat wave, being the adverse factors. Prime 1,320 lb beef steers topped the list at $9.40, showing a gain of 40c compared with the highest spot last week. This price is 40c above the corresponding day in 1931.

Bulk of beef steers sold at $7.25@9.00, only a scattering of inferior grades going at $6.00 and below. Butcher stock sold steady to 25c lower, best beef cows holding firm. Calves dropped 50c more in value, influenced by a steady decline in the lamb market. The report on beef in storage favors the strong side of the cattle trade. Available supplies are lowest in many years. On July 1 storage houses in the United States had 29,783,000 lbs of beef. This total compares with 35,655,000 lbs on June 1 and shows a decrease of 15,765,000 lbs or 34 per cent compared with a year ago and is 33 per cent under the five year average.

Lambs Off $1@1.50.

Lambs met another sluggish trade and declined 25c further under severe sorting to within 25c of the lowest spot of the season for the new crop. Sales showed $1@1.50 declines, compared with a week ago, with western range lambs around the $6 line being comparable to the $7.25@7.50 kinds at the high time late last week. Fourteen carloads from Idaho sold at $6 yesterday. Only handpicked natives to city butchers passed this figure, which was the top to packers. Three loads sold at $6.40, with one lot at $6.50. The discount for culls was sharpest of the season. Another break in the wholesale price of dressed lamb carcasses took away some of the smaller buying orders and larger houses met little opposition.

Receipts at Chicago for today are estimated at 1,500 cattle, 15,000 hogs and 8,000 sheep, against 899 cattle, 15,948 hogs, and 6,222 sheep the previous Friday, and 2,750 cattle, 16,601 hogs and 9,380 sheep a year ago.

PORK LOINS CHEAPER

Provision trading was not large. There was no great pressure of offering and a comparative limited demand. The break in grains and stocks, combined with fair receipts and decline of 15@25c on hog prices, checked buying and induced scattered selling. The close was at the low point of the day with net losses on lard of 2½@10c, and on bellies of 2½@5c. An important feature was the weakness and decline in fresh pork loins, which a week ago were 20@21c, and in good demand for lightweights, while yesterday there were slow sales of 13@13½c. Liverpool lard was 3@6d higher, the export clearances were 270,000 lbs of lard.

Cash lard was $5.12½, loose, $4.72½, leaf, $5.12½. Short ribs were $6.25, and bellies, $6.20. Trade estimates on mid-month stocks of lard in Chicago, due late today are for a decrease of 2,000,000 to 3,000,000 lbs since July 1. Prices follow:

PROFIT TAKING BREAKS GRAIN PRICES FOR DAY

Close Is Near Lowest of the Season.

BY CHARLES MICHAELS.

New low prices were made on wheat, oats, and December rye, with declines to within fractions of previous lows on corn.

The day's market was marked by liquidation, stop loss selling, and lack of support.

July wheat was down to 45¼c, September to 47⅝, and December to 50⅝c. July oats touched the previous low, 13⅞c, with other deliveries at new lows, September being 18c and December, 21⅜c. The close was practically the lowest of the season. Net losses for the day on wheat were 1⅝@2c; corn, ⅞@1c; oats, ½@1c, and rye, ⅞@1¼c.

Nothing in the day's news developments was of a constructive character. Professionals are doing little because of the heavy tax, large supplies, and lack of outside business.

Reports Viewed as Bearish.

Weather and crop reports were in the main bearish and the foreign demand for wheat limited, the only export business being 200,000 bu Canadian. Mills and elevator interests, however, are picking up the cash wheat and paid September price to a shade better for No. 2 hard and No. 2 red on tracks at Chicago. In the southwest mills continue to buy the bulk of the movement, which was liberal, receipts at leading points in that section being 2,363 cars, against 4,453 cars last year. Liverpool was weak and disappointing to the bulls, the only buying there coming from Chicago, which made the close ¼d higher after being 1¼@1½d lower.

With December wheat in Liverpool and Chicago at practically the same prices, there is a disposition to buy Liverpool and sell Chicago. There was also a disposition to sell Winnipeg and buy Chicago. Hedging pressure was increased from the southwest, where mills were buying cash grain and securing protection by sales in Chicago.

Northwestern and Canadian weather was more favorable and foreign weather and crop reports offered nothing favorable to American wheat holders. The weakness in stocks and cotton brought a wave of selling towards the last and made the close on July wheat 45⅜@45⅝c, a new low record. September closed at 47⅜@47⅝c and December 50⅛@50¾c.

Pressure on Corn Renewed.

Corn traders who were active in covering shorts on Wednesday in numerous instances reinstated their lines yesterday. The market was without any sustaining factor except for a few periods when there were buying orders in evidence and a scarcity of selling. The weakness in wheat and favorable crop reports were against sustaining corn prices, and the close was 30¼c for July, 32@32⅛c for September, and 31⅞c for December.

Country sales of corn to arrive were 103,000 bu and shipping sales 63,000 bu, including 20,000 bu for export.

Hedging Pressure Hits Oats.

Weakness and lower prices in oats were due to enlarged hedging pressure, mainly from the northwest, with limited sustaining buying orders. Weakness in wheat also had a depressing influence on oats with hedging sales from the northwest and only a limited buying power. Crop harvesting is progressing under favorable conditions and the low price fails to attract new buying of any consequence. Oats finished with net losses of ½@1c, with July leading. Rye was sold by the northwest cash interests and by local elevator interests and met poor support, with net losses of ⅞@1¼c, July being 28¼c.
